1. To protect the religious rights of the Muslims
2. To protect the social rights of the Muslims
3. All of these

AR Lucky Team

4. To protect the political rights of the Muslims

Prove: 1

The main goal of the formation of the Muhammadan Defense Association was to protect the political rights of the Muslims.

Prove: 2

The main goal of the formation of the Muhammadan Defense Association (MDA) was to protect the political rights of the Muslims. The MDA was formed in 1911 by a group of Muslim leaders including the Aga Khan, Nawab Mohsin-ul-Mulk, and Syed Muhammad Bahadur. The MDA aimed to safeguard the political rights of the Muslims, who were a minority in British India, and to promote their interests in the political and administrative affairs of the country.

Question

4. 35

Prove: 1

The Simla Deputation was comprised of 35 Muslim leaders who presented the demands of the Muslim community to Lord Minto, the Viceroy of India, in 1906.

Prove: 2

The Simla Deputation was a group of 35 Muslim leaders who presented their demands to the Viceroy of India, Lord Minto, in Simla on October 1, 1906. The deputation was led by Sir Aga Khan and included other prominent Muslim leaders such as Nawab Waqar-ul-Mulk, Maulana Muhammad Ali Jauhar, and Maulana Shaukat Ali.

Question

1. How did Islam spread in the Sub-continent?
2. Through Arab Muslim Traders
3. All of these
4. Through Muslim Conquerors
5. Through preaching of Muslim Saints

Prove: 1

Islam spread in the Sub-continent through all of the mentioned ways. Arab Muslim traders played a significant role in spreading Islam as they established trade links with the local people. Muslim conquerors also played their part in spreading Islam, as did the preaching of Muslim saints who won the hearts of the people through their teachings.

AR Lucky Team

Prove: 2

Islam spread in the Indian subcontinent through various means, including the preaching of Muslim saints, the influence of Sufism, the patronage of Muslim rulers, and the activities of Arab Muslim traders. Muslim conquerors and rulers such as Muhammad bin Qasim, Mahmud of Ghazni, and the Mughals also played a significant role in the spread of Islam in the region. However, it was the Sufi saints who largely helped in spreading Islam among the masses, particularly in rural areas, through their teachings and spiritual practices.

Question

Which of the following political party was NOT in the favor of partition of Bengal?

1. All India Muslim League
2. Indian National Congress
3. Unionist Party
4. Awami League

Prove: 1

The Indian National Congress was not in favor of the partition of Bengal.

Prove: 2

The Indian National Congress (INC) was not in favor of the partition of Bengal. The partition of Bengal was announced by Lord Curzon, the then Viceroy of India, in 1905, and it was widely opposed by the Indian National Congress, which viewed it as a move to divide the Bengali-speaking population and weaken the nationalist movement. The All India Muslim League, on the other hand, supported the partition of Bengal as it believed that it would benefit the Muslims by giving them a separate province with a Muslim majority. The Unionist Party and Awami League did not exist at the time of partition of Bengal in 1905.

Question

What was the primary goal of East India Company to visit Sub-Continent?

1. Tourism
2. Trade
3. Travel
4. War

Prove: 1

The primary goal of the East India Company to visit the Sub-Continent was trade. They were interested in establishing trade relations with the local people and to establish their business interests in the region.

Prove: 2

The primary goal of the East India Company to visit the Indian subcontinent was trade. The East India Company was established in 1600 with the aim of trading with the East Indies, including the Indian subcontinent, for spices, textiles, and other goods. Over time, the Company became increasingly involved in Indian politics and administration, and eventually came to control large parts of the country. However, trade remained the primary objective of the Company throughout its history in India.

Question

When did British government revoke the status of the partition of Bengal?

1. 1912
2. 1910
3. 1909
4. 1911

Prove: 1

The British government revoked the status of the partition of Bengal in 1911.

Prove: 2

The British government revoked the partition of Bengal in 1911. The decision to partition Bengal in 1905 had led to widespread protests and boycotts by the Indian National Congress and other nationalist groups, who viewed it as a move to divide the Bengali-speaking population and weaken the nationalist movement. The British government was forced to reconsider its decision, and in 1911, Bengal was reunited and the new provinces of Bihar and Orissa were carved out of it. The capital of British India was also moved from Calcutta to Delhi in the same year.

Question

What was/were the objective (s) of Risala Asbab-i-Baghawat-i-Hind?

To create an atmosphere of mutual understanding between the British government and the Muslims

To induce them to get jobs and other facilities under the new government

To remove the state of tension between the Muslims and the British Government

All of these

Prove: 1

The objective of Risala Asbab-i-Baghawat-i-Hind was to remove the state of tension between the Muslims and the British Government. It aimed to highlight the reasons behind the Indian Rebellion of 1857 and to create an atmosphere of mutual understanding between the British government and the Muslims.

Prove: 2

The Risala Asbab-i-Baghawat-i-Hind (Pamphlet on the Causes of the Indian Revolt) was a pamphlet written by Sir Syed Ahmed Khan in 1858 after the Indian Rebellion of 1857. The main objective of the pamphlet was to create an atmosphere of mutual understanding between the British government and the Muslims, and to remove the state of tension between the two. Sir Syed argued that the causes of the rebellion were multifaceted, and that it was not solely motivated by religious or cultural factors. He also urged the Muslims to adopt a conciliatory approach towards the British government and to seek education and employment under the new regime. So, the correct option is the first one, to create an atmosphere of mutual understanding between the British government and the Muslims.

