goal setting and management of conflict.
evaluating and responding to routine information.
negotiating agreement and commitment.
team building and developing subordinates.
managing change and delegating effectively.

237) The competing values framework:

is used by organizations to identify individuals best suited for promotion by examining the emphasis they place on various managerial activities.
is the best approach to use for understanding the complexity of managerial roles in a rapidly changing social and technological environment.
helps determine what managers do by categorizing different, but interrelated, sets of behaviours attributable to the responsibilities of a manager.
is one approach used to facilitate development of skills required by successful managers in organizations facing new and complex challenges.
is used by learning organizations to assist them in their acquisition, dissemination and application of knowledge for continued success.

238) Henry Mintzberg concluded that managers are primarily concerned with a variety of functional roles which can be grouped into the following categories:

traditional, communication, networking.
technical, human, conceptual.
planning, organizing, leading.
interpersonal, informational, decisional.

241) All of the following statements are true about learning except:

Learning involves change which can be either positive or negative from an organizational perspective.
The change in behaviour resulting from learning is usually temporary or reflexive in nature.
Changes in behaviour indicate that learning has taken place, and learning is a change in behaviour.
Learning requires some form of experience which can be acquired either directly or indirectly.
Behavioural changes that result from learning must be relatively permanent.

242) Three common theories have been offered to explain the process by which individuals acquire their patterns of behaviour: classical conditioning, operant conditioning and social-learning. Which of the following statements is false when examining these theories?

Any situation in which it is either explicitly stated or implicitly suggested that reinforcements are contingent on some action on your part involves the use of operant conditioning.
As part of classical conditioning, learning a conditioned response involves building up an association between a conditioned and an unconditioned stimulus.
Most behaviour, particularly the complex behaviour of individuals in organizations is emitted rather than elicited; it is voluntary rather than reflexive.
Operant conditioning is passive in nature as it is elicited in response to a specific, identifiable event and as such, can explain simple reflexive behaviours.
Social-learning theory, although an extension of operant conditioning, also acknowledges the existence of observational learning and the importance of perception.

243) The classical conditioning theory of learning grew out of experiments performed by Ivan Pavlov.

the work and research of Henri Fayol.
experiments performed by B. F. Skinner.
experiments and studies of Robert Katz.

222) Ruth needs to examine the process of employee turnover in her company and the resultant effects and costs being realized by the company. Upon careful examination of the financial records in her own department, Ruth noted that the following factor stood out as a major cost:

design and development of new evaluation forms.
recruitment, selection and training of new employees.
resistance to new employees by the HR department.
orientation programs for new employees.
resentment of new employees by existing employees.

223) The general attitude toward one's job and the difference between the amount of rewards workers receive and the amount they believe they should receive is known as:

turnover.
total quality management.
job satisfaction.
job security.
management by objectives.

224) Individual-level independent variables include:

technology.
organizational culture.
human resource policy.
group behaviour.
perception.

225) The structure of an OB model includes three basic levels of analysis: individual, group, and organization systems. Issues that influence all three levels in various ways and thus affect behavioural dynamics are:

change and stress.
organizational culture and commitment.
power and politics.
work design and technology.
values and attitudes.

226) The group level analysis in an OB model includes all of the following independent variables except:

leadership.
group decision making.
work teams.
organizational culture.
group structure.

227) According to the OB model, all of the following are characteristics of human output except:

conflict.
satisfaction.
turnover.
productivity.
absence.

228) Some of OB's challenges and opportunities include all of the following except:

reinforcing the importance of traditional methods of management.
offering specific insights to improve interpersonal and people skills.
helping us learn to cope in a continuously changing world.
facilitating the improvement of quality and employee productivity.
acknowledging individual differences and value of workforce diversity.

production processes.
government regulations.
technological changes.

233) The flexibility-control dimension of the competing values framework refers to:

competing demands to balance traditional operations with future needs.
developing structures that maximize predominantly traditional operations.
focusing all attentions internally to maintain established operating systems.
maximizing the internal focus of an organization for maximum productivity.
maximizing the external focus of an organization for maximum productivity.

234) When we consider leadership in an organization, we typically refer to:

the person or persons who oversee the activities of others.
the person or persons developing specific work patterns.
the person or persons responsible for setting the overall vision.
the individual who acts solely as the figurehead for the organization.
the individual who deals with the political issues of organizational function.

235) Managers generally need to develop an approach that will facilitate their effectiveness while achieving the organization's goals. On the control dimension of the competing values framework, managers must:

set clear goals regarding productivity expectations.
develop mentoring and facilitating skills.
serve as innovators and brokers.
develop skills which will maintain flexibility and discretion.
inspire employees toward high performance behaviour.

236) The competing values framework identifies a series of roles for which managers and employees facing a changing workplace must develop new skills. The monitor role includes which of the following: skills?

goal setting and management of conflict.
evaluating and responding to routine information.
negotiating agreement and commitment.
team building and developing subordinates.
managing change and delegating effectively.

237) The competing values framework:

is used by organizations to identify individuals best suited for promotion by examining the emphasis they place on various managerial activities.
is the best approach to use for understanding the complexity of managerial roles in a rapidly changing social and technological environment.
helps determine what managers do by categorizing different, but interrelated, sets of behaviours attributable to the responsibilities of a manager.
is one approach used to facilitate development of skills required by successful managers in organizations facing new and complex challenges.
is used by learning organizations to assist them in their acquisition, dissemination and application of knowledge for continued success.

238) Henry Mintzberg concluded that managers are primarily concerned with a variety of functional roles which can be grouped into the following categories:

traditional, communication, networking.
technical, human, conceptual.
planning, organizing, leading.
interpersonal, informational, decisional.
commanding, coordinating, controlling.

240) Which of the following statements is false regarding the study conducted by Luthans and his associates?

A successful manager was defined in terms of how quickly he or she moved up within the organization.
The aspect which distinguishes the average manager from the effective manager from the successful manager is the amount of time and effort devoted to the various managerial activities.
Social and political skills are not as important as performance when one examines the speed of managerial promotion within organizations.
All managers, regardless of the organizations within which they work, generally engage in similar managerial activities.
The effectiveness of managers was defined in terms of quantity and quality of their performance and the satisfaction and commitment of their subordinates.

241) All of the following statements are true about learning except:

Learning involves change which can be either positive or negative from an organizational perspective.
The change in behaviour resulting from learning is usually temporary or reflexive in nature.
Changes in behaviour indicate that learning has taken place, and learning is a change in behaviour.
Learning requires some form of experience which can be acquired either directly or indirectly.
Behavioural changes that result from learning must be relatively permanent.

242) Three common theories have been offered to explain the process by which individuals acquire their patterns of behaviour: classical conditioning, operant conditioning and social-learning. Which of the following statements is false when examining these theories?

Any situation in which it is either explicitly stated or implicitly suggested that reinforcements are contingent on some action on your part involves the use of operant conditioning.

As part of classical conditioning, learning a conditioned response involves building up an association between a conditioned and an unconditioned stimulus.
Most behaviour, particularly the complex behaviour of individuals in organizations is emitted rather than elicited; it is voluntary rather than reflexive.
Operant conditioning is passive in nature as it is elicited in response to a specific, identifiable event and as such, can explain simple reflexive behaviours.
Social-learning theory, although an extension of operant conditioning, also acknowledges the existence of observational learning and the importance of perception.

243) The classical conditioning theory of learning grew out of experiments performed by Ivan Pavlov.

the work and research of Henri Fayol.
experiments performed by B. F. Skinner.
experiments and studies of Robert Katz.
studies conducted by Luthans and associates.

244) Comfort foods that bring back memories of a certain time and place is an example of situational conditioning.

operant conditioning.
sensory conditioning.
associated conditioning.
classical conditioning.

245) Operant conditioning argues that behaviour is reflexive in nature.

behaviour is not learned.
behaviour is a function of its consequences.
the tendency to repeat a behaviour is very strong.
observational learning is predominant in creating behaviour.

manipulation.
positive reinforcement.
negative reinforcement.
extinction.
elimination.

247) Suspending an employee who shows up for work drunk is an example of:

extinction.
negative reinforcement.
punishment.
poor management practice.
a conditioned response.

248) Eliminating any reinforcement that is maintaining an unwanted behaviour is called:

negative reinforcement.
positive reinforcement.
classical conditioning.
extinction.
punishment.

249) All of the following statements are true regarding both positive and negative reinforcement except:

Both result in learning.
Both strengthen desired response and increase probability of repetition.
Both tend to weaken behaviour and decrease its subsequent frequency.
Both strengthen job performance.
Both affect behaviour and interaction with the boss.

How ISO has impacted organizational behavior?

Products or services all over the world have some properties attached to them. The satisfaction they provide, against the resources paid, is called quality of the product. ISO tried to put some basic properties of the product, by which we can understand that the product, will provide the benefit at least the level of the quality prescribed.

The organizations which follow the standards provide by the ISO for their product and services are globally accepted. So in the current situation if any organization would like to introduce their product globally they have to follow some rules and regulation prescribed by ISO.

Quality can be achieved by applying some strict rules in the transformation process of the organization. And to follow these rules is the responsibility for everyone in the organization.

Edwerd Deming introduced the TQM (Total Quality Management) concept at organizational level. This quality management are the steps by following an organization produce quality products, and keep survival in the competitive world.

Question No: 52 (Marks: 5)
Differentiate between job description and job specification.

Job description
The job description is a document that provides information regarding the tasks, duties, and responsibilities of the job. Job description takes on an even greater importance under the Americans with Disabilities Act because the description of essential job functions may be critical to a defense regarding reasonable accommodation.
1. Job Identification - contains the job title, the FLSA status, date, and possible space to indicate who approved the description, the location of the job, the immediate supervisor's title, salary and/or pay scale.
2. Job Summary - should describe the general nature of the job, and includes only its major functions or activities.
3. Relationships - occasionally a relationships statement is included. It shows the jobholders' relationships with others inside and outside the organization.
4. Responsibilities and Duties - The Department of Labor's Dictionary of Occupational Titles can be used for itemizing the job's duties and responsibilities.
5. Standards of Performance - states the standards the employee is expected to achieve under each of the job description's main duties and responsibilities.

