The Manuscript Speech?

Manuscript means “handwritten or typed”. It is the most formal type of speech if you want to have control on your speech. It is also helpful when you are going to talk on sensitive subject and have precise control over words.

When giving a manuscript speech, a speaker reads from a prepared document or teleprompter. The speech is delivered exactly as it is presented in the text. Speaker has little chance to have eye contact with the audience. It limits to observe the audience and evaluate feedback and adjust your message accordingly.

You need to observe the following points if going to deliver Manuscript Speech:

- 1 Write a draft outlining the speech.
- 2 Type text in large letters with double or triple space with wide margins and single side of the page.
- 3 Read sentence by sentence and make adjustment.
- 4 Practice several times in front of mirror or friend to improve the delivery and to have better eye contact.
- 5 Mark the points where to stop, look at the audience and have nonverbal expression.

The Memorized Speech?

A memorized speech is a speech that is recited from memory rather than reading from cue cards or of notes. It is not highly recommended method. Unless if your are a trained speaker and delivering that speech again and again.

It is the poorest delivery of method. The speaker always focus on his memorized sentences and have fear to forget some points. In this mode speech is delivered at robotic tone.

The disadvantages of memorized speech are:

- 1 Difficult to memorize speech.
- 2 Possibility of forgetting speech or its important points.
- 3 Loses the conventional method to deliver the speech.

What is Impromptu Speech?

An impromptu speech means “Unexpected Speech”. This is a speech that has no advanced planning or practice. You don’t have time to analyze your audience, organize your speech. Speakers needs to be fast thinker to deliver his speech. It is common for impromptu speeches to be given at meetings, gatherings or events by prominent members.

Points to remember when delivering Impromptu Speech.

- Find out the topic hint and write them on a paper if you have time.
- Begin to apply the guidelines while walking or turning to face the audience.
- Find out an introductory sentence and ending line of your speech. Fill in the middle space with many points you can add according to the topic.
- Move directly to the topic, objective, & key points.

- Try to get the audience involved and always make eye-contact with them.
- Watch for feedback to know what to repeat or clarify.

What is Extemporaneous Speech?

Extemporaneous Speaking provides 30 minutes of preparation time, followed by a seven-minute speech. When preparation starts, speakers are offered three questions to answer.

The extemporaneous speech is a perfect balance. This speech involves the speaker's use of notes and some details to deliver a speech.

- A speaker uses note cards.
- Create speech by writing outline with key points.
- Following key words and points on the cards and explain in his words.
- No need to memorize to use fix words.
- Have time to practice before facing audience.
- Natural way of action with full interaction with audience.

What is Communication?

Communication is derived from the Latin word 'Communico' which means "To Share". Hence the word "communication" means: The Process of Sharing Information – ideas, dealings, thoughts, needs, etc. Communication is a process, which involves sharing of information between people through a continuous activity of speaking, listening, and understanding.

The Communication Process or Cycle

Communication is the only source in today's life for a successful person to send his message to others and get their feedback. For this we need to communicate effectively and learn how to Talk Well and Talk Wise. Problems arise when communication process fails. Basically the sender exchanges information with receiver through channels. Other person must be able to receive the information properly and understand as required by the sender.

Communication is a Process which means we need to follow certain rules with particular order to get results. The main steps involved in the communication process are Idea, Encoding, Channel, Decoding and Feedback.

1. Idea

Information exists in the mind of the sender (who is the source). This can be a concept, idea, information, or feelings. The sender first develops the idea in his brain and thinks what type of information wants to send. This is called the planning stage.

2. Encoding:

Encoding means converting the idea into message that can be communicated to others. The source initiates a message by encoding the idea (thought) in words or symbols and sends it to a receiver.

The message is the actual physical product from the source encoding. The message can be oral, written, symbolic or nonverbal. For example, when we talk, speech is the message; when we write, the words and sentences are the message; when we give gesture, movements of our arms and face expression is the message; when a child cries, the crying is the message. Remember message could be in one form or combination of more than one forms.

