

Q. Redundancy and repetition with examplesLexical repetition and redundancy

- An extra element in a sentence or phrase
- Regarded as a universal feature of spoken varieties

Repetition • A repeated occurrence of a linguistic item that may or may not be justified. 'There were – some very good houses – rather old fashioned but good houses.'

Repetition

- He sells different different things
- She cut it into small small pieces
- She drove slowly slowly
- I don't like this type of dress – all frill frill, gather gather

Reduplication The use of double words for one:

- Flower bouquet • Young kid • Cost price • Proceed to go on

The use of two words for expressing one idea:

- '....for repairing or laying some sort of underground cables or lines'
- '....ever-growing and ever-increasing speeding traffic'
- '....without any obstruction and difficulty'

Write a detail note on 'Baby Talk'. It was Proposed in 1876 by Charles Leland. It Compares pidgin speakers to young children first learning to speak bc Similarities identified between early speech of children and certain pidgins. It Uses high proportion of content, lacks structural words, lacks of morphological change Approximation of standard pronunciation.

The subordinate class was perceived as unable to master the dominant class's language so the Masters try to imitate their servants' incorrect speech patterns Results from intentional simplification of speech

Q. State the rationale of baby-talk theory?

- Similarities identified between early speech of children and certain pidgins:
 - Use of a high proportion of content
 - Lack of structural words
 - Lack of morphological change
- Approximation of standard pronunciation

Q. What is the role of English after world war-1.explain any two roles? By the 18th century, three main forces were driving the direction of the English language: (1) to reduce the language to rule and effect a standard of correct usage; (2) to refine the language by removing supposed defects and introducing certain improvements; and (3) to fix English permanently in the desired form. This desire for system and regularity in the language contrasted with the individualism and spirit of independence characterized by the previous age.

Or Role of English after World War 1 (5) Topic: 28

- Consolidation of English after WWI
- Role as a mediating language
- Spread through colonial cultural legacies
- Expansion due to technological revolution.

Q.Contact Literature The literature written in these distinctive varieties of English is often called contact lit. Writers of contact literature deny that a non-English culture is inexpressible in English and argue that the cultural material in contact literature will stretch or reshape the expressive qualities of Eng. The rise of contact literature in English provides an opportunity to study the literary effort of international writers and to observe the vital process of language change. This change is of special interest to English teachers and students, since it is their language they are observing, and since the development it undergoes will make it a more sensitive and authentic vehicle for creative expression of consciousness in Western and non-Western cultures.

Features of Contact Literature *Foreign influences on English These varieties undergo a process of localization • new cultural features *• types of discourse • linguistic features Creativity in contact literature

- Contact literatures exhibit national identity and a linguistic distinctiveness

Q. What is the distinction between English as a primary and secondary language with example?

A. English as a primary and as a secondary language distinction

- English is used as a primary language by those who grow up in an English speaking environment
- English is used as a secondary language by those who use it for the purposes of business, education and diplomacy.

Q. What are some common misunderstandings about the success of a language as an international language?

Here are few misunderstandings about the success of a language

1. Perceived aesthetic qualities
 2. Clarity of expression
 3. Literary power
 4. Religious influence
- Simple structure and grammar

Q. Write a note on SLA theory construction A. SLA Theory Construction

- Immigrants or foreign students in universities are used as sources of data
- Learners of English in the outer and expanding circles are overlooked
- Little awareness of the factors relevant to English language learning in these contexts
- Lack of relevance between SLA theories and world Englishes

How do English varieties integrate with SLA Paradigm? (Imp) The goal of SLA is to acquire native-like competence in the target language, i.e., be as proficient and fluent as a native speaker in pronunciation, grammar, and vocabulary, and also in the sociocultural conventions of language use. The entire range and depth of input is or ought to be available to the learners so that they can achieve the goals of language acquisition defined above.

What functions the target language serves in the learners' community is irrelevant to SLA.

Learners' previous language(s) are not relevant to SLA except as a source of negative transfer, which is undesirable, or a source of positive transfer, which is acceptable.

Success in SLA depends crucially upon integrative motivation, i.e., the desire to become a part of the sociocultural milieu of the native speakers of the target language.