Job specification
Minimum acceptable qualifications that a person should possess to perform the job are included in the job specification. Some of the items often included are requirements for education, experience, personality, and physical abilities.

When the organizations opt for the process reengineering?

Process Reengineering

1. Process reengineering is described as "considering how things would be done if you could start all over from scratch." It comes from the process of taking apart an electronics product and designing a better version.
2. Michael Hammer coined the term as applied to organizations. Reengineering means management should start with a clean sheet of paper-rethinking and redesigning those processes by which the organization creates value and does work, ridding itself of operations that have become antiquated in the computer age.

Three key elements:

• Identifying an organization's distinctive competencies, assessing core processes, and reorganizing horizontally by process
a. Distinctive competencies define what it is that the organization is more superior at delivering than its competition.
b. Superior store locations, a more efficient distribution system, higher-quality products, more knowledgeable sales personnel, or superior technical support • Core processes transform materials, capital, information, and labor into products and services that the customer values.
a. These range from strategic planning to after-sales customer support; management can determine to what degree each adds value.
b. Process value analysis typically uncovers a whole lot of activities that add little value.
• Reengineering requires management to reorganize around horizontal processes.
a. This means cross-functional and self-managed teams
b. It means focusing on processes rather than functions.

Question No: 65 (Marks: 3)
How can charismatic leadership hurt an organization?

Answer :
A charismatic leader is one who might not have legitimate authority over the followers but followers respect him for his charisma, knowledge, expertise and his vision.

Charismatic leaders can hurt an organization because their followers might go against the legitimate chain of command of the organization to follow the leader. As it is not necessary for the charismatic leader to have legitimate authority therefore he might not follow the proper chain of command. This creates the problem of unity of command.

People will follow two managers. One will be their manager according to the company hierarchy or structure and one will be the leader. This might create people-role conflict for employees. This affects the organization in a negative way and hurt the organization.

Question No: 66 (Marks: 5)

"As important as attracting good employees is, it is just as important to retain them". How you can justify this statement.

Answer : Employees are the biggest assets for an organization. They are the real distinctive competency of an organization. The organizations who pay heed to this fact are the most successful ones. Technology and other resources that a successful organization holds can be acquired by other organizations as well but motivated, expert and skilled employees that one firm has cannot be duplicated easily by other firms. That is the main reason competing firms try to buy out employees from their rivals in an attempt to gain the distinctive competencies that the rival holds because of these employees.

Therefore for an organization to be successful, it should not only attract or hire good employees but it should also retain them. There are a number of reasons why retaining is also as important or even more important than hiring good employees. Some of the reasons are:

1) The company might spend a lot of money on the training and development of employees and once the employee leaves the company, the company not only suffers in terms of employee loss but also financial loss which was caused because of the wastage of training resources on the leaving employee.
2) When an employee leaves and his position is vacant, the company will need to hire someone new in his/her place. The new person will need to be trained or will take time to get to work on the same position. This wastes valuable company resources and lowers productivity of the company.

3) The employee who has been working for a company for a longer time knows the company culture and has accepted it to a great extent. But when this employee leaves and a new employee is hired in his place, it will take time for the new employee to get acquainted with the culture and norms of the organization.

4) When an employee leaves this does not only affect him but demoralizes other employees as well and gives an impression that people don't like to work for this company and the employees who are sticking around might be making a mistake.

Note: Solve these papers by yourself

www.vuaskari.com

This often urges other employees also to either look for better opportunities and they loose loyalty and commitment to the company.

5) The employee working for a company might have acquired good experience after a considerable amount of time working for the company and if he leaves then this experience can't be replaced. The company might hire some one with the same qualification but the experience that the leaving employee has will not be there.

Because of all the important reasons mentioned above, it is very important that a company not only attracts good employees but should also strive to retain them by making policies that foster long term commitment and loyalty.

Question No: 67 (Marks: 10)

What is flextime? What are the advantages of flextime from an employee's perspective and from management's perspective?

Answer : Flextime is a work arrangement where an employee works for the same core hours during the day but the arrangement of these hours or how he makes up these hours from the day is flexible. For example a company might have a policy for employees to work for eight hours every day and the company starts at 8.00 AM. So in flextime arrangement the employee might be given the discretion of working for eight hours but not necessarily from 8 AM. An employee might start for example at 10 AM and work up to 6 AM thereby completing eight hours of work and starting at his convenient time.
This is only one example of flextime. Other methods include flexible or compressed work weeks where the employee can work for more hours during some days and thereby reducing the total working days during the week. Others include job sharing , part time work arrangements and telecommuting.

Advantages from employee's perspective:

1) Flexible working hours will suit many people and they will be more satisfied with their work and will not have to look for other employment options.

2) Working husbands and wives can easily arrange work to take care of their children. For example the wife might arrange her working hours so that either she or the husband is always with the children.

3) If a company allows telecommuting for example then it can get more work force options because then those women can also work who need to be at home. Working from home can help these women earn money as well as attending to their family commitments.

4) Compressed working weeks might help those people who can work for a less number of days for a week for example four out of seven days and extend their working hours per day and then go to their families during the three days off in case their families live in some other area or away from their place of work.

5) There might be many people who would not work at all if flextime option was not available for example for college students who want to work part time because during the day they cannot work. So for these cases flextime will make more types of jobs available to them and they can easily work for example during the evenings and earn without affecting their education.

Advantages from employer's perspective

1) The biggest advantage from the employer's perspective is that he will get better productivity from employees working in flextime

2) The employees will be satisfied and hence the employer will not have to worry about boosting the morale of the employees or for employees leaving the company to find other jobs that suits them..

3) This is a very good method to retain employees because when employees get such a good option of flexible timing, they will not be tempted to leave the organization.

4) Using flextime the company can hire experts who will not be willing to work for example during the day maybe because they might be working with some other company. So this way the company can get the experts they need by allowing them to work as part-timers.

Question No: 68 (Marks: 10)

Sometimes data gathered from interview is biased. Explain different interviewing mistakes that can lessen the effectiveness of a job interview.

Answer :

Interview is a method of verbal communication and therefore is subjective. It depends a lot on the context under which the interview was conducted and also on the interviewer's skills as well his perceptions. As human interaction gets involved here, therefore the interview can become very subjective instead of being objective. A lot of issues related to human nature can be introduced during the interview which might make it biased. The biasness depends on many factors. These factors can lead to interviewing mistakes which adversely affects the effectiveness of the job interview.

Some of the mistakes that can lessen the effectiveness of the job interview are :

1) Selective perception: The selective perception of the interviewer might affect the interview. Different people perceive the same situation at the same time in different ways. This is due to their life experiences, education, values and personality. So based on these they might interpret the same situation in different ways. This might create biasness in their judgment.

2) Projection: Some interviewers might have some qualities and they might value them a lot and might want to see the same qualities in the interviewee and if they don't see the same qualities, they will be biased in their interview.

3) Stereotyping : Stereotyping is the preset judgement a person makes based on the group to which the interviewee belongs. For example the interviewer might have a stereotype that women are not good for managerial positions so he might get biased into not giving good review in job interview to a woman who applied for the a management position.

4) Halo effect: Halo effect is when a person makes good or bad judgement based on just one quality. In this the interviewer might get biased based on just one quality and might give good reviews without paying attention to other good qualities or bad qualities that a person has. Similarly the same thing goes for a bad quality that the interviewer might see in the interviewee.

5) Similar to me effect :: In this the interviewer might try to find qualities in an interviewee which is similar to the interviewer. If he doesn't find any such quality he will be biased to not hire the job applicant. If on the other hand he sees such a quality then he will be biased to hire the job applicant without paying attention to other qualities needed for the job

6) Inadequate knowledge about the job: Some times the interviewer might not be well-versed with the exact requirements for a position for which he might be conducting the interview. For example an HR manager hiring for a technical job in the information technology department. As this is a completely technical field so the manager taking the interview might not be capable enough to do the

interview because of his limited knowledge of the field of computer sciences. In this case he will be biased to see human or communications skills more than the technical skills the job applicant has that are more important to the job than his human skills. Similarly the interviewer might be hiring for a non technical position but he might lack the knowledge of the exact requirements or specifications for the job opening.

7) Previous interviewee effect: If an interviewee is being interviewed immediately after a perceived good or bad interviewee then he will be judged against the previous interviewee. If the previous interviewee was perceived as very good by the interviewer then the next person will have difficulties in making a good impression on the interviewer and if the previous interviewee was perceived as bad then the next one will be considered good even if he is just slightly better than the previous. So this creates a bias on the part of the interviewer and is one of the mistakes in job interviews which lessens its effectiveness.

8) Preconceived notion about the interviewee : If the interviewer has already heard about the job interviewee before the interview from some other sources whether it is something good or bad about him, the interviewer will already have made an impression about the interviewee even before the interview begins. So this can introduce a good or a bad bias on the part of the interviewer and lessens the effectiveness of the interview.

9) Emotional state of the interviewer : As interview is a human interaction so it is prone to human emotions. If the interviewer is not emotionally stable then it might bias the interview. For example an interviewer sitting down to take the interview has just heard some bad news before the start of the interview sessions and that might affect his judgement in reviewing the right person for the job.

All the factors mentioned above are mistakes that are involved in the interview process and that might affect the effectiveness of the job interview. There are many techniques to cope with these problems and make the interview as objective as possible so that exactly the right person can be hired for the right job.

Question No: 66 (Marks: 5)

Discuss why reward power is the easiest base of power to use.