Question

On what occasion Allama Iqbal presented his poem “Nala-i-Yatim"?

1. At the annual session of Lahore Resolution
2. At the annual session of Aligarh University
3. At the annual session of Anjuman Himayat-i-Islam
4. At the annual session of Allahabad Address

Prove: 1

Allama Iqbal presented his poem "Nala-i-Yatim" at the annual session of Anjuman Himayat-i-Islam in Lahore in 1911.

Prove: 2

Allama Iqbal presented his poem "Nala-i-Yatim" (The Lament of the Orphan) at the annual session of the Anjuman Himayat-i-Islam in Lahore in 1911. The poem reflects on the plight of the Indian Muslim community and their struggle for equality and empowerment, and it became a powerful symbol of the Muslim identity and awakening in India. Allama Iqbal went on to become a leading voice of the All India Muslim League and played a significant role in the demand for a separate Muslim state in India.

Question

Who first introduced the term “Two Nation Theory”?

1. Quaid-e-Azam
2. Sir Syed Ahmad Khan
3. Allama Iqbal
4. Liaquat Ali Khan

Prove: 1

The term "Two Nation Theory" was first introduced by Sir Syed Ahmad Khan, who was a prominent Muslim philosopher and politician in the late 19th century.

Prove: 2

The term "Two Nation Theory" was first introduced by Sir Syed Ahmad Khan, who is considered one of the pioneers of the Muslim nationalist movement in India. Sir Syed believed that the Hindus and Muslims of India were two separate nations with distinct historical, cultural, and religious identities, and that they could not live together as one nation. His ideas laid the foundation for the demand for a separate homeland for the Muslims of India, which was eventually realized with the creation of Pakistan in 1947. However, it was Quaid-e-Azam Muhammad Ali Jinnah who popularized the idea of the Two Nation Theory and made it the cornerstone of the Pakistan Movement.

Question

When Urdu-Hindi Controversy emerged in the Sub-Continent?

1. 1857
2. 1862
3. 1867
4. 1872

Prove: 1

The Urdu-Hindi Controversy emerged in the Sub-Continent in 1867.

Prove: 2

The Urdu-Hindi Controversy emerged in the late 19th century, particularly in the 1860s and 1870s. However, its roots can be traced back to the 18th century with the emergence of Urdu as a literary language in the Mughal court, and to the 19th century with the rise of Hindi as a language of the Indian independence movement. So, neither 1857 nor 1862 marks the beginning of the controversy. The controversy continued well into the 20th century, with the partition of India in 1947 having a significant impact on the development of Urdu and Hindi as separate languages.

Question

Quaid-e-Azam presented his 14 points in response to:

1. The Nehru Report
2. The Simon Commission
3. The Lucknow Pact
4. The Communal Award

Prove: 1

Quaid-e-Azam presented his 14 points in response to The Nehru Report.

Prove: 2

Quaid-e-Azam presented his 14 points in response to The Nehru Report. The Nehru Report was a constitutional proposal prepared by a committee of the All Parties Conference chaired by Motilal Nehru in 1928. The report proposed a dominion status for India within the British Empire, with a parliamentary system of government and safeguards for the rights of minorities. However, the report did not adequately address the demands of the Muslim community, which led to the formulation of the 14 points by Quaid-e-Azam Muhammad Ali Jinnah in 1929. The 14 points demanded, among other things, adequate representation for Muslims in the central legislature and the creation of Muslim-majority provinces in British India.

Question

AR Lucky Team

Which pact was regarded as the first effort of Quaid-e-Azam to promote Hindu-Muslim Unity?

1. Lucknow Pact
2. Nehru Report
3. Delhi Proposals
4. Fourteen Points

Prove: 1

The Lucknow Pact was regarded as the first effort of Quaid-e-Azam to promote Hindu-Muslim unity. The pact was signed between the Indian National Congress and the All India Muslim League in 1916, and it aimed to unite the two major communities in the Indian subcontinent for the attainment of self-government.

Prove: 2

The Lucknow Pact is regarded as the first effort of Quaid-e-Azam to promote Hindu-Muslim unity. The Lucknow Pact was an agreement signed between the Indian National Congress and the All India Muslim League in 1916. The pact was negotiated by leaders of both parties, including Muhammad Ali Jinnah, who was a member of the Congress at the time. The pact called for greater representation for Indians in the civil service and the legislative councils, and it also recognized the separate electorates for Muslims. The pact was a significant milestone in the history of the Indian independence movement, as it marked the first time that the Congress and the Muslim League had come together to demand political reform from the British colonial government.

Question

What was the name of society that formed for the protection of Urdu language?

1. Urdu Defense Society
2. United Indian Patriotic Association
3. Scientific Society
4. Muhammadan Defense Association

Prove: 1

The name of the society that was formed for the protection of Urdu language was "Urdu Defense Association".