Q. Traditional SLA paradigm A. Challenge to traditional SLA paradigm

- Rejects the attainment of native-like competence as the English learning goal for all learners
- Native speakers not responsible for the standardization of English

Q. Explain Intangibility imp Intangibility is used in marketing to describe the inability to assess the value gained from engaging in an activity using any tangible evidence. It is often used to describe services where there is no tangible product that the customer can purchase, that can be seen or touched.

Q. Explain accent The way you sound when you speak, Results from how, where, and when a person learned the language he/she speak and that is determined by where they live and what social groups they belong.

Misunderstandings about the success of English as an international language.

- Perceived aesthetic qualities
- Clarity of expression
- Literary power
- Religious influence
- Simple structure and grammar
- Ease of learning
- Few inflectional endings
- Gender neutral

Q. Describe 3 context in which English used as official language in outer circle. IMP

- English is only one of two or more languages in the linguistic repertoire
- English enjoys an important status in the language policies
- It is either the official or a major government language

Names e.g. India, Pakistan, Singapore, Zambia, Nigeria. [IMP]

Changing concept about SLA. Topic: 132 Changing SLA scenario

Some scholars and linguists suggest the following:

- Inclusion of 'indigenized language' as a type of acquisition in SLA typology
- New perspectives on SLA
- Acceptability of stable variations rather than treating them as errors
- Native speakers to be more tolerant and accepting
- Need to increase familiarity with international English
- SLA theories to consider research on the acquisition and use of IVEs
- SLA's limitations with regards to offering explanations with regard to learning English in outer and expanding circles.

Short note on Quantifier. Topic 92. We use quantifiers (much, little, few, a lot, little etc.) to talk about quantities, amounts and degrees. It generally comes before a noun or noun phrase.

Lexifier Locally coined words and expressions. Considered the creativity of New English speakers by many world Englishes scholars. The dominant language of a pidgin or creole that serves as the basis for most of its vocabulary

Lack of motivation for learning other than English. Linguistic Complacency means being satisfied with one's lang and lack of motivation for learning other lang. The following factors are involved in lingic complacency.

- Lack of money
- Lack of opportunity
- Lack of interest

Misunderstanding about native language. Misunderstandings caused by the term 'native language':

- It is Considered standard
- It is Spoken by all people
- Is considered superior
- Represents a good model for English language speakers in other countries.

Advantages of the term 'expert' IMP

- Expertise is not identity
- Expertise is learned not innate
- Expertise is relative
- Expertise is partial
- Expertise goes through testing and evaluation

disadvantages of using the term "expert" for a native speaker IMP

- Implies value judgement when contrasted with non-expert. (there is only one)

Describe native nonnative divide with respect to ELT. 3 marks

Native speakerism and economic exploitation.

- Internationally most of the jobs are reserved for native English speaking teachers.
- Most text books are published by native English publishers.
- Teaching methods are introduced by native theorists and practitioners.

Function & uses of article A singular countable noun must be preceded by an article

1.a/an: with a singular countable noun indicates the generic nature of the noun e.g. A horse runs very fast.

2. The: with both singular and plural countable nouns indicate the specific nature of the noun e.g. The boys are naughty. The boy is tall.

Advantage of English speaker over non 5 marks

- Native speakers are a preference for English language teaching
- Considered superior to non-native English language teachers Native speaker criteria
- Exposure to the language from early childhood
- Use of English as a first language/home language
- Intuitive knowledge of the structure of the language
- Creative use of the language

Native	Non Native
Those who have "internalized" a language rather than learning it deliberately	Non Native speakers deliberately learn a language
English is their mother tongue	English is not their mother tongue

Pidgins 3 marks It is the product of a multilingual contact situation in which those who wish to communicate must find or improvise a simple language system that will enable them to do so.

Language contact

- A linguistic and social phenomenon
- speakers of different languages interact with one another
- This results in transfer of linguistic features
- A reduced variety of a language
- Results from extended contact between groups of people with no language in common
- Arises to fulfill the restricted communication needs of such people

Rules of Pidgin lexis:

1. Lengthy coding of concepts for example bilong (of) = belong, papa bilong me = my father etc.
2. Reduplication i.e. to intensify meaning example tok = talk, toktok = chatter, looklook = stare.
3. Reduplication to avoid confusion example sip = ship, sipsip = sheep etc.