The opposite of coercive power is reward power.

People get motivation when they get positive benefits; therefore, one who can distribute rewards they view them as valuable.

If we can give someone something of positive value or remove something of negative value, we have reward power over that person.

These rewards could of different types depending upon the how the person value these rewards

• Coercive power and reward power opposite of each other.

If we can remove something of positive value from someone or give something of negative value upon him then we have coercive power over that person.

Being an agent of change we like to proceed

Question No: 67 (Marks: 10)

What factors provoke the organizational change; as being the initiator of such change how will you proceed?

Organizational change is the process to take an organization away from its present state and toward some future state to increase its effectiveness. Due to changing nature of our environment its necessary to keeping changing organizational strategies to adjust with environment.

Force like economic, Policies , diversity , competitive forces keep changing with the passage of time and an organization is continuously interacting with these forces.

So its become necessity for the organization to change to handle those external changes.

Managers are the primary change agents in most organizations.

There are two type of forces of change

Internal and external

External foces : economics, Technology, social and Political forces

Internal : company crises, effectiveness of decision making,

www.vuaskari.com

During the change we face the different type of internal resistance.

Will try to over com the resistance by

Education and communication: we can reduc resistance by provide more information about the change and giving positive view of that change

Manipulation and cooptation:

Twisting and distorting facts to make them appear more attractive, and hide undesirable information, and creating false rumors to get employees to accept a change

Support and Training Employee counseling is very powerful tool to get support, New-skills training, or a short paid leave also can facilitate adjustment. Only draw back of it is, time-consuming, expensive, implementation offers no guarantee of success.

Negotiation Negotiation as a tactic may be necessary when resistance is from powerful source.

Coercion we can use threats of transfer, loss of promotions, negative performance Evaluations, and a poor letter of recommendation

Question No: 68 (Marks: 10)

Which bases of power are more effective, also explain how these bases can be used productively.?

Power :

Power refers to a capacity that A has to influence the behavior of B, so that B acts in accordance with A's wishes

Referent Power:

Referent power is based on identification with a person who has desirable resources or personal qualities.

If I like, respect and admire you, you can exercise power on me because I want to please you. It helps explain, for instance why celebrities are paid so high to introduce products in commercial Marketing. These celebrities has referent power.

Expert power

Expert power is influence as a result of expertise or special skill or knowledge.

As jobs become more specialized we become increasingly dependent on experts to achieve goals. Like doctors have expert power what prescription or advice they give they exercise their expert power.

Most of us follow their advice that our they gives us.

you should also recognize that computer specialists are able to wield power as a result of their expertise. Expertise has become one of the most powerful sources of influence as the world has become more technologically oriented.

Legitimate Power: in organization most frequent access to one or more of the power bases is structural position. This is called legitimate power. It represents the formal authority to control and use organizational resources.

It include reward and coercive power. Legitimate power, is border than the power to coerce and reward. Specifically, it includes acceptance by members in an organization of the authority of a position. School principals, CEO of company are some of example of legitimate power.

Charismatic Power:

• Is an extension of referent power. An individual's personality and interpersonal style make others to follow because they can articulate attractive visions.

Holder of this kind of power , take personal risks, demonstrate follower sensitivity.

Coercive Power:

Base of coercive power is dependent on fear or threat of application of physical pain or generate the fear.

In the organizationa, A has coercive power over B if A can dismiss, suspend, or demote B

Reward Power:

The opposite of coercive power is reward power. People comply because doing so produces positive benefits; therefore, one who can distribute rewards that others view as valuable. These rewards can be anything depending upon the person how much that reward is valuable for him.

I think Reward power is more powerful because you can give reward to person depending up on that how much they value that reward. Like in organization if you wanted to get something done and your subordinate know that their work will be given a proper reward then he/she put his best to give output by keep his reward in mind

Zeus Industries sells satellite television systems. In the past, the company has been highly successful, and the senior management has created special perks and lavish offices for themselves. Other employees do not have access to these perks, and their facilities are non-descript. Recently, the company invested heavily in one of the many new technologies available. Employees tell senior management that this investment was the right choice, but sales keep decreasing. Some sales employees have also given incorrect information to suppliers, even though the company has held numerous intensive training sessions to keep sales personnel apprised of changes in the industry. The company has also received low customer service ratings from recent consumer surveys. These surveys indicate that customers are frustrated with the specialized technical knowledge necessary to operate their satellite systems.

The mistakes committed by the sales staff suggest that sales personnel are probably experiencing which of the following as a result of their intensive training?
A) filtering
B) lack of feedback
C) information overload
D) defensiveness
E) selective perception

Question No: 66 (Marks: 5)

Discuss why reward power is the easiest base of power to use.

The opposite of coercive power is reward power.

People get motivation when they get positive benefits; therefore, one who can distribute rewards they view them as valuable.

If we can give someone something of positive value or remove something of negative value, we have reward power over that person.

VU Experts

These rewards could of different types depending upon the how the person value these rewards

• Coercive power and reward power opposite of each other.

If we can remove something of positive value from someone or give something of negative value upon him then we have coercive power over that person.

Being an agent of change we like to proceed

Question No: 67 (Marks: 10)

What factors provoke the organizational change; as being the initiator of such change how will you proceed?

Organizational change is the process to take an organization away from its present state and toward some future state to increase its effectiveness. Due to changing nature of our environment its necessary to keeping changing organizational strategies to adjust with environment.

Force like economic, Policies , diversity , competitive forces keep changing with the passage of time and an organization is continuously interacting with these forces.

So its become necessity for the organization to change to handle those external changes.

Managers are the primary change agents in most organizations.

There are two type of forces of change

Internal and external

External foces : economics, Technology, social and Political forces

Internal : company crises, effectiveness of decision making,

VU Experts

During the change we face the different type of internal resistance.

Will try to over com the resistance by

Education and communication: we can reduc resistance by provide more information about the change and giving positive view of that change

Manipulation and cooptation:

Twisting and distorting facts to make them appear more attractive, and hide undesirable information, and creating false rumors to get employees to accept a change

Support and Training Employee counseling is very powerful tool to get support, New-skills training, or a short paid leave also can facilitate adjustment. Only draw back of it is, time-consuming, expensive, implementation offers no guarantee of success.

Negotiation Negotiation as a tactic may be necessary when resistance is from powerful source.

Coercion we can use threats of transfer, loss of promotions, negative performance

Evaluations, and a poor letter of recommendation

Question No: 68 (Marks: 10)

Which bases of power are more effective, also explain how these bases can be used productively.?

Power :

Power refers to a capacity that A has to influence the behavior of B, so that B acts in accordance with A's wishes

Referent Power:

VU Experts

Referent power is based on identification with a person who has desirable resources or personal qualities.

If I like, respect and admire you, you can exercise power on me because I want to please you. It helps explain, for instance why celebrities are paid so high to introduce products in commercial Marketing. These celebrities has referent power.

Expert power

Expert power is influence as a result of expertise or special skill or knowledge.

As jobs become more specialized we become increasingly dependent on experts to achieve goals. Like doctors have expert power what prescription or advice they give they exercise their expert power.

Most of us follow their advice that our they gives us.

you should also recognize that computer specialists are able to wield power as a result of their expertise. Expertise has become one of the most powerful sources of influence as the world has become more technologically oriented.

Legitimate Power: in organization most frequent access to one or more of the power bases is structural position. This is called legitimate power. It represents the formal authority to control and use organizational resources.

It include reward and coercive power. Legitimate power, is border than the power to coerce and reward. Specifically, it includes acceptance by members in an organization of the authority of a position. School principals, CEO of company are some of example of legitimate power.

Charismatic Power:

• Is an extension of referent power. An individual's personality and interpersonal style make others to follow because they can articulate attractive visions.

VU Experts

Holder of this kind of power , take personal risks, demonstrate follower sensitivity.

Coercive Power:

Base of coercive power is dependent on fear or threat of application of physical pain or generate the fear.

In the organizationa, A has coercive power over B if A can dismiss, suspend, or demote

Reward Power:

The opposite of coercive power is reward power. People comply because doing so produces positive benefits; therefore, one who can distribute rewards that others view as valuable. These rewards can be anything depending upon the person how much that reward is valuable for him.

I think Reward power is more powerful because you can give reward to person depending up on that how much they value that reward. Like in organization if you wanted to get something done and your subordinate know that their work will be given a proper reward then he/she put his best to give output by keep his reward in mind

Mr. Hassan, Professor of Mathematics, when he starts teaching about a concept, he praise any answer that is close to the right answer. This is an example of which of the following learning theory?

► Classical conditioning

► Operant conditioning

► Social learning

► Contemporary theory

Operant conditioning where there is reinforcement of the behavior by a reward or a punishment. The theory of operant conditioning was developed by B.F. Skinner and is known as Radical Behaviorism. The word 'operant' refers to the way in which behavior 'operates on the environment'. Briefly, a behavior may result either in reinforcement, which increases the likelihood of the behavior recurring, or punishment, which decreases the likelihood of the behavior recurring. It is important to note that, a punishment is not considered to be applicable if it does not result in the reduction of the behavior, and so the terms punishment and reinforcement are determined as a result of the actions. Within this framework, behaviorists are particularly interested in measurable changes in behavior.

What continuum in the two-factor theory is made up of the hygiene factors?

► No dissatisfaction to dissatisfaction

► No dissatisfaction to satisfaction

► Satisfaction to no satisfaction

► Satisfaction to dissatisfaction

According to Herzberg, the factors that led to job satisfaction were separate and distinct from those that led to job dissatisfaction. Therefore, managers who sought to eliminate factors that created job dissatisfaction could bring about workplace harmony but not necessarily motivation. Because they don't motivate employees, the extrinsic factors that create job dissatisfaction were called hygiene factors. When these factors are adequate, people will not be dissatisfied, but they will not be satisfied (or motivated) either. To motivate people on their jobs, Herzberg suggested emphasizing motivators, the intrinsic factors that increase job satisfaction.