Prove: 2

Prove: 2

Sir Syed Ahmad Khan stressed on modern education for Muslims of the subcontinent. Sir Syed Ahmad Khan was a prominent Muslim figure in the 19th century who recognized the need for modern education among Muslims in India. He believed that education was the key to social and economic progress, and he established the Muhammadan Anglo-Oriental College in Aligarh in 1875, which later became Aligarh Muslim University. Sir Syed advocated for the adoption of modern Western education in addition to traditional Islamic education, and he believed that the Muslims of India needed to become proficient in English to compete with the British and other communities in the modern world.

Question

Who was the viceroy of India during the partition of the Bengal in 1905?

AR Lucky Team

1. Lord Mountbatten
2. Lord Wavell
3. Lord Canning
4. Lord Curzon

Prove: 1

Lord Curzon was the Viceroy of India during the partition of Bengal in 1905.

Prove: 2

Lord Curzon was the Viceroy of India during the partition of Bengal in 1905. The partition of Bengal was a controversial administrative action by the British government in India that divided the province of Bengal into two parts, one with a Muslim majority and the other with a Hindu majority. The partition was opposed by many Indian nationalists, who saw it as an attempt to divide and weaken the nationalist movement. The partition was annulled in 1911, after significant protests and agitation from Indian nationalists, led by figures like Rabindranath Tagore and Surendranath Banerjee.

Question

In which city Urdu-Hindi Controversy started?

1. Uttar Pradesh
2. Kolkata
3. Banaras
4. Dhaka

AR Lucky Team

Prove: 1

The Urdu-Hindi Controversy started in Banaras (now Varanasi), a city in the northern Indian state of Uttar Pradesh.

Prove: 2

The Urdu-Hindi Controversy started in the city of Banaras (also known as Varanasi) in the early 20th century. The controversy centered around the issue of whether Hindi written in the Perso-Arabic script, which was known as Urdu-Hindi or Hindustani, should be considered a separate language from Urdu or not. This was an important linguistic and cultural debate in the context of the Indian independence movement, as it had implications for the identity and status of both Hindus and Muslims in India.

Question

What was/were the ultimate aim(s) of the emergence of All India Muslim League?

1. To provide a platform for the Muslims of South Asia
2. To promote loyalty to the British
3. All of these
4. To advance the political rights and interests of the Muslims of India

Prove: 1

The ultimate aim of the emergence of the All India Muslim League was to advance the political rights and interests of the Muslims of India. The formation of the Muslim League provided a platform for the Muslims of South Asia to work towards achieving their political goals, which were not being addressed by the mainstream Indian National Congress. While the Muslim League did support the idea of loyalty to the British initially, its ultimate aim was to secure the rights and interests of the Muslims of India.

Prove: 2

The ultimate aim of the emergence of the All India Muslim League was to advance the political rights and interests of the Muslims of India. The Muslim League was founded in 1906 with the objective of promoting Muslim political representation and protecting Muslim interests in the face of growing Hindu political dominance in India. The League played a key role in the movement for the creation of Pakistan, and it ultimately succeeded in achieving its goal of establishing a separate homeland for Muslims in the Indian subcontinent. While providing a platform for the Muslims of South Asia and promoting loyalty to the British were also important objectives of the Muslim League at various times in its history, its ultimate aim was to advance the political rights and interests of the Muslims of India.

Question

Which of the following element was the basis of the establishment of Pakistan?

1. Two Nation Theory
2. Urdu-Hindi Controversy
3. Objectives Resolution 1949
4. None of these

Prove: 1

The basis of the establishment of Pakistan was the Two Nation Theory which argued that Hindus and Muslims are two separate nations with distinct religious, social, and cultural identities, and therefore cannot live together in a single country.

Prove: 2

The basis of the establishment of Pakistan was the Two Nation Theory, which was proposed by the Muslim League leader Muhammad Ali Jinnah. The theory held that Hindus and Muslims were two separate nations with distinct religious, cultural, and historical identities, and therefore could not live together as a single nation under a unified government. The Muslim League demanded a separate homeland for Indian Muslims, which eventually led to the creation of Pakistan in 1947. The Urdu-Hindi controversy and the Objectives Resolution of 1949 were important events in the history of Pakistan, but they were not the basis for its establishment.

4. 1916

Prove: 1

Jinnah resigned from the Indian National Congress in 1920 due to his differences with the party's leadership over their attitude towards the Muslim minority.

Prove: 2

Muhammad Ali Jinnah resigned from the Indian National Congress in 1920. Jinnah had joined the Congress in 1906 and was initially a strong supporter of Indian nationalism and Hindu-Muslim unity. However, he became disillusioned with the Congress leadership over their treatment of Muslim issues and their failure to address the concerns of Indian Muslims. In 1920, Jinnah resigned from the Congress and devoted himself to the Muslim League, which he had joined in 1913. Jinnah went on to become the leader of the Muslim League and played a key role in the struggle for the creation of Pakistan.

Question

Who was the founder of Indian National Congress?

Select the correct option

1. Jawaharlal Nehru
2. Mahatma Gandhi
3. Lal Bahadur Shastri
4. Allan Octavian Hume

Prove: 1

Allan Octavian Hume was the founder of the Indian National Congress.