Relexification theory (imp) • A mechanism of lang change where One language changes its vocabulary with the vocabulary of another language. Not much change occurs in the relexified language's grammar.

Process of relexification • This pidgin was relexified into pidginized French, English, and Spanish. The Vocabulary was replaced. However, the Grammar remained intact. Example: Sabir

Five features of pidgin?

- Has no native speakers •Is no one's first language •Has a limited use •Has simplistic structure
- Has limited functions •Is an adjunct language (no one speaks only a pidgin)

Note on Creole IMP A pidgin which has acquired native speakers is called a creole language, or creole, and the process whereby a pidgin turns into a creole is called 'creolisation'. Examples: It is easy to see how pidgins acquire native speakers, by being spoken by couples who have children and rear them together. This happened on a large scale among the African slaves taken to the New World, and is happening on a somewhat smaller scale in urban communities in places like Papua New Guinea. Creolization occurs only when a pidgin for some reason becomes the variety of language that children must use in situations in which use of a 'full' language is effectively denied them. A creole is the native language of some of its speakers.

Process of the creolization Most pidgins are lingua francas, existing to meet temporary local needs. Very few pidgins undergo the process of creolisation.

In which parts of the world pidgins and creoles found today. 5 marks Hancock (cited in Wardaugh, 2006) lists 127 pidgins and creoles, out of which 35 are English-based.

- Some countries have only English-based creoles, e.g., Antigua, Barbados, Grenada, Jamaica, and Guyana.
- Still others have only French-based ones, e.g., Martinique, Guadeloupe, St Lucia, and Haiti.
- Sierra Leone has both pidginized and creolized Englishes.
- The pidgin is indigenous West African Pidgin English used as a trading language.
- The creole, Krio, is found in and around the capital, Freetown

Write comprehensive note on intelligibility

In linguistics, mutual intelligibility is a relationship between languages or dialects in which speakers of different but related varieties can readily understand each other without prior familiarity or special effort. It is sometimes used as an important criterion for distinguishing languages from dialects, although sociolinguistic factors are often also used.

Intelligibility between languages can be asymmetric, with speakers of one understanding more of the other than speakers of the other understanding the first. When it is relatively symmetric, it is characterized as "mutual". It exists in differing degrees among many related or geographically proximate languages of the world, often in the context of a dialect continuum.

Explain 2 types of intelligibility. Or explain Comprehensibility, Interpretability. (imp)

Comprehensibility The next level in Smith's complexity continuum of intelligibility. Involves: assigning meaning to utterances, Recognizing an utterance's referents

Example: Table

- o Please put the package on the table.
- o Invite guests of the committee to the table.
- o Table a motion.
- o Insert data into cells in a table.

Interpretability To understand the purpose and intent of an utterance.

Most complex and most important. Example: Masterji must have heard.... He biked all the way ... his white beard rolled spiffily tight and his long hair tucked under a crisp chartreuse turban.... He was even carrying a kirpan.... Masterji was a Sikh... but very few went around with their ceremonial daggers strapped to their chests all day long.

Name three types of intelligibilities (INSTRUCTOR MENTIONED ITS IMPO)

- Intelligibility. Comprehensibility. Interpretability.

Randolph's Quirk' view (5) PLZ Change the points into paragraph

According to Randolph spread of English nowadays can be compared with the econocultural model English being spread nowadays as the medium of science, technology and business

According to Quirk Language Issues of standards

- General issues of standards: educational concerns
- Restricted issues of standards: special uses of English
- Unwillingness to adopt American or British English as models
- False assumptions about the varieties of English by linguists
- Varieties are deficient in this context
- Standard English is required to ensure better communication by using the same language
- Varieties exemplify an incomplete command of English
- Standard English is required to ensure better communication by using the same language

Need for a local standard

- Required only in the imperial model
- The local norms should be based on acrolectal variety which is as close as possible to the externally established norm of Standard English

Inter language Refers to the intermediate states of a learner's language as it moves from L1 toward the target L2 Or Inter language is metaphorically a halfway house between the first language (L1) and second language Learning L2 is a gradual process from L1 towards L2. At every stage of learning learners have rules of grammar which are not perfect yet

