

DANISH
HANIF

FINAL TERM

FOR LMS HANDLING: 0323-1731413

MCM301 Short Notes for Final term

LMS Handling Service Available

Contact: 0323-1731413

8/3/2023 10:14:43 PM

MCM301 Final term Subjective Question

By Danish Hanif

Question No 1

Organizing stage involves a careful outlining of the topic which is helpful for various reasons. Discuss those reasons.

Answer:

Careful outlining is helpful for several reasons: One, it improves the clarity of your message; Second, it saves writing time later (changes in outline are easy than in writing material); and Third, it enables to emphasize properly the various topics in the message (placing the most important at the beginning is more emphatic than in the middle)

1. Question No 2

Almost every customer who makes a claim is emotionally involved, therefore, the indirect method is usually the best approach for a refusal Discuss

Answer:

Refusing a claim

When refusing a claim, avoid language that might have a negative impact on the reader. Instead, demonstrate that you understand and have considered the complaint. The, even if the claim is unreasonable, rationally explain why you are refusing request. Remember, don't apologize and don't rely on company policy. End the letter on a respectful and action-oriented note.

2. Question 3

What factors are important to achieve balance between logical appeal and emotional appeal?

Answer:

Finding the right balance between the two types of appeals depends on four factors:

- The actions you wish to motivate
- Your reader's expectations,
- The degree of resistance you must overcome,
- How far you feel empowered to go in selling your point of view

3. Question 4

Discuss the characteristics and importance of conciseness for effective written communication.

Answer

Conciseness in written communication means expressing ideas clearly and briefly, without unnecessary words or details. It focuses on essential information, eliminates redundancy, and uses precise language. Being concise enhances clarity, saves time, keeps readers engaged, and showcases professionalism. Concise writing is adaptable for various contexts and improves retention of information. Its importance lies in delivering messages efficiently and effectively, making the exchange of information more streamlined and impactful.

4. Question 5

What is a functional resume?

Answer

A functional resume is a type of resume format that emphasizes a candidate's skills and accomplishments rather than a chronological work history. It groups skills into categories and showcases achievements to highlight the candidate's abilities and qualifications for a specific role.

5. Question 7

In an indirect approach for writing a disappointing news letter the disappointing news is deemphasized. Discuss.

Answer

In an indirect approach to writing a disappointing news letter, the negative message is downplayed or softened using techniques like positive language, buffers, and suggestions for alternatives. The main goal is to deliver the disappointing news in a more tactful manner, minimizing its impact and maintaining a positive relationship with the recipient.

6. Question 8

Write down the elements of the suggested plan for writing a direct-inquiry letter?

Answer

Elements of a suggested plan for writing a direct-inquiry letter:

Introduction: Begin with a polite greeting and introduce yourself or your company. Clearly state the purpose of the letter, which is to inquire about a specific topic or request information.

DANISH
HANIF

FINAL
TERM

FOR LMS HANDLING: 0323-1731413

Background Information: Provide context or a brief explanation of why you are making the inquiry. Include any relevant details that will help the recipient understand the reason for your inquiry.

Specific Inquiry: Clearly and concisely state the specific information you are seeking or the questions you want to be answered. Make sure your inquiries are well-organized and easy to understand.

Request for Response: Politely ask for a timely response to your inquiry and include your preferred method of contact (email, phone number, etc.).

Appreciation and Closing: Thank the recipient for their attention and consideration. End the letter with a courteous closing, such as "Sincerely" or "Thank you," followed by your name and contact information.

Follow-up: If necessary, mention that you will follow up on the inquiry at a specific time or date if you don't receive a response.

7. Question 5

Assume you are composing a letter to send to a client whose mobile phone credit account balance is due for four months. One of the broad topics you decide to discuss is the need for the client to pay the amount of the past-due balance. Organize the information that you should include in this letter.

Answer:

Dear [Client's Name],

I hope this letter finds you well. We appreciate your continued trust in our mobile phone services. However, we have noticed that your account is currently carrying a past-due balance for the past four months. We kindly request your immediate attention to this matter to ensure uninterrupted service.