Prove: 2

The correct answer is: Allan Octavian Hume.

Allan Octavian Hume founded the Indian National Congress in 1885. Some key facts about him:

• Allan Octavian Hume was a British civil servant, ornithologist and political reformer.

• He served in the British Indian Civil Service and worked to introduce reforms for the betterment of India.

• He played an important role in the formation of the Indian National Congress, which later became the premier political organization of India under the leadership of great leaders like Mahatma Gandhi, Jawaharlal Nehru and Lal Bahadur Shastri.

• Hume organized the first session of the Indian National Congress in Bombay in December 1885. He served as the General Secretary of the Congress in its first two sessions.

• He chose 'National Congress' in the name to represent people of all provinces of India, different castes and religions. The objective was to form a platform where all Indians could join together to voice their demands before the British Government.

AR Lucky Team

• Though Hume founded the Indian National Congress, eventually great leaders like Mahatma Gandhi, Jawaharlal Nehru and Lal Bahadur Shastri led the Indian freedom movement under its banner and turned it into a mass movement for India's independence from the British.

Question

What was the primary goal of East India Company to visit Sub-Continent?

Select the correct option

1. Trade
2. Travel
3. War
4. Tourism

Prove: 1

The primary goal of the East India Company to visit the Sub-Continent was trade. They established trading posts and started trading in various commodities such as textiles, spices, and tea.

Prove: 2

Lucky Here, the primary goal of East India Company to visit Sub-Continent was -

Trade

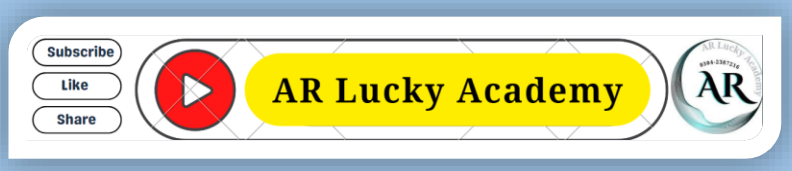

Some key facts:

• The East India Company was granted a royal charter in 1600 by Queen Elizabeth I of England to trade in goods like silk, spice with India and neighboring countries.

• The East India Company's main business was trade. They established trade centers and forts in India to facilitate trade in goods like tea, silk, saltpeter and opium.

• The East India Company gradually expanded its influence from trade centers to ruling large areas in India with the help of its own private army. But their primary motive for coming to India was trade, not war, travel or tourism.

• East India Company officials also visited India mainly to oversee and expand trade operations , negotiate trade agreements and resolve trade disputes. Though travel and exploration were side benefits.

AR Lucky Team

• Trade presented huge business opportunities for the East India Company to acquire valuable goods in India at cheap rates and sell them at huge profits in Europe. This was their main motive for establishing a presence in the Indian subcontinent.

So in summary, the primary goal of the East India Company in visiting and expanding their operations in India was TRADE - to profit from the lucrative business opportunities in buying and selling goods from India at huge margins. Other activities like traveling, ruling territories, etc. emerged later as means to facilitate and protect their trade interests.

Question

When did British government revoke the status of the partition of Bengal?

Select the correct option

1. 1911
2. 1909
3. 1912
4. 1910

Prove: 1

The British government revoked the status of the partition of Bengal in 1911.

Prove: 2

The correct option is: 1911

Some key details:

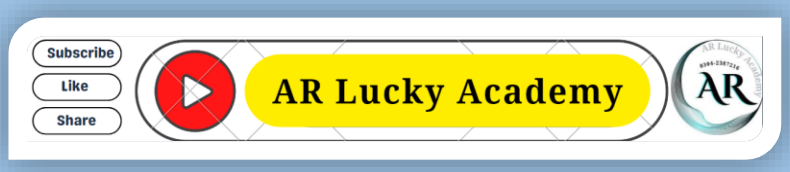

• The British government partitioned the Bengal province into two parts in 1905 - (a) Muslim-majority Eastern Bengal and Assam and (b) Hindu-majority Bengal.

• The partition of Bengal was strongly opposed by the Indian population. It triggered widespread protests and agitations led by the Swadeshi movement and Indian National Congress.

• Facing immense opposition, the British government decided to revoke the partition of Bengal.

• Lord Minto's government passed the Indian Councils Act in 1909, which included provisions for revoking the partition of Bengal.

• However, the actual revocation did not happen until 1911. The 1911 Imperial Legislative Council passed a resolution reversing the partition of Bengal.

AR Lucky Team

• On 12 December 1911, the British government officially announced the reunification of Bengal, making it a unified province under a governor.

So in summary, the British government revoked the status of the partition of Bengal in 1911 after facing massive opposition from the Indians for two years since the partition was announced in 1905.

Question

Which political party Quaid-e-Azam joined at the start?

Select the correct option

1. Awami League
2. Indian National Congress
3. None of these
4. All India Muslim League

Prove: 1

Quaid-e-Azam joined the All India Muslim League at the start of his political career.