Globalization Globalization refers to a great number of things taking place in the world and their interconnectedness. It is a process of interaction and integration among people, companies, and governments of different nations. This interaction can take various forms, e.g. political cooperation among countries with the hope that this kind of co-operation will help prevent disputes or in case of a dispute will help resolve such disputes. Some examples are SAARC, European Union and NATO. Another form that this interaction can take is through sharing of ideas and information. In today's world sharing of information takes place through social media and internet. This can also take place with the help of TV programs, films and books. Trade and exchange of resources greatly enhances this interaction. Countries like America sell their finished products and technologies to countries which lack them. Similarly, developing countries sell their natural resources to the developed countries which need them.

Name any three kinds of interactions in the context of globalization.

- political cooperation
- sharing of ideas and information(social media and internet). TV programs, films and books.
- trade and exchange of resources greatly enhances this interaction.

Explain Coinage with examples Coinage is defined as:

1. Addition of a prefix or suffix to an existing English word
2. Compounding local concepts with English items

Examples Heaty: Foods which make the body hot (Singaporian, Malaysian English)

Teacheress: A female teacher (Indian English) Affectee: the one who is affected (Pakistani English)

Museumize: To preserve in a museum (Pakistani English) Botheration: Inconvenience (Pakistani English)

Communicative competence

Communicative competence is a term in linguistics which refers to a language user's grammatical knowledge of syntax, morphology, phonology and the like, as well as social knowledge about how and when to use utterances appropriately.

Q: Enlist a few assumptions that second language acquisition is based on.

1. Learning goal is to attain native-like competence to communicate with native speakers
2. Input comprises the entire range and depth of British and American English
3. Learners ought to have integrative motivation for language learning
4. Primary languages considered sources of negative and positive transfer
5. Difference from standard British or American English amount to failure – fossilization or pragmatic failure

Define speech acts along with its main type. 5 marks

Speech acts are the speaker's utterances which convey meaning and make listeners do specific things (Austin, 1962). According to Austin (1962), when saying a performative utterance, a speaker is simultaneously doing something.

Example: "I am hungry." • expresses hunger • requests for something to eat.

Three types of speech acts:

1. Locutionary Speech Act • this act happens with the utterance of a sound, a word, or even a phrase as a natural unit of speech. • What is required for the utterance to be a locutionary act is that it has sense, and has the same meaning to both the speaker and the listener. • Example: "What?" (When someone is surprised)
2. Illocutionary Speech Act • In an illocutionary speech act, it is not just saying something itself, but the act of saying something with the intention of: • stating an opinion, confirming, or denying something • making a prediction, a promise, a request • issuing an order or a decision • giving an advice or permission • Examples: "There's too much homework in this subject." (opinion) • "I'll do my homework later." (promise) • "Go do your homework!" (order)
3. Perlocutionary Speech Act • The aim of perlocutionary speech act is to change feelings, thoughts, or actions • Examples: • "I was born a Filipino, I will live a Filipino, I will die a Filipino!" (inspiring) • "It is the bleak job situation that forces Filipinos to find jobs overseas." (persuading) • "Texting while driving kills – you, your loved ones, other people!" (detering)

Explain linguistic consequences of industrialisation.

Linguistic consequences

- Most research being done by English speaking countries or by their collaboration
- Between 1700 – 1900 most of the scientific research had been documented in English

Linguistic consequences of industrialization

- Addition in the English lexicon
- Need of English for borrowing or buying this technology
- Exchange/hiring of expertise

Discuss the Linguists doubts about the varieties of English.

- Mistrust shown toward language variation
- Standard English is above the reach of variation
- The standard dialect has changed markedly over time
- loan words from other languages enter the lexicon regularly

*Concerns about contact literature

- Variations in usage, lexicon and accent among American, Canadian, Australian and Irish English
- A wide range of variation is tolerable among native "inner circle" speakers of English

Reasons of non-standard English:

Varieties considered non-standard due to:

All the regional native speaker dialect of English

All the New English varieties

Until 1970s educated Australian English.

- Lack of acceptance of non-standard varieties may be due to:

Attitude towards the race in US.

Attitude towards class in UK.

