ENG515_Glossary

1. Acronym :A word made up of the initial letters of a phrase, e.g. 'NATO', 'WJEC'.
2. Active Reading :The first essential step to comprehension, active reading forces you to see what you're reading, and to look closely at what's in the text. Active reading involves the questions "Who? What? When? Where? Why? How?" Active readers mark up passages by identifying unfamiliar vocabulary, underlining key words and ideas, and recording their reactions and questions in the margins.
3. Analogy :Comparing two sets of words to show some common similarity between the sets. When done as a vocabulary exercise this requires producing one of the words (e.g., cat is to kitten: as dog is to _____?).
4. Bloom's Taxonomy :A system for categorizing levels of abstraction of questions that commonly occur in educational settings. Includes the following competencies: knowledge, comprehension, application, analysis, synthesis, and evaluation.
5. Brainstorming :Brainstorming: Collecting ideas by thinking freely and openly about all the possibilities; used often with groups.
6. Cause and Effect :Ideas are arranged so readers can see which events, or series of events, caused something to take place, or what effect an event or series of events had.

By ASFAND YARR

ENG515_Glossary

7. Chronological Order :Ideas are arranged in the order in which they occurred (or in the order in which they should occur)
8. Cognates :Words that are related to each other by virtue of being derived from a common origin (e.g., 'decisive' and 'decision' or education (English) and educación (Spanish).
9. Coherence :Coherence is the orderly relationship of ideas, each leading smoothly and logically to the next. You must weave your ideas together so skillfully that the reader can easily see how one idea connects to another and to the central thought. This central thought, of course, is expressed in the topic sentence for a paragraph and in the thesis for an essay.
10. Cohesion :Cohesion is the grammatical and lexical linking within a text or sentence that holds a text together and gives it meaning. It is related to the broader concept of coherence.
11. Composition :Composition: A process in which a writer's ideas are combined into one unified piece of writing.
12. Conditional :A tense of a verb which expresses the idea that what happens depends on something else. Conditional forms often involve conjunctions such as ‘if’ or ‘then’ and verb forms such as ‘would’ or ‘may’.
13. Connotation :The implied or suggested meaning.

By ASFAND YARR

ENG515_Glossary

14. Decoding: :The ability to translate a word from print to speech, usually by employing knowledge of sound symbol correspondences; also the act of deciphering a new word by sounding it out.
15. Deductive reasoning :Deductive reasoning: The act of reasoning from a general idea to a specific point or conclusion.
16. Denotation :The exact or dictionary meaning.
17. Emphasis :Emphasis: Placing greater stress on the most important idea in a piece of writing by giving it special treatment; emphasis can be achieved by placing the important idea in a special position, by repeating a key word or phrase, or by simply writing more about it.
18. Etymology: :The origin of a word and the historical development of its meaning (e.g., the origin of our word etymology comes from late Middle English: from Old French ethimologie, via Latin from Greek etumologia, from etumologos ‘student of etymology,’ from etumon, neuter singular of etumos ‘true’).
19. Explicit :Explicit instruction involves direct explanation. The teacher’s language is concise, specific, and related to the objective. Another characteristic of explicit instruction is a visible instructional approach which includes a high level of teacher/student interaction. Explicit instruction means that the actions of the teacher are clear, unambiguous, direct, and visible. This makes it clear what the students are to do and learn. Nothing is left to guess work.

By ASFAND YARR

ENG515_Glossary

20. Exposition :Exposition: Writing that explains.
21. Expository Text :Reports factual information (also referred to as informational text) and the relationships among ideas. Expository text tends to be more difficult for students than narrative text because of the density of long, difficult, and unknown words or word parts.
22. Figurative language :Figurative language - language used to create a special effect or feeling; goes beyond the immediate meaning of the words used; writing in which a word or phrase is used to heighten the meaning by using comparative or exaggerated language or means something other than what it first appears to mean
23. Fluency :Fluency is the ability to read a text accurately, quickly, and with proper expression and comprehension. Because fluent readers do not have to concentrate on decoding words, they can focus their attention on what the text means.
24. Genre :A kind of fiction or nonfiction.
25. Grapheme :A grapheme is a letter or letter combination that spells a single phoneme. In English, a grapheme may be one, two, three, or four letters, such as e, ei, igh, or eigh.
26. Homograph :Two words spelled the same but pronounced differently and with different meanings
27. Homophone :Two words that sound alike but are spelled differently and have different meanings.