Prove: 2

The correct option is: Indian National Congress

Some key details:

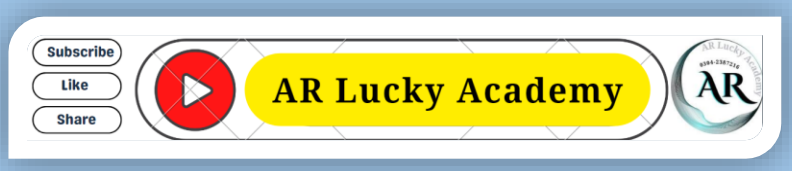

• Quaid-e-Azam , Muhammad Ali Jinnah, started his political career by joining the Indian National Congress.

• In 1905, at the age of 20, Jinnah joined the Congress party after being inspired by Dadabhai Naoroji, a prominent Congress leader at the time.

• Jinnah worked with the Congress party for around two decades and played an active role in the early Indian independence movement.

• However, over time, growing differences emerged between Jinnah and the Congress leadership, particularly with Gandhi.

• By the late 1920s and early 1930s, Jinnah became disillusioned with the Congress' dominance by Hindus and its refusal to accept separate electorates for Muslims.

AR Lucky Team

• This led Jinnah to leave the Congress in 1920 and later join the All India Muslim League in 1913, which he went on to transform into a strong political party advocating for the interests of Indian Muslims.

So in summary, at the start of his political career, Quaid-e-Azam Muhammad Ali Jinnah joined the Indian National Congress in 1905 , not the Awami League or All India Muslim League. He only later left Congress and joined the Muslim League due to disagreements over accommodating Muslim political rights within a united independent India.

Question

When did Jinnah resign from the Indian National Congress?

Select the correct option

1. 1912
2. 1908
3. 1920
4. 1916

Prove: 1

Jinnah resigned from the Indian National Congress in 1920 due to his differences with the party's leadership over their attitude towards the Muslim community.

Prove: 2

The correct option is: 1920

Quaid-e-Azam Muhammad Ali Jinnah resigned from the Indian National Congress in 1920. Some key details:

• Jinnah initially joined the Congress in 1905 and worked with the party for around two decades.

• However, over time, Jinnah became disillusioned with the Congress' dominance by Hindus and refusal to accept separate electorates for Muslims.

• A key turning point came in 1916 when the Congress refused to support the Muslims' demand for separate electorates under the Minto-Morley Reforms.

• Jinnah continued engaging with the Congress for a few more years but differences widened, particularly over the issue of Hindu-Muslim unity.

• In 1919, Jinnah proposed the "Fourteen Points" to protect Muslim political rights within a self-governing India. But the Congress rejected most of the points.

• This led to an irreparable break between Jinnah and the Congress leadership, particularly Gandhi.

• In March 1920 at the Nagpur session of the Congress, Jinnah finally resigned from the party and his official membership ended.

So the correct option is 1920, when Jinnah formally resigned from the Indian National Congress due to his disagreements with the party's stance on accommodating Muslim political interests.

Question

In which city Urdu-Hindi Controversy started?

Select the correct option

1. Kolkata
2. Banaras
3. Uttar Pradesh
4. Dhaka

Prove: 1

The Urdu-Hindi Controversy started in Banaras (present-day Varanasi) in 1867.

Prove: 2

The correct option is: Banaras

The Urdu-Hindi Controversy started in Banaras or Varanasi. Some key facts:

• The controversy began in 1867 when Sir George Campbell, the Lieutenant Governor of the North Western Provinces (which included present-day Uttar Pradesh), decided to make Urdu the sole official language of the province.

• This led to protests from Hindus who wanted Hindi, not Urdu written in the Devanagari script, to be made the official language.

• The controversy first surfaced in Banaras (Varanasi) where Hindus organized protests against the decision to impose Urdu. They argued that Hindi, not Urdu, was their native language and should be recognized.

• In 1881, the Banaras Hindu University was established with the aim of promoting Hindi language, literature and culture. This further fueled the divide between Urdu and Hindi supporters.

• The controversy eventually spread to other parts of North India, especially Uttar Pradesh. But it originated and first emerged prominently in the city of Banaras (Varanasi) in 1867.

• The dispute eventually ended in 1901 when Hindustani, a mixture of both Urdu and Hindi, was adopted as the official language of the United Provinces (of which Uttar Pradesh was a part).

So in summary, the option 'Banaras' is correct as the Urdu-Hindi Controversy first started in the city of Banaras (Varanasi) in 1867 over making Urdu or Hindi the official language of the region.

Question

Quaid-e-Azam presented his 14 points in response to:

Select the correct option

1. The Nehru Report
2. The Communal Award
3. The Lucknow Pact
4. The Simon Commission

Prove: 1

Quaid-e-Azam presented his 14 points in response to The Nehru Report.

Prove: 2

The correct option is: The Nehru Report

Some key details:

• In 1928, Motilal Nehru headed an Indian delegation that presented the Nehru Report to the Simon Commission.

AR Lucky Team

• The Nehru Report outlined Congress' demands for self-government and a constitution for India but did not adequately address Muslim political demands.

• In response to the Nehru Report, Quaid-e-Azam Muhammad Ali Jinnah formulated his seminal "Fourteen Points" in 1929 to protect Muslim interests within a self-governing India.