Explain World Englishes as a field of study has been recently established. There are 2 distinct positions on it:

- A single standardised form of English as the model (Randolph Quirk, 1985)
- Many linguistically equal varieties of English (Baraj Kachru, 1985)

The term World English (or World Englishes) refers to the English language as it is variously used throughout the world. Also known as international English and Global English.

The English language is now spoken in more than 100 countries. Varieties of World English include American English, Australian English, Babu English, Banglish, British English, Canadian English, Caribbean English, Chicano English, Chinese English,

Explain Three diasporas impFirst diaspora

- English speakers from Britain carried the language to Australia, New Zealand, and North America
- They established substantial settlements and displaced the indigenous population

Second diaspora

- The second diaspora spread the language through colonization in Asia and Africa
- Settlements were fewer
- Maintained the indigenous population in subjugation
- Allowed a section of population to learn English as a second language
- English continued to be used even after the departure of the British

Third Diaspora

- Distinct manner of dispersal of English from the other two Diasporas
- Has a more recent history
- English was not transplanted through speaker migration
- The political and economic influence of Britain and the USA in East Asia, Middle East & Latin America & Europe
- Spread by individuals acquiring it as an additional language for international or intranational communication

Limitation of Kachru's Model: (they r almost 10) Based on geography and history

- Actual use of English by speakers in these regions overlooked.
- Based on the basic distinction between native speakers and non-native speakers.
- Native speakers being considered superior regardless of the quality of their language.
- Pidgins and creoles do not fit into the categorisation.

Kachru sociolinguistic, Kachru Sociolinguistic reality of English in global context

1. Multicultural varieties of English at various societal levels (penetration)
2. Extraordinary wide domains of functions (range)
3. Emphasizes the user
4. Users make adjustments in their use of English that reflect the realities of their own sociolinguistic contexts

What are the stance given by Kachru to reject the traditional view of the native speakers. IMP

- being the norm providers for all varieties of English
- Acknowledges the influence of native languages on the English of multilingual users
- Rejects the view that varieties are deficient or incompletely learned
 - The differences reflect the diverse cultural contexts of the use of English

Q. Expanding and outer circle explain 5 marks . The expanding circle and outer circle is one of the three concentric circles of World English described by linguist Braj Kachru. The expanding circle is made up of countries in which English has no special administrative status but is recognized as a lingua franca and is widely studied as a foreign language.

Countries in the expanding circle include China, Japan, Korea, and Sweden, among many others. The outer circle is made up of post-colonial countries in which English, though not the mother tongue, has for a significant period of time played an important role in education, governance, and popular culture.

Countries in the outer circle include India, Nigeria, Pakistan, the Philippines, Singapore, South Africa, and more than 50 other nations.

Expanding Circle Traditional classifications of English Models of World Englishes/ Models and classification of English Classifications and models attempt to explain the differences in the ways English is used in different countries. The most common classification are 1. English as a native language (ENL) 2. English as a second language (ESL) 3. English as a foreign language (EFL)

Phases of development of English language varieties

1. The local variety remains unrecognized

2. Local variety and inner circle variety exist side by side

3. The local variety becomes recognized as the standard

• Define weakness of Strevens' model of World Englishes? (5 marks) imp Weakness of Strevens' Model

• Overlooks the varieties that developed through contact with local vernaculars

• Developed without any direct association with either British or American Standard

English (e.g. China)

• Mainly influenced by other culturally relevant sources that are available through the global media

Q. New and new English 3 marks

A. New Englishes emerged as result of second Diasporas. And new Englishes emerged as result of first Diasporas.

English as an International Language	International English (IE)
Does not refer to a particular variety of English	IE refers to particular variety of English e.g. Australian English, Singaporean English, Chinese English etc
It focuses on communication instead of the speakers' nationality or race
EIL paradigm overlooks the symbolic markers of the politicized construct of native speaker

It should be considered in their own right.	It should not be compared with other varieties of Englishes.
It was an acceptance of American English.	It was the reluctance to accept other varieties.