By ASFAND YARR

ENG515_Glossary

28. Illustration :Illustration is the graphic component of a text and can include images and artwork created with a variety of media. Charts, graphs, maps, and timelines can also be considered illustration. Authors and illustrators can also use font variations and variety to communicate information graphically; this can be considered illustration. Illustrations convey meaning.
29. Inverted sentence :A sentence in which the normal word order is inverted or switched, usually so that the verb comes before the subject.
30. Jargon :The technical language of a particular group that is inappropriate in most formal writing since it is frequently not understandable by those outside the group.
31. Literal :The actual or dictionary meaning of a word; language that means exactly what it appears to mean.
32. Metaphor :Metaphor - a figure of speech that is implied rather than directly stated; usually reveals a comparison by means of vivid expression
33. Modifier :A word, phrase, or clause that limits, alters, or describes another word or group of words.
34. Onset :Consonant sounds which may precede the vowel in a syllable, such as t in table.

By ASFAND YARR

ENG515_Glossary

35. Paraphrasing :Paraphrasing - to restate a phrase by using other words in order to shorten the passage or to make it more comprehensible to the author or reader
36. Personal narrative :Personal writing that covers an event in the writer's life; it often contains personal comments and ideas as well as a description of the event.
37. Plagiarism :Plagiarism - using the words or ideas of others without proper acknowledgment or permission
38. Proofreading :Proofreading - close reading of a text, using symbols of correction, examining it for errors in conventions, mechanics and/or grammar
39. Research :Research - a process of inquiring into a topic through various means including exploring what one believes and knows about the topic, seeking out other voices in the conversation, investigating and documenting others' ideas, considering them in relation to one's own.
40. Rime :The vowel plus consonant element of a syllable - able in table.
41. Scaffold :Scaffolds are structures or tools implemented by educators that support students' learning. Scaffolds 158 Glossary help the learner reach a level of achievement that he may not be able to reach without the scaffold. A lesson plan format is a procedural scaffold. Outlines and graphic organizers are examples of instructional scaffolds.

By ASFAND YARR

42. Scanning :Scanning is reading rapidly in order to find specific facts. Scanning helps you locate a particular fact.When you find the answer of a specific question from the given text.

43. Schema :The schema theory suggests that knowledge is stored in abstract structures called schemas. People organize and retain information in their memories based on a hierarchy of characteristics. For instance, in my schema for my dog Tessa, I have an overarching concept of animal, then pet, then dog, then poodle, then finally the specific traits of this particular dog. When applied to reading comprehension, schema theory postulates that readers have preconceived concepts that influence their understanding of texts. This background knowledge is applied when texts are being read. Schemas change when new information supplants old or is integrated into prior understandings.

44. Schema: :Refers to prior knowledge, the knowledge and experience that readers bring to the text.

45. Skimming :Skimming is reading rapidly in order to get a general overview of the material, it tells you what general information is within a section. When you see a piece of writing to see what it is about.

ENG515_Glossary

46. Spontaneity :Spontaneity: Doing, thinking, or writing without planning.
47. Syllable Types :There are six syllable types: 1. Closed: cat, cobweb 2. Open: he, silo 3. Vowel consonant-e (VCE): like, milestone 4. Consonant-l-e: candle, juggle (second syllable) 5. R controlled: star, corner, 6. Vowel pairs: count, rainbow
48. Syntax :The way in which words are arranged to show relationships (Crystal).
49. Tone :The writer's attitude toward the subject; for example, a writer's tone may be light, serious, sarcastic, tongue-in-cheek, solemn, or objective.
50. Transitional markers :Words or phrases that help clarify the relationships between ideas and tie them together, for example, nevertheless, moreover, most important, as a result.
51. Unity :Unity - combining sentences, paragraphs, ideas and details to form a coherent piece of writing,

QUIZ GROUP

https://chat.whatsapp.com/LDxdhXj8cjOK11wWSZfmdR

FILES GROUP

https://chat.whatsapp.com/F8pHB8zHZEB1lha0wR6EHA

By ASFAND YARR