subject special

teachers does not really make the ability of the teachers less. Only it is required, they are not having qualification above their degrees so that they would be considering themselves over the requirements of school teaching. It is better to have less qualified teacher but to be done having certificates of English teaching or just certificate of teaching with reference to the subject that they are going to teach.

At the primary level the subject specialist is not required. Therefore, the Govt hire the teachers with less qualification and give them teacher training or some teaching certificates for the buildup the necessary skills of teaching.

This could lead to a policy option which can be less expensive deal for developing countries like Pakistan. More qualified teachers are harder to find, have to be paid more.

Reimers and Warwick in their report "Influences on Academic Achievement in Pakistan: Students, teachers, and Classrooms" show the positive impact of urban schools on student achievement.

The results showed that 'Achievement was higher when: the school is located in urban area (Reimers and Warwick, 1991, p.2).

Reimers and Warwick in their report "Influences on Academic Achievement in Pakistan: Students, teachers, and Classrooms" show the positive impact of urban schools on student achievement.

This is with reference to, the situation that is prevailing in Pakistani school and is rela to students, teachers and classroom. This shows that positive impact of urban school student's achievement. Urban schools are producing the students with better learn facilities and they have better opportunities to make learning possible in the classroo This is the positive impact of the urban school because the urban schools are getting the facilities and they have the option to select better developed and skilled teachers w better qualification, all these factors have positive impact on the learning of the stude in urban area and big city.

change their attitude when they are in the class room. The teaching practices should be form and Govt has to see to it. First of all Govt should set up the policy. This policy made are and made familiar to all the people who are running the school whether they are in the vate sector or public sector. Once they understand the perception and profession of teaching, y will be able to respect the profession and then from them it will be transmitted the school horities, the members of the school, the teachers, the parents and the community members t teaching is a noble profession. So everybody must respect the teacher and the profession. is feeling prevail in the school and this feeling has to be prevailed in the country. It is not so t the teachers who have social class, they are good teachers, they are supposed to do anything he school, even they are not applying the certification that they have done. They don't use the ss room strategies and class room practices, just because of reason they belong to higher class. is should not be practices. It is the job of Govt to set these rules, policies and apply them all ools and they should be uniform. It is very difficult task to do, very few people will be cessful in the first year but if there is policy which is set by Govt and school owners and horities in the Govt, they follow up whether this practice in the class room then only this nge will bring a drastic change in the class room.