Global vs. standard language

Global language	Standard language
A language achieves a global status when it develops a special role recognized in every country.	The form of the English language widely accepted as the usual correct form

What is a Global Language? Imp A language achieves a global status when it develops a special role recognized in every country. If the speakers' number determines it then English is spoken by millions of people around the world. However, it is neither the mother tongue status nor the number of speakers which determine the global status of a language. It is, in fact, identities of the speakers which determine the global status of a language. A global language essentially refers to a language that is learned and spoken internationally, and is characterized not only by the number of its native

- 1.By making it the official language of the country (second language)
- 2.By making it a priority in foreign-language teaching e.g. Russian is popular in former Soviet Union countries

Functions Participatory function codification for purposes of mutual collaboration Separatist function
Marking boundaries of distinct identity

Codification is basically the method use to complete the process of standardization.

Q. Name any 3 countries which confirm to the inner circle of Kachru model

- USA
- UK
- Canada

English is used as a primary language	English as a secondary language
by those who grow up in an English speaking environment	by those who use it for the purposes of business, education and diplomacy
Social interaction	English as a foreign language
	English as an official language
	a medium of education, legal affairs, broadcasting, print media, public and private discourse creative literature

Name of the countries where preferred variety of British English is used.

Q: Name any three countries which show preference for the variety of English over Dutch or American English. 3 mark. Sierra Leone Ghana Nigeria Gambia Cameroon

A. Problems in defining native speakers

- Which accent?
- Which social group?
- Which age group?

i. Demographic factor	ii. Geographical factor	iii. Authoritative factor	iv. Codification	v. Acceptability factor
-----------------------	-------------------------	---------------------------	------------------	-------------------------

Q. Define noun 3 mArks A. Nouns • Specific or non-specific • Countable or uncountable • Singular or plural

White supremacy or white supremacism imp is the racist belief that white people are superior to people of other races and therefore should be dominant over them. White supremacy has roots in scientific racism, and it often relies on pseudoscientific arguments.

Q: Detail about politeness convention (5) Conventions of politeness

1. Negative politeness The strategies that avoid offence by showing deference.

Examples • Use of honorific terms: "Dr.", "Mr. "

• Indirect requests: Would not you mind if we shut the door?

2. Positive politeness The strategies that avoid offence by highlighting friendliness.

Examples: Use of nicknames

Exaggerated approvals: You look terrific

Request: You look cold, Sam. Should we shut the window?'

Show of negative politeness: where interactions between strangers are conventionally oriented more to deference

Show of positive politeness: where interactions between strangers are expected to be more personable and friendly.

Sociocultural conventions of language use across cultures Politeness in Asian languages is prominent in the language. The discourse strategies, to signal respectful and polite verbal behavior is used.

Politeness in Asian languages indicate respect for specific addressees or referents:

• honorific pronouns • verbal endings • lexical sets

Choice from one set is constrained by the choice from another set

Politeness Asian languages Grammatical choices: Hindi

Asian languages
Grammatical choices: Hindi

	Honor- ific	Non honor- ific	Intia- te
2nd person prono- un	ap	tum	tu
Ending	-E hū	-E ho	-A hai

Examples of borrowing to justify the process of borrowing Borrowing is a process in which one language "borrows" words from other lang. The reason can be the fact that there isn't a word for the particular thing in the language. For example the word pizza (which comes from Italian) did not exist in Eng, because the English did not eat pizzas before. With the coming of the food, they had to accept the word, too. In some cases, a new word from another language replaced or supplemented an already existing word. For example the English word teach was supplemented by the word instruct. Each word is used in a different situation and context today.

Five causes of language death ..imp • natural catastrophes • Cultural assimilation

• Demographic submersion • Military superiority • Economic reasons • Urbanisation and Consumer culture

Q: Write three contexts of English in outer circle countries? imp

• Multilingual users. • Local input. • Irrelevance of SLA concepts. • Bilingual teaching methods.

Q: Write any three points of functional nativeness? IMP

- Socio linguistic status in range and depth of use in a society.
- Users recognize Standard English.
- Users exhibit proficiency comparable to native speakers' proficiency.

Define Consonants. IMP A consonant is most often identified as a letter that is not a vowel. More specifically, a consonant is a sound that when paired with a vowel makes a syllable. There are 21 consonants in English.