Question No: 65 (Marks: 3)

How can charismatic leadership hurt an organization?

Answer :

A charismatic leader is one who might not have legitimate authority over the followers but followers respect him for his charisma, knowledge, expertise and his vision.

Charismatic leaders can hurt an organization because their followers might go against the legitimate chain of command of the organization to follow the leader. As it is not necessary for the charismatic leader to have legitimate authority therefore he might not follow the proper chain of command. This creates the problem of unity of command. People will follow two managers. One will be their manager according to the company hierarchy or structure and one will be the leader. This might create people-role conflict for employees. This affects the organization in a negative way and hurt the organization.

Question No: 66 (Marks: 5)

"As important as attracting good employees is, it is just as important to retain them". How you can justify this statement.

Answer : Employees are the biggest assets for an organization. They are the real distinctive competency of an organization. The organizations who pay heed to this fact are the most successful ones. Technology and other resources that a successful organization holds can be acquired by other organizations as well but motivated, expert and skilled employees that one firm has cannot be duplicated easily by other firms. That is the main reason competing firms try to buy out employees from their rivals in an attempt to gain the distinctive competencies that the rival holds because of these employees.

Therefore for an organization to be successful, it should not only attract or hire good employees but it should also retain them. There are a number of reasons why retaining is also as important or even more important than hiring good employees. Some of the reasons are:

VU Experts

1) The company might spend a lot of money on the training and development of employees and once the employee leaves the company, the company not only suffers in terms of employee loss but also financial loss which was caused because of the wastage of training resources on the leaving employee.

2) When an employee leaves and his position is vacant, the company will need to hire someone new in his/her place. The new person will need to be trained or will take time to get to work on the same position. This wastes valuable company resources and lowers productivity of the company.

3) The employee who has been working for a company for a longer time knows the company culture and has accepted it to a great extent. But when this employee leaves and a new employee is hired in his place, it will take time for the new employee to get acquainted with the culture and norms of the organization.

4) When an employee leaves this does not only affect him but demoralizes other employees as well and gives an impression that people don't like to work for this company and the employees who are sticking around might be making a mistake. This often urges other employees also to either look for better opportunities and they loose loyalty and commitment to the company.

5) The employee working for a company might have acquired good experience after a considerable amount of time working for the company and if he leaves then this experience can't be replaced. The company might hire some one with the same qualification but the experience that the leaving employee has will not be there.

Because of all the important reasons mentioned above, it is very important that a company not only attracts good employees but should also strive to retain them by making policies that foster long term commitment and loyalty.

Question No: 67 (Marks: 10)

What is flextime? What are the advantages of flextime from an employee's perspective and from management's perspective?

Answer : Flextime is a work arrangement where an employee works for the same core hours during the day but the arrangement of these hours or how he makes up these hours from the day is flexible. For example a company might have a policy for employees to work for eight hours every day and the company starts at 8.00 AM. So in flextime arrangement the employee might be given the discretion of working for eight hours but not necessarily from 8 AM. An employee might start for example at 10 AM and work up to 6 AM thereby completing eight hours of work and starting at his convenient time.

This is only one example of flextime. Other methods include flexible or compressed work weeks where the employee can work for more hours during some days and thereby reducing the total working days during the week. Others include job sharing , part time work arrangements and telecommuting.

Advantages from employee's perspective:

1) Flexible working hours will suit many people and they will be more satisfied with their work and will not have to look for other employment options.

2) Working husbands and wives can easily arrange work to take care of their children. For example the wife might arrange her working hours so that either she or the husband is always with the children.

3) If a company allows telecommuting for example then it can get more work force options because then those women can also work who need to be at home. Working from home can help these women earn money as well as attending to their family commitments.

4) Compressed working weeks might help those people who can work for a less number of days for a week for example four out of seven days and extend their working hours per day and then go to their families during the three days off in case their families live in some other area or away from their place of work.

5) There might be many people who would not work at all if flextime option was not available for example for college students who want to work part time because during the day they cannot work. So for these cases flextime will make more types of jobs available to them and they can easily work for example during the evenings and earn without affecting their education.

VU Experts

Advantages from employer's perspective

1) The biggest advantage from the employer's perspective is that he will get better productivity from employees working in flextime

2) The employees will be satisfied and hence the employer will not have to worry about boosting the morale of the employees or for employees leaving the company to find other jobs that suits them..

3) This is a very good method to retain employees because when employees get such a good option of flexible timing, they will not be tempted to leave the organization.

4) Using flextime the company can hire experts who will not be willing to work for example during the day maybe because they might be working with some other company. So this way the company can get the experts they need by allowing them to work as part-timers.

Question No: 68 (Marks: 10)

Sometimes data gathered from interview is biased. Explain different interviewing mistakes that can lessen the effectiveness of a job interview.

Answer :

Interview is a method of verbal communication and therefore is subjective. It depends a lot on the context under which the interview was conducted and also on the interviewer's skills as well his perceptions. As human interaction gets involved here, therefore the interview can become very subjective instead of being objective. A lot of issues related to human nature can be introduced during the interview which might make it biased. The biasness depends on many factors. These factors can lead to interviewing mistakes which adversely affects the effectiveness of the job interview.

Some of the mistakes that can lessen the effectiveness of the job interview are :

1) Selective perception: The selective perception of the interviewer might affect the interview. Different people perceive the same situation at the same time in different ways. This is due to their life experiences, education, values and personality. So based on these they might interpret the same situation in different ways. This might create biasness in their judgment.

2) Projection: Some interviewers might have some qualities and they might value them a lot and might want to see the same qualities in the interviewee and if they don't see the same qualities, they will be biased in their interview.

3) Stereotyping : Stereotyping is the preset judgement a person makes based on the group to which the interviewee belongs. For example the interviewer might have a stereotype that women are not good for managerial positions so he might get biased into not giving good review in job interview to a woman who applied for the a management position.

4) Halo effect: Halo effect is when a person makes good or bad judgement based on just one quality. In this the interviewer might get biased based on just one quality and might give good reviews without paying attention to other good qualities or bad qualities that a person has. Similarly the same thing goes for a bad quality that the interviewer might see in the interviewee.

5) Similar to me effect :: In this the interviewer might try to find qualities in an interviewee which is similar to the interviewer. If he doesn't find any such quality he will be biased to not hire the job applicant. If on the other hand he sees such a quality then he will be biased to hire the job applicant without paying attention to other qualities needed for the job

6) Inadequate knowledge about the job: Some times the interviewer might not be well-versed with the exact requirements for a position for which he might be conducting the interview. For example an HR manager hiring for a technical job in the information technology department. As this is a completely technical field so the manager taking the interview might not be capable enough to do the interview

because of his limited knowledge of the field of computer sciences. In this case he will be biased to see human or communications skills more than the technical skills the job applicant has that are more important to the job than his human skills. Similarly the interviewer might be hiring for a non technical position but he might lack the knowledge of the exact requirements or specifications for the job opening.

7) Previous interviewee effect: If an interviewee is being interviewed immediately after a perceived good or bad interviewee then he will be judged against the previous interviewee. If the previous interviewee was perceived as very good by the interviewer then the next person will have difficulties in making a good impression on the interviewer and if the previous interviewee was perceived as bad then the next one will be considered good even if he is just slightly better than the previous. So this creates a bias on the part of the interviewer and is one of the mistakes in job interviews which lessens its effectiveness.

8) Preconceived notion about the interviewee : If the interviewer has already heard about the job interviewee before the interview from some other sources whether it is something good or bad about him, the interviewer will already have made an impression about the interviewee even before the interview begins. So this can introduce a good or a bad bias on the part of the interviewer and lessens the effectiveness of the interview.

9) Emotional state of the interviewer : As interview is a human interaction so it is prone to human emotions. If the interviewer is not emotionally stable then it might bias the interview. For example an interviewer sitting down to take the interview has just heard some bad news before the start of the interview sessions and that might affect his judgement in reviewing the right person for the job.

All the factors mentioned above are mistakes that are involved in the interview process and that might affect the effectiveness of the job interview. There are many techniques to cope with these problems and make the interview as objective as possible so that exactly the right person can be hired for the right job.

Question No: 43 (Marks: 10)

Distinguish between the roles of mediator, arbitrator, conciliator, and consultant.

Consultant: The consultant works with the client in jointly diagnosing what processes need improvement. The consultant's expertise lies in diagnosis and developing a helping relationship.

Arbitrator: An arbitrator undertakes an awesome responsibility. He or she will be judge, jury, clerk, stenographic reporter and appellate review tribunal compressed into a single individual. When an arbitrator decides a case it is assumed that the arbitrator heard the evidence, understood it completely and applied the law and/or principles of justice and equity to achieve the correct result. The parties must have complete confidence in the arbitrator's fairness and integrity and in his or her ability to do all of these things.

How do the parties know that the person they selected has these attributes and will do these things? In classic arbitration they knew and trusted the individual. The arbitrator was the wise old man on the fishing boat dock, whom everyone knew, and who was trusted to know more about fish than anyone else. The fishermen were able to place complete confidence in him because they knew him intimately. Today we have gone to the opposite extreme. The arbitrator who is sufficiently close to a party to have instilled this type of confidence is for that very reason arguably disqualified. The arbitrator selected ideally has no relationships with any of the parties or their counsel. The parties must attempt to select the right person based in large part upon the information they can obtain from the potential arbitrator. The disclosure process has thus become the modern surrogate for the common knowledge of the marketplace.

Mediator: A mediator is a neutral third party who facilitates a negotiated solution by using reasoning and persuasion, suggesting alternatives, and the like.