Key Points to Discuss:

Account Status: Your mobile phone credit account indicates a past-due balance of [amount] for the months [months]. This balance requires immediate attention to avoid any service disruptions.

Payment Options: We offer various convenient payment methods, including online payments, bank transfers, and credit card payments. Please find the enclosed invoice for your reference.

Importance of Timely Payment: Timely payments are vital to maintain a seamless service experience. Regular payments enable us to continue providing top-notch services and invest in further enhancements.

Late Payment Charges: Please note that a late payment fee may apply to the outstanding balance. To avoid these charges, we encourage you to settle the amount promptly.

Assistance and Queries: If you have any questions or require assistance with your account, our customer support team is available to help you through the process.

Grace Period: We understand that unexpected circumstances may arise. If you are facing any challenges in making the payment, please reach out to us so that we can discuss possible solutions.

FINAL TERM

FOR LMS HANDLING: 0323-1731413

Future Communication: Moving forward, we request you to keep track of your account balance regularly and ensure timely payments to prevent similar situations.

We value your patronage and want to maintain a positive and hassle-free experience for you. Your prompt attention to this matter is highly appreciated. Should you need any clarification or assistance, feel free to contact us at [customer support number] or [customer support email].

Thank you for your understanding and cooperation. We look forward to resolving this matter together and continuing to serve you as a valued customer.

Best regards,

[Your Name]

[Your Title/Position]

[Company Name]

[Contact Information]

DANISH

HANIF

8. Question 6

The explanatory sections of direct request letters and indirect inquiry letters may not vary much from one another. Discuss.

Answer

You are correct; the explanatory sections of direct request letters and indirect inquiry letters share several similarities. Both types of letters aim to provide background information, context, and relevant details to support the main request or inquiry. Let's explore the similarities between the two:

Introduction: Both letters typically start with a courteous and professional salutation, followed by an introduction that establishes the purpose of the letter. In direct request letters, the writer directly states the request, while in indirect inquiry letters, the writer sets the stage for the inquiry without explicitly stating it at the beginning.

Background Information: Both letters provide background information to give the reader necessary context. In direct request letters, this background may explain the reason for the request and any relevant history. In indirect inquiry letters, the background sets the context for the inquiry and provides a basis for the questions asked.

Supporting Details: Both types of letters include supporting details to reinforce the request or inquiry. For direct request letters, these details may include specific reasons, benefits, or justifications for the request. In indirect inquiry letters, these details lead up to the inquiry, presenting evidence or events that prompt the need for information.

Polite Tone: Regardless of the type of letter, both direct requests and indirect inquiries maintain a polite and professional tone throughout the explanatory sections.

Clear Communication: Both letters strive to convey information in a clear and concise manner to avoid any confusion or misinterpretation.

Call to Action: In the explanatory sections of both letters, there is often a clear call to action. In direct request letters, this is the explicit request for the recipient to take a specific action. In indirect inquiry letters, the call to action may be implied, such as a request for information or clarification.

While both types of letters share these similarities in their explanatory sections, the main difference lies in their overall structure and the level of directness in the approach. In direct request letters, the primary request is stated explicitly and early in the letter. On the other hand, in indirect inquiry letters, the main inquiry is introduced subtly, often after providing background information to lead up to it. The intent is to be more tactful and diplomatic when seeking information in indirect inquiries.

9. Question 7

To write a successful résumé you need to convey seven qualities that employers seek. List down these qualities.

Answer

When writing a successful resume, it's essential to highlight seven qualities that employers commonly seek in candidates. These qualities demonstrate your suitability for the job and make you stand out as a potential candidate:

Relevant Skills and Qualifications: Showcase the skills and qualifications that align with the job requirements. This includes technical expertise, certifications, and any relevant training.

Work Experience: Highlight your previous work experience, emphasizing achievements and accomplishments that demonstrate your ability to contribute effectively to the role.

Adaptability: Employers value candidates who can adapt to different situations, handle challenges, and embrace change in a dynamic work environment.

Problem-Solving Skills: Demonstrate your ability to analyze problems and find innovative solutions. Showcase specific examples of how you tackled challenges in your previous roles.