MAHMOOD RANA
MSc Mass Communication
Spring 2016

3. The Channel

Channel is the medium (link) of sending message to receiver. This link could be oral or written or gesture. It is the next step to take, once sender convert its idea/ thought into message.

The sender chooses the channel (method) suitable to convey message to the receiver according to his requirement. It is called transmission of message.

Some of the channels used for communication are:

Telephone/Video Phone: If feedback is required immediately and verbally.

Immediate transmission of written message (Emails, Scanned Copies)

Written Message: To make permanent record of the message (Letters)

Personal Meeting: If needs to persuade or negotiate (Face-to-Face)

Letters: For remote/wide area with personal touch. (Decisions, Information)

Contract: Written on paper for agreement. (Mutual Agreements)

4. Receiving

Once sender send the message the receiver must be able to receive the message properly. The message can be received in the form of writing, hearing, seeing, feeling (or combinations of some or all). If a message is verbal and the receiver is unable to listen it is no use.

5. Decoding

Once message received, the receiver interprets the message and try to understand according to his abilities. Thus act of understanding messages (Sound, Words, Gestures or Symbols) is called Decoding. Therefore, Listeners, Viewers and readers are called Decoders.

Effective communication takes place when sender and receiver both understand the same meaning.

Feedback

The final step of communication process is feedback. This feedback will tell the sender that the message is received and understood by the receiver with its importance. It increases the effectiveness of communication.

Feedback is a two-way communication. We can also say that while effective communication is taking place, the user and sender both are involved in Intra-Personal Communication and Inter-Personal Communication. Because at the same time they are sender as well as receiver. They are talking to themselves and others also.

Intra-personal (Intrapersonal) Communication

Intra-personal Communication means "talking to yourself". Intra means "within" and Intra-Personal "within the person". When we think, initiate, send and receive messages, we are talking to our self.

Interpersonal Communication

Interpersonal communication occurs when two (or a few) people talk face to face. An activity where we exchange views with each other's. Conversation, dialogue, interviews or group discussion are called Interpersonal Communication.

Each person also operates Intra-personally during the exchange.

An exchange with just two people involves at least three communication elements – the unique thinking done by each person and the overriding process created by the interpersonal exchange.

Behaviors determine the quality of interpersonal relationship. Behavior is the reflection of our thoughts, feelings and emotions. Motive controls our behavior.

How to access others behavior?

To access others behavior we made following errors:

- We assume that people would behave the same way in every situation.
- We try to put everyone into consistent categories.
- We are too influenced by first impressions.
- We are positively influenced where we have common characteristics with other people, e.g. same school, same function.
- We are too influenced by apparent negative points.
- We make constant errors because of our own limited frames of reference and self-concept.

NOISE

It is anything which interfere in the sending, receiving or interpreting of a message. Noise may be internal (poor language, misprinted text, or maybe a typographical mistake) or external (environment noise, fault in tools used for communication). It can hinder the development of thought, make encoding faulty, interruption in transmission or inaccurate reception.

What is Mediated Communication?

When two or few people communicate with each other with the use of information communication technology . It could be a use of mechanical or electrical channel to transmit or receive messages, e.g. telephone, radio, TV etc.

Drawback of Mediated Communication

- This level of communication occurs when two (or a few) people use some intermediate means for carrying their messages. They do not communicate face to face and thus do not have direct feedback.
- Mediated communication often uses a mechanical or electrical device to transmit or receive messages.
- Examples include the telephone, closed-circuit television, radio, radar, and the communication satellite.
- Mediated communication also occurs through letters, reports, forms, and interoffice memorandum.

What is Mass Communication?

Mass communication is the process by which a person, group of people or an organization create a message and transmit through some type of medium to a large, anonymous, unknown people regardless of their age, gender, culture boundaries.

What is Mass Media?

Mass Media are the mediums or media used for mass communication like newspaper, magazine, radio, television, Internet, Mobile, etc.

