- Long Vowels: Vowel sounds that are pronounced for a longer duration, like the sound of "a" in cake or "e" in see. These vowels sound like their letter names.
- Diphthongs: A complex vowel sound made by combining two vowel sounds in one syllable, like "oi" in boil or "ou" in cloud. It's like blending two vowel sounds together.
- Triphthongs: A vowel sound that combines three vowel sounds in one syllable, like "our" in fire. It's a bit more complex than a diphthong.
- Teaching Vowels: The process of teaching students how to correctly pronounce and use vowel sounds in words.
- Teaching Vocabulary: The process of teaching new words and their meanings to students, helping them understand how to use those words in different contexts.
- Stages in Teaching Vocabulary: The steps involved in teaching new words, which usually start with introducing the word, explaining its meaning, using it in context, and then practicing it over time.
- Idioms and Collocations:
 - Idioms are phrases that have a meaning different from the individual words, like "break the ice" meaning to start a conversation.
 - Collocations are pairs or groups of words that are commonly used together, like "make a decision" or "strong coffee".
- Teaching Spellings: Helping students learn how to correctly spell words, including rules and patterns in spelling.
- Teaching Grammar: The process of teaching students the rules of language, such as sentence structure, punctuation, and word usage, to help them use the language correctly.
- Teaching Parts of Speech: Teaching the different types of words in a language, such as nouns (things), verbs (actions), adjectives (descriptions), and adverbs (how actions are done).
- Teaching Tenses: Teaching how to use verbs in different time frames, like past, present, and future. This helps people express when something happens.

- Grammar: The set of rules that govern how words are used and arranged in a language to make correct sentences.
- Listening: The skill of understanding spoken language by hearing and interpreting words, sounds, and sentences.
- Speaking: The skill of using spoken words to communicate with others, expressing ideas and thoughts verbally.
- Reading: The skill of understanding written text, by recognizing and interpreting words and sentences.
- Writing: The skill of expressing ideas, thoughts, or information in written form, like composing essays, letters, or stories.
- Writing Process: The steps involved in writing, such as planning, drafting, revising, editing, and finalizing written work.
- Approaches and Methodologies: Different methods or strategies used to teach a language, such as the communicative approach (focused on communication), task-based learning, or grammar-translation (focused on rules and translation).