• The 14 points included demands such as:

- Separate electorates for minorities for 15 years and if needed, in perpetuity
- Weightage in representation of Muslim majority areas
- Safeguards for Muslim personal law
- A strong central government with substantial powers

• Jinnah presented the 14 points as a counter to the Congress' position outlined in the Nehru Report, which he felt did not sufficiently protect Muslim political rights.

• However, the Congress and other parties rejected most of Jinnah's 14 points, further alienating the Muslim League and Jinnah.

So in summary, Quaid-e-Azam Jinnah formulated and presented his famous "Fourteen Points" in direct response to the demands made by the Indian National Congress in the Nehru Report submitted to the Simon Commission. The 14 points aimed to secure political safeguards for Muslims within a self-governing India as envisioned by the Congress.

Question

What was the primary agenda of the formation of United Indian Patriotic Association?

Select the correct option

1. To end the enmity among Muslims and British
2. To facilitate modern education among Muslims
3. To counter the propaganda of Congress
4. All of these

Prove: 1

AR Lucky Team

The primary agenda of the formation of the United Indian Patriotic Association was to counter the propaganda of the Indian National Congress and to promote loyalty to the British Crown among Muslims.

Prove: 2

The primary agenda of the formation of United Indian Patriotic Association was -

To counter the propaganda of Congress

Some key details:

- The United Indian Patriotic Association was formed under the leadership of loyalist Muslims in 1906 to counter the Indian National Congress.

- The association's main agenda was to oppose the goal of swaraj (self-rule) and the Quit India movement advocated by the Congress.

- The association aimed to propagate the British viewpoint and counter what it saw as the extremist and separatist views of the Congress.

- The association supported the policy of British parliamentary reforms and dominion status for India under continued British rule. It opposed the demand for complete independence.

- The association recruited prominent Muslims to speak against Congress' extremist views and propaganda. It aimed to convince Muslims that their political and social interests were safer under British rule.

- While the association supported some modern education and social reforms among Muslims, its primary focus was countering the nationalist Congress party and its demand for swaraj from the British. Facilitating Muslim education and ending enmity with the British were not its primary agendas.

So in summary, the primary agenda of forming the United Indian Patriotic Association was to counter the Indian National Congress party and its nationalist propaganda and goal of self-rule. The option 'To counter the propaganda of Congress' is correct. Promoting Muslim education and reducing enmity with the British were not the association's central objectives.

Question

AR Lucky Team

What was the name of society that formed for the protection of Urdu language?

Select the correct option

1. United Indian Patriotic Association
2. Muhammadan Defense Association
3. Urdu Defense Society
4. Scientific Society

Prove: 1

The name of the society that was formed for the protection of Urdu language was "Urdu Defense Association".

Prove: 2

The correct option is: Urdu Defense Society

The Urdu Defense Society was formed to protect and promote the Urdu language. Some key details:

ś

• The Urdu-Hindi Controversy erupted in the 1860s over whether Urdu or Hindi should be the official language of the United Provinces (modern Uttar Pradesh).

• Hindus wanted Hindi in Devanagari script to be the official language while Muslims supported Urdu written in Persian script.

• In 1867, the British colonial government declared Urdu as the official language of the United Provinces, sparking protests from Hindus.

• In response, Muslims formed the Urdu Defense Society to oppose any imposition of Hindi and protect the status of Urdu.

• The society appealed to the British authorities to uphold Urdu as the official language and organized protests against any official promotion of Hindi.

• The society's main objective was to defend the Urdu language from what it saw as an attempt by Hindus to undermine its status in northern India.

• The society continued its activities for several decades to counter Hindu groups promoting Hindi during the Urdu-Hindi controversy.

AR Lucky Team

So in summary, the option 'Urdu Defense Society' is correct as it is the name of the organization that was formed by Muslims to protect the status of the Urdu language during the controversy over official languages in the United Provinces.

Question

When Mohammedan Anglo-Oriental College converted into the Aligarh Muslim University (AMU)?

Select the correct option

1. 1919
2. 1921
3. 1920
4. 1918

Prove: 1

Mohammedan Anglo-Oriental College was converted into the Aligarh Muslim University (AMU) in 1920.

Prove: 2

The correct option is: 1920

The Mohammedan Anglo-Oriental College was converted into the Aligarh Muslim University (AMU) in 1920. Some key details:

• The Mohammedan Anglo-Oriental (MAO) College was established in 1877 by Sir Syed Ahmed Khan in Aligarh, United Provinces (now Uttar Pradesh).

• The MAO College aimed to provide modern education to Indian Muslims and bridge the educational gap between Hindus and Muslims.

• Over the decades, the MAO College grew in stature and influence, becoming a prominent institution for Muslims in North India.

• In 1920, the college was elevated to the status of a Central University by filling a legislative bill passed by the Imperial Legislative Council.

• The MAO College was formally converted into the Aligarh Muslim University on 17 December 1920 during a special convocation ceremony.