What basic characteristics distinguish nonverbal from verbal communication?

The foundation of any successful relationship is a good communication whether personal or professional. Nonverbal communication is an interpersonal communication through nonlinguistic means and in verbal communication we use words (in writing or spoken) to communicate.

Our nonverbal communication plays an important role—our facial expressions, gestures, eye contact, posture, and tone of voice—that speaks loudly. If there is contradiction, the nonverbal message expresses true feelings more accurately describe the person than its verbal message.

Define Citation?

A “citation” is the way you inform your readers that certain material in your work came from another source. It also inform your readers that from where this piece of information came, including:

- information about the author
- the title of the work
- Information about the Publishing Company that published the source
- Date of Publication of your information
- Reference to page numbers of the material you are borrowing

What is the body?

Before you select the body of your speech, you need to make outline your information. Once you select the topic, prepare your thesis and select the main points the necessary work is done.

Now create an outline. An outline serves three purposes for a speech:

1. Put your information in order
2. Work as a model to check your work.
3. Serves as a guide according which you deliver speech.

Next step is to select the specific organizational pattern. That will help create meaning for your audience.

- Spatial
- Chronological
- Topical
- Logical

MAHMOOD RANA

Spatial order

In this pattern items are arranged according to their physical position or relationship of your topic. For instance, if you are going to describe a building, you might start from roof to the basement or from basement to the roof. It means organizing the information while keeping its physical properties in mind.

If you are throwing light on a trend, or a movement, you might arrange your information describing the movement that it came from east to west or from north to south. For example:

Topic: Accents

Thesis: Accents are different throughout the country.

Spatial order:

- I. Accents in the East have certain characteristics.
- II. Accents in the West have certain characteristics.
- III. Accents in the North have certain characteristics.
- IV. Accents in the South have certain characteristics.

Chronological Order

The arrangement of things following one after another in time. Like Information about historical movement in a time sequence.

Topic: History of Lahore

Thesis: Rapid change in Lahore over the period of last ten years

- I. Major roads were reconstructed 10 years ago.
- II. Connected to the motorways five Five years ago.
- III. It is the busiest city of the country today.

Topical Order

Method of arranging information according to its main topics and subtopics, following by logical steps or categories.

Topic: Earth quake victims

Thesis: The Band-Aid Benefit Concert helped a lot towards the rehabilitation

- I. 1st main point discusses Band-Aid administration
- II. 2nd main point discusses performers
- III. 3rd main point discusses sponsors
- IV. 4th main point discusses audience

Logical order

This method is effective if you want to persuade your audience that a problem exists and you talk about its causes and possible solutions. At the end you propose the best solution.

There are several types of logical order:

- Problem/solution
- Cause/effect
- Deductive
- Inductive

MAHMOOD RANA
MSc Mass Communication
Spring 2016

The following steps are involved in problem/solution organization:

- I. Define the problem.
- II. Show the possible solutions.
- III. Propose the best solution to the problem.

Topic: Fad Diets

Thesis: Fad diets can be dangerous to your health.

- I. Fad dieting is a serious, widespread problem affecting people's health.
- II. There are alternative solutions to the problem of being overweight.
- III. People should seek professional medical advice in selecting the best way for them to lose weight.

Faulty Communication causes the most problems Discuss

Most of the problems arises in an organization are the result of failing to communicate. Faulty communication is the main reason to most of the problems and it create confusion and mislead people.

Communication is sharing information and ideas from one person to another person. It involves sender, encoding, channel, receiver and decoding. Effective communication occurs only when the receiver understands the message exactly as send by sender and the message delivered without any hindrance in the channel or noise.

Difference between informative speech and persuasive speech

Informative Speech

In Informative Speech you get time for research, organizing contents and practice your writing and speaking skills. A speaker learn how to find out the information, divide into sub categories, sort out relevant points clearly according to his topic. This practice will help him to become an effective "Speaker" during his speech and it will help him in his career also.