Communication Skills: Strong written and verbal communication skills are essential in any role. Emphasize your ability to convey ideas clearly and collaborate effectively with team members and stakeholders.

Leadership Abilities: Even if you're not applying for a leadership role, employers value candidates who can take initiative, inspire others, and lead by example.

Teamwork and Collaboration: Demonstrate your capacity to work well with others, contributing positively to team dynamics and fostering a collaborative work environment.

By highlighting these seven qualities in your resume, you increase your chances of capturing the attention of employers and showcasing yourself as a well-rounded and desirable candidate. Remember to tailor your resume to each specific job application, focusing on the qualities most relevant to the position you're applying for.

10. Question 7

Self-concept is made up of two components, self-image, and self-esteem. On the basis of these two components, draw a picture of your own self concept.

Answer

Self-concept is the overall perception and understanding that an individual has of themselves. It is how they define themselves, including their beliefs, values, abilities, and personality traits. It consists of two main components:

Self-Image: This refers to how an individual perceives themselves in terms of physical appearance, characteristics, and attributes. It includes both internal (personality, abilities) and external (physical appearance, social roles) aspects. Self-image is influenced by how others perceive and treat the individual, as well as their own reflections and comparisons.

Self-Esteem: Self-esteem is the evaluative component of self-concept, relating to how much an individual values and respects themselves. It is the emotional aspect that reflects an individual's sense of self-worth and confidence. High self-esteem involves having a positive view of oneself, while low self-esteem is associated with negative self-perceptions and self-doubt.

The interaction between self-image and self-esteem is dynamic and interconnected. For instance, if an individual has a positive self-image, they are more likely to develop higher self-esteem, as they perceive themselves favorably. On the other hand, a negative self-image may lead to lower self-esteem, as they may struggle to value themselves.

It is important to note that self-concept is not fixed and can change over time. Experiences, interactions with others, achievements, and setbacks all contribute to shaping an individual's self-concept.

Creating a picture of your own self-concept involves introspection and reflection on how you perceive yourself, your strengths and weaknesses, and how you value yourself. It's a complex and personal process that requires deep self-awareness.

11. Question 8

The use of gestures in the verbal communication process can also add meaning to the message that the sender is transmitting. Explain.

Answer

Gestures in verbal communication enhance the message's meaning by adding nonverbal cues such as body language, facial expressions, and hand movements. They complement the spoken words, conveying emotions, emphasis, and intent, making the message more impactful and easier to understand. Gestures can reinforce or contradict the verbal message, providing valuable context and enriching the overall communication experience.

LONG Questions

12. Review of actual business correspondence reveals that special attention should be devoted to assuring the courtesy of business communication Discuss.

DANISH
HANIF

FINAL
TERM

FOR LMS HANDLING: 0323-1731413

13. What is the structure of an effective claim letter? Explain.
14. Discuss the role of semantics in developing credibility in a persuasive message.
15. Give an example of the Direct Method of outlining the topic of an effective business writing.
16. Choosing your ideas is an important step of the planning stage in the writing process. What techniques would you consider for choosing the best idea for your message in business writing?
17. In an indirect approach for writing a disappointing news letter the disappointing news is deemphasized. Discuss.
18. Discuss the characteristics and importance of conciseness for effective written communication.
19. Explain the importance of proper Rate of speech in effective oral communication.
20. Discuss the things that must be avoided when writing a buffer.
21. What are the guidelines for developing a persuasive message?
22. Give an example of the Direct Method of outlining the topic of an effective business writing
23. Elaborate through examples how disability bias can be avoided in a courteous writing?
24. What are the important elements that are used in the closing of a direct request letter?
25. What do you know about letters of congratulation? Explain.
26. What is the suggested plan for writing a sales letter?
27. Discuss the content components of order letters
28. What are the qualities that people with high emotional intelligence or emotional quotient (EQ) usually possess?
29. The thesis must not only be a declarative sentence, it should also be appropriate for the audience. What are the considerations that should be keep in mind to formulate an appropriate thesis?
30. To determine the appropriateness of the content in the writing process which questions would you keep in mind?