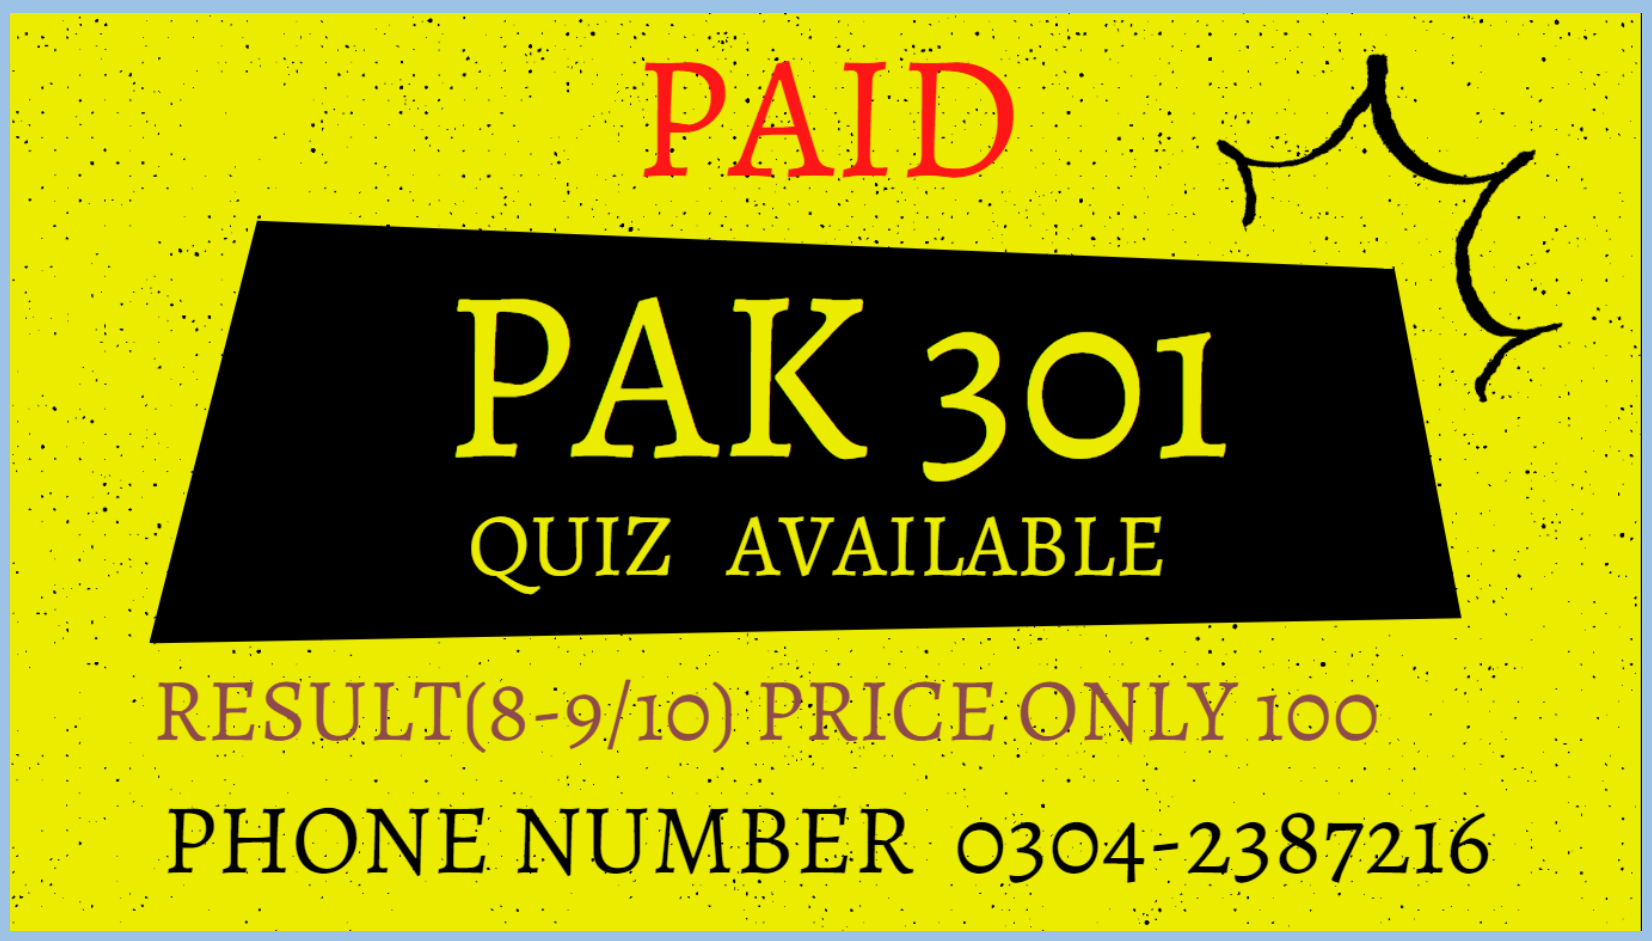

AR Lucky Team

• Sir Syed Ahmad Khan's dream of a modern university for Indian Muslims finally materialized with the establishment of the Aligarh Muslim University in 1920.

• AMU has since grown into one of the largest Indian universities with a diverse student body and lively intellectual atmosphere.