Conciliator: The conciliator can contact and interview disputing parties over the telephone, provide information about the Residential Tenancies and Rooming Accommodation Act 2008, assist the parties in the exchange of information including relevant documents such as receipts, facilitate the resolution of disputes by sharing offers and suggesting options, provide a notice of unresolved dispute to enable an application to the tribunal for a hearing where a dispute remains unresolved.

Question No: 44 (Marks: 10)

What is flextime? What are the advantages of flextime from an employee's perspective and from management's perspective?

Flextime: Employees work during a common core time period each day but have discretion in forming their total workday from a flexible set of hours outside the core.

In today's competitive work place employers must remain attuned to the needs of their work force. Those that do will have a distinct advantage. One of the tools being used by U. S. firms to meet this objective is the use of flextime. The reason is simple: it is very popular from the employee's viewpoint. A recent survey showed that 78 percent of the respondents favored flexible work schedules so that they could spend more time with their families, even if it meant slower career advancement.

The concept of flextime refers to a variety of flexible arrangements including unconventional hours, part-time work, job sharing, leaves of absence and working at home. From a company's perspective, allowing employees to work fewer and more pliable hours is a powerful way to attract and retain top caliber people.

From the employee's perspective, having flexible work arrangements gives one a greater sense of empowerment. Flextime gives many a stronger feeling that their company trusts them. Additionally, in these times of dual-career parents, it helps parents raise their children more responsibly. It also turns out that professional who have such arrangements are fiercely loyal to their employers

Survey feedback is an organizational development technique for bringing change. Discuss.

Survey feedback

One tool for assessing attitudes held by organizational members, identifying discrepancies among member perceptions, and solving these differences is the survey feedback approach. Everyone can participate, but of key importance is the organizational “family.” A questionnaire is usually completed by all members in the organization or unit. Organization members may be asked to suggest questions or may be interviewed. The questionnaire asks for perceptions and attitudes on a broad range of topics. The data from this questionnaire are tabulated with data pertaining to an individual’s specific “family” and to the entire organization and distributed to employees. These data then become the springboard for identifying problems and clarifying issues. Particular attention is given to encouraging discussion and ensuring that discussions focus on issues and ideas and not on attacking individuals. Finally, group discussion in the survey feedback approach should result in members identifying possible implications of the questionnaire’s findings.

42) Rater Errors comprised of the following EXCEPT:

Select correct option:

a) Central Tendency
b) Leniency

c) Mis-perception (Pgae No. 50)

d) Harshness

Rater Errors

Sometimes individuals make similar judgments, even though job performance is varied. Some supervisors are overly harsh in appraisals, whereas others are overly lenient. Others rate everyone as average. One effect is that high performers do not receive the rewards they deserve and low performers do not improve performance.

Biases make it difficult to compare employees rated by different supervisors. Should an employee with a good performance rating from a lenient supervisor be promoted over an employee with a poor rating from a harsh supervisor?

• Leniency – The tendency to perceive the job performance of ratees as especially good.
• Harshness – The tendency to perceive the job performance of ratees as especially ineffective.
• Central tendency – The tendency to assign most ratees to middle-range job performance categories.

Question No: 65 (Marks: 3)

How can charismatic leadership hurt an organization?

Answer :

A charismatic leader is one who might not have legitimate authority over the followers but followers respect him for his charisma, knowledge, expertise and his vision.

Charismatic leaders can hurt an organization because their followers might go against the legitimate chain of command of the organization to follow the leader. As it is not necessary for the charismatic leader to have legitimate authority therefore he might not follow the proper chain of command. This creates the problem of unity of command. People will follow two managers. One will be their manager according to the company hierarchy or structure and one will be the leader. This might create people-role conflict for employees. This affects the organization in a negative way and hurt the organization.

Question No: 66 (Marks: 5)

"As important as attracting good employees is, it is just as important to retain them". How you can justify this statement.

Answer : Employees are the biggest assets for an organization. They are the real distinctive competency of an organization. The organizations who pay heed to this fact are the most successful ones. Technology and other resources that a successful organization holds can be acquired by other organizations as well but motivated, expert and skilled employees that one firm has cannot be duplicated easily by other firms. That is the main reason competing firms try to buy out employees from their rivals in an attempt to gain the distinctive competencies that the rival holds because of these employees.

Therefore for an organization to be successful, it should not only attract or hire good employees but it should also retain them. There are a number of reasons why retaining is also as important or even more important than hiring good employees. Some of the reasons are:

1) The company might spend a lot of money on the training and development of employees and once the employee leaves the company, the company not only

suffers in terms of employee loss but also financial loss which was caused because of the wastage of training resources on the leaving employee.

2) When an employee leaves and his position is vacant, the company will need to hire someone new in his/her place. The new person will need to be trained or will take time to get to work on the same position. This wastes valuable company resources and lowers productivity of the company.

3) The employee who has been working for a company for a longer time knows the company culture and has accepted it to a great extent. But when this employee leaves and a new employee is hired in his place, it will take time for the new employee to get acquainted with the culture and norms of the organization.

4) When an employee leaves this does not only affect him but demoralizes other employees as well and gives an impression that people don't like to work for this company and the employees who are sticking around might be making a mistake. This often urges other employees also to either look for better opportunities and they loose loyalty and commitment to the company.

5) The employee working for a company might have acquired good experience after a considerable amount of time working for the company and if he leaves then this experience can't be replaced. The company might hire some one with the same qualification but the experience that the leaving employee has will not be there.

Because of all the important reasons mentioned above, it is very important that a company not only attracts good employees but should also strive to retain them by making policies that foster long term commitment and loyalty.

Question No: 67 (Marks: 10)

What is flextime? What are the advantages of flextime from an employee's perspective and from management's perspective?

Answer : Flextime is a work arrangement where an employee works for the same core hours during the day but the arrangement of these hours or how he makes up these hours from the day is flexible. For example a company might have a policy for employees to work for eight hours every day and the company starts at 8.00 AM. So in flextime arrangement the employee might be given the discretion of working for eight hours but not necessarily from 8 AM. An employee might start for example at 10 AM and work up to 6 AM thereby completing eight hours of work and starting at his convenient time.
This is only one example of flextime. Other methods include flexible or compressed work weeks where the employee can work for more hours during some days and thereby reducing the total working days during the week. Others include job sharing , part time work arrangements and telecommuting.

Advantages from employee's perspective:

1) Flexible working hours will suit many people and they will be more satisfied with their work and will not have to look for other employment options.

2) Working husbands and wives can easily arrange work to take care of their children. For example the wife might arrange her working hours so that either she or the husband is always with the children.

3) If a company allows telecommuting for example then it can get more work force options because then those women can also work who need to be at home. Working from home can help these women earn money as well as attending to their family commitments.

4) Compressed working weeks might help those people who can work for a less number of days for a week for example four out of seven days and extend their working hours per day and then go to their families during the three days off in case their families live in some other area or away from their place of work.

5) There might be many people who would not work at all if flextime option was not available for example for college students who want to work part time because during the day they cannot work. So for these cases flextime will make more types of jobs available to them and they can easily work for example during the evenings and earn without affecting their education.

Advantages from employer's perspective

1) The biggest advantage from the employer's perspective is that he will get better productivity from employees working in flextime

www.vu786.com

3) This is a very good method to retain employees because when employees get such a good option of flexible timing, they will not be tempted to leave the organization.

4) Using flextime the company can hire experts who will not be willing to work for example during the day maybe because they might be working with some other company. So this way the company can get the experts they need by allowing them to work as part-timers.

Question No: 68 (Marks: 10)

Sometimes data gathered from interview is biased. Explain different interviewing mistakes that can lessen the effectiveness of a job interview.

Answer :

Interview is a method of verbal communication and therefore is subjective. It depends a lot on the context under which the interview was conducted and also on the interviewer's skills as well his perceptions. As human interaction gets involved here, therefore the interview can become very subjective instead of being objective. A lot of issues related to human nature can be introduced during the interview which might make it biased. The biasness depends on many factors. These factors can lead to interviewing mistakes which adversely affects the effectiveness of the job interview.

Some of the mistakes that can lessen the effectiveness of the job interview are :

1) Selective perception: The selective perception of the interviewer might affect the interview. Different people perceive the same situation at the same time in different ways. This is due to their life experiences, education, values and personality. So based on these they might interpret the same situation in different ways. This might create biasness in their judgment.

2) Projection: Some interviewers might have some qualities and they might value them a lot and might want to see the same qualities in the interviewee and if they don't see the same qualities, they will be biased in their interview.

3) Stereotyping : Stereotyping is the preset judgement a person makes based on the group to which the interviewee belongs. For example the interviewer might have a stereotype that women are not good for managerial positions so he might get

biased into not giving good review in job interview to a woman who applied for the a management position.

4) Halo effect: Halo effect is when a person makes good or bad judgement based on just one quality. In this the interviewer might get biased based on just one quality and might give good reviews without paying attention to other good qualities or bad qualities that a person has. Similarly the same thing goes for a bad quality that the interviewer might see in the interviewee.

5) Similar to me effect :: In this the interviewer might try to find qualities in an interviewee which is similar to the interviewer. If he doesn't find any such quality he will be biased to not hire the job applicant. If on the other hand he sees such a quality then he will be biased to hire the job applicant without paying attention to other qualities needed for the job

6) Inadequate knowledge about the job: Some times the interviewer might not be well-versed with the exact requirements for a position for which he might be conducting the interview. For example an HR manager hiring for a technical job in the information technology department. As this is a completely technical field so the manager taking the interview might not be capable enough to do the interview because of his limited knowledge of the field of computer sciences. In this case he will be biased to see human or communications skills more than the technical skills the job applicant has that are more important to the job than his human skills. Similarly the interviewer might be hiring for a non technical position but he might lack the knowledge of the exact requirements or specifications for the job opening.