The main purpose is to provide audiences useful, interesting and uniques information which create interest and make positive impact on the audience as well as help you to succeed in your career.

Persuasive speech

Persuasion is a psychological process and it is designed to change the audience thinking or action. The ability to persuade others help speaker in his daily life from personal relations to his career development.

When you try to persuade your audience, basically your are advocating your point of view on certain topic in his favour or completely opposing. It is a challenging and complex process. Audience analysis must be considered in this process. You speech must be on realistic grounds. If your audience do not have firm believe on the subject, you will be able to convince most of them. If they oppose your idea, some of them must consider your thoughts.

A speaker must have a strategy to win the audience to his side.

Define Critical Listening

Critical listening is a form of listening when we want to make analysis, critical thinking and judgment. It is needed when suspect a biased source of information. Critical listening is also associated to detect propaganda devices used by a communicator.

It occurs when you still want to understand what the other person is saying, but also have some reason or responsibility to evaluate what is being said to you and how it is being said. For example, if there's an upcoming election and you need to decide who to vote for, you probably use some form of critical listening when you watch a televised debate. You listen, AND you evaluate.

Guidelines for critical listening

- Recognize your own biases.
- Keep your mind open and avoid filtering out unwanted information
- Listen carefully and critically when you need to make evaluations and judgments.
- Analyze the audience and adapt the message to the listeners.
- Clearly organize the speech so that the listeners can follow the train of thought.
- What is the speaker motive and what he is looking from the audience? Is he giving you information or trying to persuade?
- Must be active listener, knows different meanings of the words and be able to read between the lines
- Is the message supported by evidence, reasoning, clearly and logically stated?
- Does the speakers verbal and nonverbal messages are matching with each other?

What is Introduction to speech?

Every speech has these general parts. Usually it is organized by dividing it into these three areas:

1. Introduction
2. Body
3. Conclusion

Every speech, no matter how poorly constructed and poorly organized, has some kind of introduction (you have to begin), some middle section (the body), and some kind of conclusion (at some point in time you have to finish).

Introduction

An introduction is a beginning. It is a very important part of the speech process because it is during the introduction that the audience first sees you and learns about your topic. At what point does an introduction begin? It begins the moment you address the audience. The moment you turn to look at the audience and utter your first sounds or communicate something nonverbally, you have: begun your introduction. In the introduction phase, the audience may decide if you are credible and if your speech will be worth their attention.

Your introduction should have four purposes:

2. Introducing your thesis
3. Adapting to the audience
4. Establishing your rapport or credibility with the audience

Discuss the Barriers to Communication

Barriers that stop you from communicating with people around you. Here is a list of barriers to communication, or reasons why we sometimes find it difficult to take the risk and communicate our true attitudes and feelings to one another.

- Fear of appearing low in the listener's eyes.
- Fear of exposing your feelings and weaknesses.
- Fear of hurting others or getting hurt.
- Fear of being rejected, blamed, or condemned.
- Fear of not receiving a positive response.
- Fear of a potential conflict.
- Fear of risking self-disclosure.
- Fear of appearing self-centred.
- Fear of appearing stupid.
- Fear of not being taken seriously.
- Fear of not getting the help you think you need.
- Fear of ruining a good situation.

Q2 What are the Sender barriers?

Q.3 Write about importance of Listening skills

Speak effectively

How to be an impressive speaker, a good communicator? All answers depend on how effective is your speech and speech depends on how skillful is the speaker. And a good speech is how skillful the speaker is.

Following points to be remembered to deliver effective speech:

- Speaker (motivation, credibility and style of delivering)
- Message (What is the message? Its content, style, structure and conclusion)
- Audience (Analyze your audience, their education, culture, geographic location, sex, group membership, careers etc)
- Channel (Verbal, nonverbal, pictorial, volume, pitch and tone)
- Feedback (Getting feedback, responding to the questions accordingly)
- Setting (The area of speech, sitting position of people, free of noise etc)