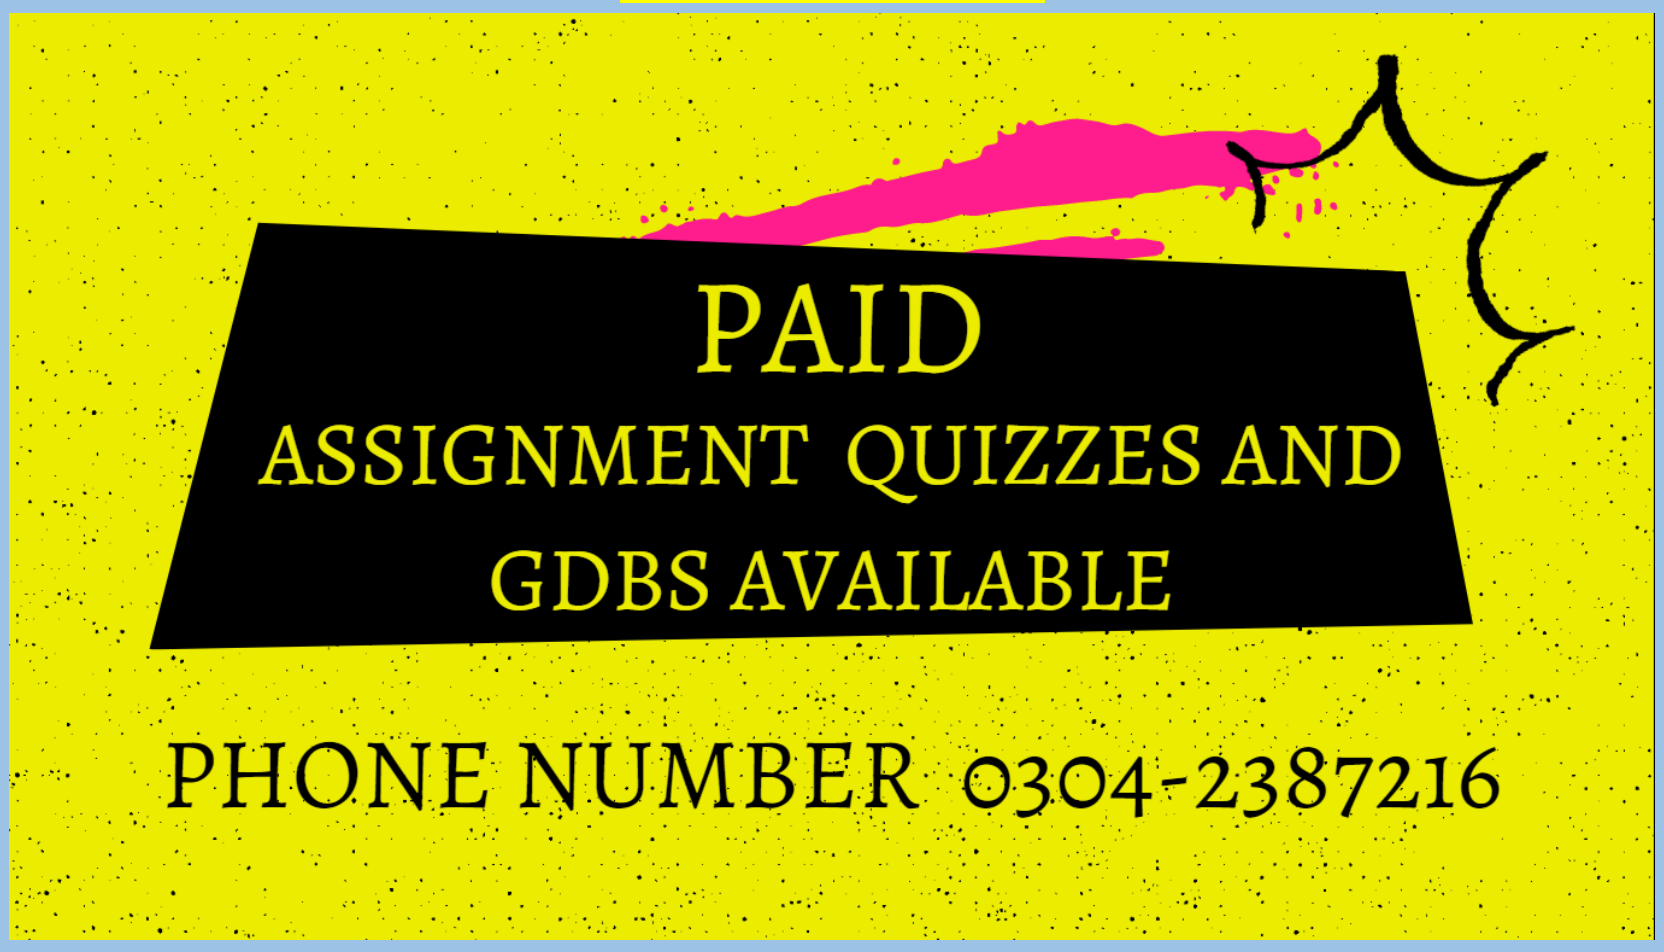

So in summary, the Mohammedan Anglo-Oriental College was converted into the Aligarh Muslim University in the year 1920, making option 'C' the correct answer.

Hope this explanation helps! Let me know if you have any other questions about the history of AMU or Muslim education in India during the British period.