7) Previous interviewee effect: If an interviewee is being interviewed immediately after a perceived good or bad interviewee then he will be judged against the previous interviewee. If the previous interviewee was perceived as very good by the interviewer then the next person will have difficulties in making a good impression on the interviewer and if the previous interviewee was perceived as bad then the next one will be considered good even if he is just slightly better than the previous. So this creates a bias on the part of the interviewer and is one of the mistakes in job interviews which lessens its effectiveness.

8) Preconceived notion about the interviewee : If the interviewer has already heard about the job interviewee before the interview from some other sources

whether it is something good or bad about him, the interviewer will already have made an impression about the interviewee even before the interview begins. So this can introduce a good or a bad bias on the part of the interviewer and lessens the effectiveness of the interview.

9) Emotional state of the interviewer : As interview is a human interaction so it is prone to human emotions. If the interviewer is not emotionally stable then it might bias the interview. For example an interviewer sitting down to take the interview has just heard some bad news before the start of the interview sessions and that might affect his judgement in reviewing the right person for the job.

All the factors mentioned above are mistakes that are involved in the interview process and that might affect the effectiveness of the job interview. There are many techniques to cope with these problems and make the interview as objective as possible so that exactly the right person can be hired for the right job.

Question No: 41 (Marks: 5)

What purposes do performance evaluations serve in organizations?

Performance evaluations have good effect on organizations. An employee's performance appraisal is very much dependent on the perceptual process. Although the appraisal can be objective, many jobs are evaluated in subjective terms. Subjective measures are, by definition, judgmental. To the degree that managers use subjective measures in appraising employees, what the evaluator perceives to be good or bad employee characteristics or behaviors will significantly influence the outcome of the appraisal.

Question No: 43 (Marks: 10)

Distinguish between the roles of mediator, arbitrator, conciliator, and consultant.

www.vu786.com

Consultant: The consultant works with the client in jointly diagnosing what processes need improvement. The consultant's expertise lies in diagnosis and developing a helping relationship.

Arbitrator: An arbitrator undertakes an awesome responsibility. He or she will be judge, jury, clerk, stenographic reporter and appellate review tribunal compressed into a single individual. When an arbitrator decides a case it is assumed that the arbitrator heard the evidence, understood it completely and applied the law and/or principles of justice and equity to achieve the correct result. The parties must have complete confidence in the arbitrator's fairness and integrity and in his or her ability to do all of these things. How do the parties know that the person they selected has these attributes and will do these things? In classic arbitration they knew and trusted the individual. The arbitrator was the wise old man on the fishing boat dock, whom everyone knew, and who was trusted to know more about fish than anyone else. The fishermen were able to place complete confidence in him because they knew him intimately. Today we have gone to the opposite extreme. The arbitrator who is sufficiently close to a party to have instilled this type of confidence is for that very reason arguably disqualified. The arbitrator selected ideally has no relationships with any of the parties or their counsel. The parties must attempt to select the right person based in large part upon the information they can obtain from the potential arbitrator. The disclosure process has thus become the modern surrogate for the common knowledge of the marketplace.

Mediator: A mediator is a neutral third party who facilitates a negotiated solution by using reasoning and persuasion, suggesting alternatives, and the like.
Conciliator: The conciliator can contact and interview disputing parties over the telephone, provide information about the Residential Tenancies and Rooming Accommodation Act 2008, assist the parties in the exchange of information including relevant documents such as receipts, facilitate the resolution of disputes by sharing offers and suggesting options, provide a notice of unresolved dispute to enable an application to the tribunal for a hearing where a dispute remains unresolved.

Question No: 44 (Marks: 10)

What is flextime? What are the advantages of flextime from an employee's perspective and from management's perspective?

Flextime: Employees work during a common core time period each day but have discretion in forming their total workday from a flexible set of hours outside the core.

In today's competitive work place employers must remain attuned to the needs of their work force. Those that do will have a distinct advantage. One of the tools being used by U. S. firms to meet this objective is the use of flextime. The reason is simple: it is very popular from the employee's viewpoint. A recent survey showed that 78 percent of the respondents favored flexible work schedules so that they could spend more time with their families, even if it meant slower career advancement.

The concept of flextime refers to a variety of flexible arrangements including unconventional hours, part-time work, job sharing, leaves of absence and working at home. From a company's perspective, allowing employees to work fewer and more pliable hours is a powerful way to attract and retain top caliber people.

From the employee's perspective, having flexible work arrangements gives one a greater sense of empowerment. Flextime gives many a stronger feeling that their company trusts them. Additionally, in these times of dual-career parents, it helps parents raise their children more responsibly. It also turns out that professional who have such arrangements are fiercely loyal to their employers

Survey feedback is an organizational development technique for bringing change. Discuss.

Survey feedback

One tool for assessing attitudes held by organizational members, identifying discrepancies among member perceptions, and solving these differences is the survey feedback approach. Everyone can participate, but of key importance is the organizational "family." A questionnaire is usually completed by all members in the organization or unit. Organization members may be asked to suggest questions or may be interviewed. The questionnaire asks for perceptions and attitudes on a broad range of topics. The data from this questionnaire are tabulated with data pertaining to an individual's specific "family" and to the entire organization and distributed to employees. These data then become the springboard for identifying problems and clarifying issues. Particular attention is given to encouraging discussion and ensuring that discussions focus on issues and ideas and not on attacking individuals. Finally, group discussion in the survey feedback approach should result in members identifying possible implications of the questionnaire's findings.

Question No: 68 (Marks: 10)

Today organizations are working in a dynamic environment where abrupt changes occur. How HR departments have adopted this change to survive in this environment? Explain with logical reasons.

These days market is going too fast and it is very difficult for HR department to retain the employee in the company for many years. Because of this some time HR made the changes in their policies in favor of company.

For example, these days HR has to give some benefits to employer to retain him in company like

Training
Job security
Extra benefits
High salary

These things become more important now a day because of competition in the market.

Initially company not give the transportation and medical to employees but due to change in market conditions now HR has to revive their policies and has to give theses facilities even that now HR announce the family medical insurance policy.

Question No: 66 (Marks: 5)

Discuss why reward power is the easiest base of power to use.

The opposite of coercive power is reward power.

People get motivation when they get positive benefits; therefore, one who can distribute rewards they view them as valuable.

If we can give someone something of positive value or remove something of negative value, we have reward power over that person.

VU Experts

These rewards could of different types depending upon the how the person value these rewards

• Coercive power and reward power opposite of each other.

If we can remove something of positive value from someone or give something of negative value upon him then we have coercive power over that person.

Being an agent of change we like to proceed

Question No: 67 (Marks: 10)

What factors provoke the organizational change; as being the initiator of such change how will you proceed?

Organizational change is the process to take an organization away from its present state and toward some future state to increase its effectiveness. Due to changing nature of our environment its necessary to keeping changing organizational strategies to adjust with environment.

Force like economic, Policies , diversity , competitive forces keep changing with the passage of time and an organization is continuously interacting with these forces.

So its become necessity for the organization to change to handle those external changes.

Managers are the primary change agents in most organizations.

There are two type of forces of change

Internal and external

External foces : economics, Technology, social and Political forces

Internal : company crises, effectiveness of decision making,

VU Experts

During the change we face the different type of internal resistance.

Will try to over com the resistance by

Education and communication: we can reduc resistance by provide more information about the change and giving positive view of that change

Manipulation and cooptation:

Twisting and distorting facts to make them appear more attractive, and hide undesirable information, and creating false rumors to get employees to accept a change

Support and Training Employee counseling is very powerful tool to get support, New-skills training, or a short paid leave also can facilitate adjustment. Only draw back of it is, time-consuming, expensive, implementation offers no guarantee of success.

Negotiation Negotiation as a tactic may be necessary when resistance is from powerful source.

Coercion we can use threats of transfer, loss of promotions, negative performance

Evaluations, and a poor letter of recommendation

Question No: 68 (Marks: 10)

Which bases of power are more effective, also explain how these bases can be used productively.?

Power :

Power refers to a capacity that A has to influence the behavior of B, so that B acts in accordance with A's wishes

Referent Power:

VU Experts

Referent power is based on identification with a person who has desirable resources or personal qualities.

If I like, respect and admire you, you can exercise power on me because I want to please you. It helps explain, for instance why celebrities are paid so high to introduce products in commercial Marketing. These celebrities has referent power.

Expert power

Expert power is influence as a result of expertise or special skill or knowledge.

As jobs become more specialized we become increasingly dependent on experts to achieve goals. Like doctors have expert power what prescription or advice they give they exercise their expert power.

Most of us follow their advice that our they gives us.

you should also recognize that computer specialists are able to wield power as a result of their expertise. Expertise has become one of the most powerful sources of influence as the world has become more technologically oriented.

Legitimate Power: in organization most frequent access to one or more of the power bases is structural position. This is called legitimate power. It represents the formal authority to control and use organizational resources.

It include reward and coercive power. Legitimate power, is border than the power to coerce and reward. Specifically, it includes acceptance by members in an organization of the authority of a position. School principals, CEO of company are some of example of legitimate power.

Charismatic Power:

• Is an extension of referent power. An individual's personality and interpersonal style make others to follow because they can articulate attractive visions.

VU Experts

Holder of this kind of power , take personal risks, demonstrate follower sensitivity.

Coercive Power:

Base of coercive power is dependent on fear or threat of application of physical pain or generate the fear.

In the organizationa, A has coercive power over B if A can dismiss, suspend, or demote

Reward Power:

The opposite of coercive power is reward power. People comply because doing so produces positive benefits; therefore, one who can distribute rewards that others view as valuable. These rewards can be anything depending upon the person how much that reward is valuable for him.

I think Reward power is more powerful because you can give reward to person depending up on that how much they value that reward. Like in organization if you wanted to get something done and your subordinate know that their work will be given a proper reward then he/she put his best to give output by keep his reward in mind

Mr. Hassan, Professor of Mathematics, when he starts teaching about a concept, he praise any answer that is close to the right answer. This is an example of which of the following learning theory?

