

Lecture wise short notes available:
(Short Questions file + Long Questions file + MCQ's)
03254755408

Course: EDU301

Short Notes For Midterm

Short Question

Lecture # 01:

What roles are expected of teachers according to Interview 1?

Good communicator, evaluator, decision maker, class manager, and member of a team or group.

What is the philosophy of teaching according to Interview 1?

Teachers aim to motivate students to learn in a way that positively influences their thoughts and actions. They see themselves as gardeners using teaching strategies as fertilizer to help students grow.

According to Interview 2, what should be the goal of teaching?

Providing students with conceptual knowledge and skills that are applicable in practical life, rather than focusing on rote memorization.

Why did Interview 3 choose teaching as a profession?

They believe teachers help students become what they want to be and consider the needs of students in their role as professional educators.

What are the assumptions about teaching mentioned in the paragraphs?

Teaching is a noble profession, an activity to impart knowledge, a way to develop desirable behaviors, and a means to teach discipline.

Who played an important role in teaching in informal settings according to the paragraphs?

Prophets, saints, Buddha, Pythagoras, Jesus Christ, Prophet Muhammad, and Karl Marx.

What is the apprentice ship model of learning?

It involves spending time with a skilled person to learn a specific skill, based on Vygotsky's work, often in workshops or skill-learning centers.

What were the perceptions about education in the 16th century?

Except for Socrates, Plato, and Aristotle, most people viewed education as a means of maintaining the status quo.

What are the assumed philosophies of education of the Prophets mentioned?

Equipping people with basic literacy, providing information, teaching skills, and bringing about societal change.

What is the importance of teaching as a social activity?

Teaching cannot be done in isolation; it requires interaction with others. It is essentially a social activity.

How is teaching considered a political activity?

Teaching becomes a political activity when teachers share ideas and work together with students for social change, as political ideas involve a set of ideas.

What are the ethical responsibilities of teachers?

Teachers need to be committed, honest, dedicated, and fulfill their responsibilities ethically. They serve as role models for students.

How are teaching perceptions culturally and socially embedded?

Different cultures have different perceptions of education and teaching. Perceptions of teachers in Pakistan, for example, differ from those in other countries due to cultural and social influences.

What are some metaphors for teaching mentioned in the paragraphs?

Source of light, tree, and gardener.

What are some thoughts raised about teaching and education?

The importance of teachers for knowledge gain, teaching manners and behaviors, who determines appropriate behaviors, the effectiveness of discipline learning in schools, and the distinction between formal and informal education.

Lecture # 02

What is a common misconception about schools?

Schools are considered isolated places, detached from society.

What is the purpose of education according to the passage?

The purpose of education is more than teaching different subjects; it should focus on holistic development and preparing students for social change.

How does learning occur according to Friere?

Learning is created through action and reflection, not just by exploring static facts.

Are drama and debates considered extra or co-curricular activities?

No, they are considered curricular activities that contribute to the holistic development of a child.

Is silence important for learning, according to the passage?

No, silence is not essential for learning; sharing ideas and peer learning are emphasized.

Is teaching considered an art or a science?

Teaching is considered both an art and a science.

What are the criteria for professional obligations in teaching?

Learning the concepts and principles of the profession, acquiring and practicing specific techniques, being internally organized and self-disciplined, serving a social function, and having autonomy.

What subjects do future teachers need to learn?

Foundations of education, pedagogical knowledge, pedagogical content knowledge, assessment and evaluation, and teaching techniques and skills.

What are some general teaching skills mentioned in the passage?

Planning lessons, classroom management, assessing pupils' learning, motivating pupils, and managing pupils' behavior.

What professional values are important for teachers?

Commitment, honesty, intellectual honesty, and reflection in action and on action.

Lecture # 03

What is the commitment to students in professional behavior?

The commitment to students in professional behavior means striving to help each student realize their potential and fostering their maximum level of achievement. It involves focusing on both high and low achievers and giving attention to students with average learning abilities.

What does commitment to the profession entail?

Commitment to the profession involves raising professional standards, exercising professional judgment, influencing policies, and being part of professional organizations. It requires meeting and surpassing the standards of teaching, promoting a climate that encourages professional judgment, advocating teaching as a career, and preventing the practice of the profession by unqualified individuals.

What is the key context of schooling?

The key context of schooling encompasses principles such as commitment to students and commitment to the profession. It also includes assumptions about group orientation, diversity in schools, and the presence of a certain curriculum.

What are some assumptions about schooling?

Assumptions about schooling include group orientation activity, the presence of diverse people from different backgrounds, and the adherence to a specific curriculum.

What is the educational context of schooling?

The educational context of schooling involves teaching different subjects at various levels, including the literal level (learning facts and definitions), application level (understanding the practical use of content), and higher thinking levels (developing thinking and creativity skills).

What is the social context of schooling?

The social context of schooling emphasizes the importance of interpersonal relationships and social capital. It involves increasing the social capital of every student, promoting communication and collaboration among students, and recognizing the diversity of individuals within the school community.

What is the collegial context of schooling?

The collegial context of schooling emphasizes power and decision-making being shared among colleagues. It involves colleagues having a shared understanding of the institution's aims, promoting professional development through sharing ideas and work, establishing a learning community, and learning from mentors and colleagues.