Consonants can be voiced or unvoiced. Unvoiced consonants are made just with air p t s k f th • Voiced conants are caused by vocal chords moving b d g z v th

Nativeness Paradigm IMP The nativeness principle was the dominant paradigm in second language teaching before the 1960s. • A binary classification of speakers: native and non-native. It Exerts a powerful impact on society: • Native speakers are 'the best' teachers of English
• Serves important practical functions: • It serves as a model and an inspiration for English lang learning

Criticism on Ntiveness Paradigm

- Determination of identity as native or non-native speaker depends on social factors rather than linguistic
- Restrictive social and professional identities
- Proficiency is determined by the order of acquisition of languages
- Overlooks the fact that English is used as the home and official language in many outer circle countries
- Promotes the English of the ethnic Anglo speaker

Nativization of English Language in Pakistan.

A process in which a language gains native speakers. This happens when a second language used by adult parents becomes the native language of their children.

One way is via functional shift.

a. for example one class is made to form as another class.

For example Noun is made to act as verb :

Multan traders to gherao Municipal Corporation

b. Colonial Lag: words which were in colonial days

diggie, stepney

c. Word Formation:

These are only found in Pakistani English Variety and aren't found in any other varieties.

Changes in SLA. What are the linguists suggestions for it. Changing SLA scenario

Some scholars and linguists suggest the following:

- Inclusion of 'indigenized language' as a type of acquisition in SLA typology
- New perspectives on SLA
- Acceptability of stable variations rather than treating them as errors
- Native speakers to be more tolerant and accepting
- Need to increase familiarity with international English

Why do we use English in South Africa? Topic 22. History of English language in South Africa

- Eng came 2 be used, by those with an ethnically mixed background
- Also adopted by many immigrants from India

What are two uses of English in South Africa? IMP

- Interpersonal
- Instrumental
- Regulative
- Innovative/imaginative

Different language situations for ESL users. ESL is used by immigrants to Inner Circle countries

- Learners take up English as their language for all necessary business
- Social interactions also take place in English
- ESL users study English with more interest
- ESL situations involve more intensive study of English
- Learners aim at developing proficiency in speaking

ESL situations perceived as superior

- ESL users are considered more proficient, thus superior to EFL users
- ESL situations involve more intensive study of English
- Learners aim at developing proficiency in speaking

David Graddol's Modifications Problems/ limitations IMP

No explanation of the level of abstraction of the overlap will be at Countries' level Speakers' level or language's varieties' level.

Ignores the possibility of a shift in the opposite direction i.e. from outer circle to inner circle

Modiano's Centripetal Circles of International English (1999) It is Not concerned with historical and geographical divisions of a variety instead it focuses Individual users and their choices of a variety. It is Based on mutual comprehensibility of the proficient speakers of English

The word 'Centripetal' suggests the movement of high proficiency users of English towards the core of the global English-speaking population.

Are drawn to global English-speaking population in their efforts to make themselves comprehensible in different context they find themselves

- Global English speakers replace the traditionally revered native speakers as the centre
- The support indicates the acceptance of the idea of “English as an International Language” (EIL)

The Structure

a. The centre comprises speakers who are:

- Proficient speakers of English as an International language irrespective of being native or nonnative English speakers
- Able to speak without any strong or regional accent

The centre comprises ‘English as an International Language’ (EIL) • EIL consists of a core of features

b. The next circle consists of proficient users of English as a first or second language rather than as an international language

c. The third circle is made up of learners of English

d. The final band outside this circle represents those who do not know English at all

Weaknesses of Modiano’s model

- How do we define International English?
- How do we differentiate between proficient and non-proficient users of International English?
- How do we differentiate between strong and not so strong regional accents?
- Who makes the differentiation?

Difficulty of distinguishing between core and non-core features • Equating native speakers with ‘competent’ non-natives • Labelling native varieties as ‘major’ but established Outer Circle varieties (such as Indian English) as ‘local’

Strengths of Modiano’s models

- Disapproves ideas of prestige
- Cares for the diversity of English
- Understands the spread of the language from a geopolitical view
- Focuses just on proficiency giving English as a globally functioning language a central position

Factors That make a global Language:

- Structural properties
- Vocabulary
- Association with great literature, culture or religion
- A strong power base
- Political power and military power
- Economic power
- Technological power
- Cultural power