► Classical conditioning

► Operant conditioning

► Social learning

► Contemporary theory

Operant conditioning where there is reinforcement of the behavior by a reward or a punishment. The theory of operant conditioning was developed by B.F. Skinner and is known as Radical Behaviorism. The word 'operant' refers to the way in which behavior 'operates on the environment'. Briefly, a behavior may result either in reinforcement, which increases the likelihood of the behavior recurring, or punishment, which decreases the likelihood of the behavior recurring. It is important to note that, a punishment is not considered to be applicable if it does not result in the reduction of the behavior, and so the terms punishment and reinforcement are determined as a result of the actions. Within this framework, behaviorists are particularly interested in measurable changes in behavior.

What continuum in the two-factor theory is made up of the hygiene factors?

► No dissatisfaction to dissatisfaction

► No dissatisfaction to satisfaction

► Satisfaction to no satisfaction

► Satisfaction to dissatisfaction

According to Herzberg, the factors that led to job satisfaction were separate and distinct from those that led to job dissatisfaction. Therefore, managers who sought to eliminate factors that created job dissatisfaction could bring about workplace harmony but not necessarily motivation. Because they don't motivate employees, the extrinsic factors that create job dissatisfaction were called hygiene factors. When these factors are adequate, people will not be dissatisfied, but they will not be satisfied (or motivated) either. To motivate people on their jobs, Herzberg suggested emphasizing motivators, the intrinsic factors that increase job satisfaction.

Question No: 65 (Marks: 3)

How can charismatic leadership hurt an organization?

Answer :

A charismatic leader is one who might not have legitimate authority over the followers but followers respect him for his charisma, knowledge, expertise and his vision.

Charismatic leaders can hurt an organization because their followers might go against the legitimate chain of command of the organization to follow the leader. As it is not necessary for the charismatic leader to have legitimate authority therefore he might not follow the proper chain of command. This creates the problem of unity of command. People will follow two managers. One will be their manager according to the company hierarchy or structure and one will be the leader. This might create people-role conflict for employees. This affects the organization in a negative way and hurt the organization.

Question No: 66 (Marks: 5)

"As important as attracting good employees is, it is just as important to retain them". How you can justify this statement.

Answer : Employees are the biggest assets for an organization. They are the real distinctive competency of an organization. The organizations who pay heed to this fact are the most successful ones. Technology and other resources that a successful organization holds can be acquired by other organizations as well but motivated, expert and skilled employees that one firm has cannot be duplicated easily by other firms. That is the main reason competing firms try to buy out employees from their rivals in an attempt to gain the distinctive competencies that the rival holds because of these employees.

Therefore for an organization to be successful, it should not only attract or hire good employees but it should also retain them. There are a number of reasons why retaining is also as important or even more important than hiring good employees. Some of the reasons are:

VU Experts

1) The company might spend a lot of money on the training and development of employees and once the employee leaves the company, the company not only suffers in terms of employee loss but also financial loss which was caused because of the wastage of training resources on the leaving employee.

2) When an employee leaves and his position is vacant, the company will need to hire someone new in his/her place. The new person will need to be trained or will take time to get to work on the same position. This wastes valuable company resources and lowers productivity of the company.

3) The employee who has been working for a company for a longer time knows the company culture and has accepted it to a great extent. But when this employee leaves and a new employee is hired in his place, it will take time for the new employee to get acquainted with the culture and norms of the organization.

4) When an employee leaves this does not only affect him but demoralizes other employees as well and gives an impression that people don't like to work for this company and the employees who are sticking around might be making a mistake. This often urges other employees also to either look for better opportunities and they loose loyalty and commitment to the company.

5) The employee working for a company might have acquired good experience after a considerable amount of time working for the company and if he leaves then this experience can't be replaced. The company might hire some one with the same qualification but the experience that the leaving employee has will not be there.

Because of all the important reasons mentioned above, it is very important that a company not only attracts good employees but should also strive to retain them by making policies that foster long term commitment and loyalty.

Question No: 67 (Marks: 10)

What is flextime? What are the advantages of flextime from an employee's perspective and from management's perspective?

Answer : Flextime is a work arrangement where an employee works for the same core hours during the day but the arrangement of these hours or how he makes up these hours from the day is flexible. For example a company might have a policy for employees to work for eight hours every day and the company starts at 8.00 AM. So in flextime arrangement the employee might be given the discretion of working for eight hours but not necessarily from 8 AM. An employee might start for example at 10 AM and work up to 6 AM thereby completing eight hours of work and starting at his convenient time.

This is only one example of flextime. Other methods include flexible or compressed work weeks where the employee can work for more hours during some days and thereby reducing the total working days during the week. Others include job sharing , part time work arrangements and telecommuting.

Advantages from employee's perspective:

1) Flexible working hours will suit many people and they will be more satisfied with their work and will not have to look for other employment options.

2) Working husbands and wives can easily arrange work to take care of their children. For example the wife might arrange her working hours so that either she or the husband is always with the children.

3) If a company allows telecommuting for example then it can get more work force options because then those women can also work who need to be at home. Working from home can help these women earn money as well as attending to their family commitments.

4) Compressed working weeks might help those people who can work for a less number of days for a week for example four out of seven days and extend their working hours per day and then go to their families during the three days off in case their families live in some other area or away from their place of work.

5) There might be many people who would not work at all if flextime option was not available for example for college students who want to work part time because during the day they cannot work. So for these cases flextime will make more types of jobs available to them and they can easily work for example during the evenings and earn without affecting their education.

VU Experts

Advantages from employer's perspective

1) The biggest advantage from the employer's perspective is that he will get better productivity from employees working in flextime

2) The employees will be satisfied and hence the employer will not have to worry about boosting the morale of the employees or for employees leaving the company to find other jobs that suits them..

3) This is a very good method to retain employees because when employees get such a good option of flexible timing, they will not be tempted to leave the organization.

4) Using flextime the company can hire experts who will not be willing to work for example during the day maybe because they might be working with some other company. So this way the company can get the experts they need by allowing them to work as part-timers.

Question No: 68 (Marks: 10)

Sometimes data gathered from interview is biased. Explain different interviewing mistakes that can lessen the effectiveness of a job interview.

Answer :

Interview is a method of verbal communication and therefore is subjective. It depends a lot on the context under which the interview was conducted and also on the interviewer's skills as well his perceptions. As human interaction gets involved here, therefore the interview can become very subjective instead of being objective. A lot of issues related to human nature can be introduced during the interview which might make it biased. The biasness depends on many factors. These factors can lead to interviewing mistakes which adversely affects the effectiveness of the job interview.

Some of the mistakes that can lessen the effectiveness of the job interview are :

1) Selective perception: The selective perception of the interviewer might affect the interview. Different people perceive the same situation at the same time in different ways. This is due to their life experiences, education, values and personality. So based on these they might interpret the same situation in different ways. This might create biasness in their judgment.

2) Projection: Some interviewers might have some qualities and they might value them a lot and might want to see the same qualities in the interviewee and if they don't see the same qualities, they will be biased in their interview.

3) Stereotyping : Stereotyping is the preset judgement a person makes based on the group to which the interviewee belongs. For example the interviewer might have a stereotype that women are not good for managerial positions so he might get biased into not giving good review in job interview to a woman who applied for the a management position.

4) Halo effect: Halo effect is when a person makes good or bad judgement based on just one quality. In this the interviewer might get biased based on just one quality and might give good reviews without paying attention to other good qualities or bad qualities that a person has. Similarly the same thing goes for a bad quality that the interviewer might see in the interviewee.

5) Similar to me effect :: In this the interviewer might try to find qualities in an interviewee which is similar to the interviewer. If he doesn't find any such quality he will be biased to not hire the job applicant. If on the other hand he sees such a quality then he will be biased to hire the job applicant without paying attention to other qualities needed for the job

6) Inadequate knowledge about the job: Some times the interviewer might not be well-versed with the exact requirements for a position for which he might be conducting the interview. For example an HR manager hiring for a technical job in the information technology department. As this is a completely technical field so the manager taking the interview might not be capable enough to do the interview

because of his limited knowledge of the field of computer sciences. In this case he will be biased to see human or communications skills more than the technical skills the job applicant has that are more important to the job than his human skills. Similarly the interviewer might be hiring for a non technical position but he might lack the knowledge of the exact requirements or specifications for the job opening.

7) Previous interviewee effect: If an interviewee is being interviewed immediately after a perceived good or bad interviewee then he will be judged against the previous interviewee. If the previous interviewee was perceived as very good by the interviewer then the next person will have difficulties in making a good impression on the interviewer and if the previous interviewee was perceived as bad then the next one will be considered good even if he is just slightly better than the previous. So this creates a bias on the part of the interviewer and is one of the mistakes in job interviews which lessens its effectiveness.

8) Preconceived notion about the interviewee : If the interviewer has already heard about the job interviewee before the interview from some other sources whether it is something good or bad about him, the interviewer will already have made an impression about the interviewee even before the interview begins. So this can introduce a good or a bad bias on the part of the interviewer and lessens the effectiveness of the interview.

9) Emotional state of the interviewer : As interview is a human interaction so it is prone to human emotions. If the interviewer is not emotionally stable then it might bias the interview. For example an interviewer sitting down to take the interview has just heard some bad news before the start of the interview sessions and that might affect his judgement in reviewing the right person for the job.

All the factors mentioned above are mistakes that are involved in the interview process and that might affect the effectiveness of the job interview. There are many techniques to cope with these problems and make the interview as objective as possible so that exactly the right person can be hired for the right job.

Question No: 41 (Marks: 5)

What purposes do performance evaluations serve in organizations?

Performance evaluations have good effect on organizations. An employee's performance appraisal is very much dependent on the perceptual process. Although the appraisal can be objective, many jobs are evaluated in subjective terms. Subjective measures are, by definition, judgmental. To the degree that managers use subjective measures in appraising employees, what the evaluator perceives to be good or bad employee characteristics or behaviors will significantly influence the outcome of the appraisal.

Question No: 43 (Marks: 10)

Distinguish between the roles of mediator, arbitrator, conciliator, and consultant.

Consultant: The consultant works with the client in jointly diagnosing what processes need improvement. The consultant's expertise lies in diagnosis and developing a helping relationship.

Arbitrator: An arbitrator undertakes an awesome responsibility. He or she will be judge, jury, clerk, stenographic reporter and appellate review tribunal compressed into a single individual. When an arbitrator decides a case it is assumed that the arbitrator heard the evidence, understood it completely and applied the law and/or principles of justice and equity to achieve the correct result. The parties must have complete confidence in the arbitrator's fairness and integrity and in his or her ability to do all of these things.

How do the parties know that the person they selected has these attributes and will do these things? In classic arbitration they knew and trusted the individual. The arbitrator was the wise old man on the fishing boat dock, whom everyone knew, and who was trusted to know more about fish than anyone else. The fishermen were able to place complete confidence in him because they knew him intimately. Today we have gone to the opposite extreme. The arbitrator who is sufficiently close to a party to have instilled this type of confidence is for that very reason arguably disqualified. The arbitrator selected ideally has no relationships with any of the parties or their counsel. The parties must attempt to select the right person based in large part upon the information they can obtain from the potential arbitrator. The disclosure process has thus become the modern surrogate for the common knowledge of the marketplace.

Mediator: A mediator is a neutral third party who facilitates a negotiated solution by using reasoning and persuasion, suggesting alternatives, and the like.

Conciliator: The conciliator can contact and interview disputing parties over the telephone, provide information about the Residential Tenancies and Rooming Accommodation Act 2008, assist the parties in the exchange of information including relevant documents such as receipts, facilitate the resolution of disputes by sharing offers and suggesting options, provide a notice of unresolved dispute to enable an application to the tribunal for a hearing where a dispute remains unresolved.

Question No: 44 (Marks: 10)

What is flextime? What are the advantages of flextime from an employee's perspective and from management's perspective?

Flextime: Employees work during a common core time period each day but have discretion in forming their total workday from a flexible set of hours outside the core.

In today's competitive work place employers must remain attuned to the needs of their work force. Those that do will have a distinct advantage. One of the tools being used by U. S. firms to meet this objective is the use of flextime. The reason is simple: it is very popular from the employee's viewpoint. A recent survey showed that 78 percent of the respondents favored flexible work schedules so that they could spend more time with their families, even if it meant slower career advancement.

The concept of flextime refers to a variety of flexible arrangements including unconventional hours, part-time work, job sharing, leaves of absence and working at home. From a company's perspective, allowing employees to work fewer and more pliable hours is a powerful way to attract and retain top caliber people.

From the employee's perspective, having flexible work arrangements gives one a greater sense of empowerment. Flextime gives many a stronger feeling that their company trusts them. Additionally, in these times of dual-career parents, it helps parents raise their children more responsibly. It also turns out that professional who have such arrangements are fiercely loyal to their employers

Survey feedback is an organizational development technique for bringing change. Discuss.

Survey feedback

One tool for assessing attitudes held by organizational members, identifying discrepancies among member perceptions, and solving these differences is the survey feedback approach. Everyone can participate, but of key importance is the organizational “family.” A questionnaire is usually completed by all members in the organization or unit. Organization members may be asked to suggest questions or may be interviewed. The questionnaire asks for perceptions and attitudes on a broad range of topics. The data from this questionnaire are tabulated with data pertaining to an individual’s specific “family” and to the entire organization and distributed to employees. These data then become the springboard for identifying problems and clarifying issues. Particular attention is given to encouraging discussion and ensuring that discussions focus on issues and ideas and not on attacking individuals. Finally, group discussion in the survey feedback approach should result in members identifying possible implications of the questionnaire’s findings.

Question No: 41 (Marks: 10)

How does ERG theory differ from Maslow's hierarchy of needs?

Answer :

Abraham Maslow's theory of needs describes five levels of needs and from bottom to top order they are :

1) Physiological needs : These include basic needs of food, existence, shelter etc. This is the lowest level of needs in Maslow's hierarchy.

2) Safety needs :These include the needs for feeling safe and protected from environmental hazards.

3) Social needs : These include the need for belongingness and having social relationships

4) Esteem needs : These needs include the need for being recognized and having respect in society

5) Self actualization needs : This is the highest level of needs and means that a person reaches the full potential he is capable of reaching.

In contrast to this, Clayton Alderfer's ERG needs are three and they are :

1) Existence needs : The need for existence i.e food, shelter etc.

2) Relatedness needs : The need for having social relationships and being related to.

3) Growth needs : The needs for growth and achieving something and doing something good in life.

The major difference however between the two is that according to Maslow the lowest level needs starting from physiological needs will be more important for an individual to fulfill before he moves on to the next level of needs. This means that the needs at a next higher level will not be important for an individual until he completely or to a good extent satisfies his needs at the immediate lower level. Once the needs at the lower level are met completely or sufficiently they will no longer remain the source of motivation for the individual and he will move on to the next level up and will try to fulfill those needs and they will become the motivation for him. But according to Alderfer this was not the case. The needs priority for different people can be different. Some people might give more importance to the growth needs and will be motivated to behave in ways that satisfies their need for growth more than the satisfaction of the need for relatedness or existence.

This assumption of Maslow that the lower level needs should be fulfilled before the individual deems higher level needs as a source of motivation was the biggest flaw in the theory as different people have different

Question No: 41 (Marks: 10)

What are the common skills exhibited by an effective manager?

A skill is an ability to act in a way that allows a person to perform highly in her or his role. Managers need three types of skills:

1. Conceptual Skills
2. Human Skills
3. Technical Skills

1. Conceptual skills to analyze and diagnose a situation to distinguish between cause and effect;

2. Human skills to understand, work with, lead, and control the behavior of individuals and groups

3. Technical skills job-specific knowledge and techniques required to perform an organizational role.

Effective managers need all three types of skills—conceptual, human, and technical. For example, Entrepreneurs often are technically skilled but lack conceptual and human skills. Scientists who become managers have technical expertise, but low levels of human skills.

Management Skills

Robert Katz has identified three essential management skills: technical, human, and conceptual.

1. Technical Skills

• The ability to apply specialized knowledge or expertise. All jobs require some specialized expertise, and many people develop their technical skills on the job.

2. Human Skills

• The ability to work with, understand, and motivate other people, both individually and in groups, describes human skills. Many people are technically proficient but interpersonally incompetent

3. Conceptual Skills

1. The mental ability to analyze and diagnose complex situations

2. Decision making, for example, requires managers to spot problems, identify alternatives that can correct them, evaluate those alternatives, and select the best one.

Skills Exhibited by an Effective Manager

1. Clarifies goals and objectives for everyone involved

2. Encourages participation, upward communication, and suggestions

3. Plans and organizes for an orderly work flow

4. Has technical and administrative expertise to answer organization-related questions

5. Facilitates work through team building, training, coaching and support

6. Provides feedback honestly and constructively

7. Keeps things moving by relying on schedules, deadlines, and helpful reminder

8. Controls details without being over-bearing

9. Applies reasonable pressure for goal accomplishment

10. Empowers and delegates key duties to others while maintaining goal clarity and commitment

11. Recognizes good performance with rewards and positive reinforcement

Question No: 52 (Marks: 5)

Differentiate between job description and job specification.

Answer

Job description

The job description is a document that provides information regarding the tasks, duties, and responsibilities of the job. Job description takes on an even greater importance under the Americans with Disabilities Act because the description of essential job functions may be critical to a defense regarding reasonable accommodation.

1. Job Identification – contains the job title, the FLSA status, date, and possible space to indicate who approved the description, the location of the job, the immediate supervisor's title, salary and/or pay scale.
2. Job Summary – should describe the general nature of the job, and includes only its major functions or activities.
3. Relationships – occasionally a relationships statement is included. It shows the jobholders' relationships with others inside and outside the organization.
4. Responsibilities and Duties – The Department of Labor's Dictionary of Occupational Titles can be used for itemizing the job's duties and responsibilities.
5. Standards of Performance – states the standards the employee is expected to achieve under each of the job description's main duties and responsibilities.

Job specification

Minimum acceptable qualifications that a person should possess to perform the job are included in the job specification. Some of the items often included are requirements for education, experience, personality, and physical abilities.

Question No: 53 (Marks: 5)

When the organizations opt for the process reengineering?

Answer

Process Reengineering

1. Process reengineering is described as "considering how things would be done if you could start all over from scratch." It comes from the process of taking apart an electronics product and designing a better version.
2. Michael Hammer coined the term as applied to organizations. Reengineering means management should start with a clean sheet of paper—rethinking and redesigning those processes by which the organization creates value and does work, ridding itself of operations that have become antiquated in the computer age.

Three key elements:

• Identifying an organization's distinctive competencies, assessing core processes, and reorganizing horizontally by process

a. Distinctive competencies define what it is that the organization is more superior at delivering than its competition.

b. Superior store locations, a more efficient distribution system, higher-quality products, more knowledgeable sales personnel, or superior technical support

• Core processes transform materials, capital, information, and labor into products and services that the customer values.
a. These range from strategic planning to after-sales customer support; management can determine to what degree each adds value.
b. Process value analysis typically uncovers a whole lot of activities that add little value.
• Reengineering requires management to reorganize around horizontal processes.
a. This means cross-functional and self-managed teams
b. It means focusing on processes rather than functions.
c. One of the goals of reengineering is to minimize the necessary amount of management.
