What do you know about the conventional theatre style of seating? Explain.

Q41

With a theater-style arrangement, people in the audience are seated in rows and columns without tables. Theater-style seating is most common with Proactive presentation delivered to large audiences- Seating may also be arranged in this manner for a presentation to a smaller group that must meet in a room with limited space. As Figure indicates, if a podium is required, it should be placed to the side and toward the back of the platform (rather than in the center). Doing so opens up the platform for movement by the presenter, reduces the barrier a podium creates between presenter and audience, and discourages a presenter from dependence on the podium.

Question: 48 (Marks: 5)

Explain when do we use the technique of EMPHASIS in order to make our written message more effective?

Answer:

Q48

Emphasis

The technique of emphasis is used when you want certain words, phrases, clauses, or sentences to stand out. Some of the emphasis techniques that you can employ are position, repetition, quantity, and mechanics. Emphasis stands out in two positions: the beginning and the ending. The beginning is generally the preferred location, unless you are presenting negative information. When using the repetition technique, you simply repeat the words you want to emphasize. In addition, you can emphasize an idea by increasing the number of words devoted to its discussion. Emphasis can also be achieved by presenting a key idea in a short paragraph and then using the paragraphs that follow to present additional information. Finally, several mechanical means of emphasizing ideas are available, including underlining, putting information in all capitals, and using a different color ink. Writers must decide what needs emphasis, and then choose sentence structure. In the example below, the first of the two sentences illustrates how overuse of the repetition technique can have a negative impact

Logical Appeals: A logical appeal calls on human reason. In any argument you might use to persuade an audience, you make a claim and then support your claim with reasons or evidence. When appealing to your audience's logic, you might use three types of reasoning:-

- Analogy With analogy, you reason from specific evidence to specific evidence. For instance, to persuade employees to attend a planning session, you might use a town meeting analogy, comparing your company to a small community and your employees to valued members of that community.
- Induction With induction, you reason from specific evidence to general conclusion. To convince potential customers that your product is best, you might report the results of test marketing in which individuals preferred your product over others. After all, if some individuals prefer it, so will others.
- Deduction With deduction, you might reason from a generalization to a specific conclusion. To persuade your boss to hire additional employees, you might point to industry-wide projections and explain that industry activity (and thus your company's business) will be increasing rapidly over the next three months, so you'll need more employees to handle increased business.

Organizing stage involves a careful outlining of the topic which is helpful for various reasons. Discuss those reasons.

Several steps are found within each of the stages.

What are collection letters? Briefly explain.

Q46

Collection letters are also considered persuasive because the inclusion of motivationally oriented material is designed to get the reader to comply with your request. Because the reader may not be readily able nor willing to comply with your request, you have to take extra measures to assure compliance.

Use of one or more appeals in writing effective letters is discussed below:

Appeal to fair play

The fair-play appeal essentially says to the customer: "We have been fair with you by providing the quality of product and services that you have the right to receive, and now you need to be fair with us by paying your account in full."

The following example illustrates the use of fair-play appeal in a collection letter.

The special instructions in your order indicated that the glassware was needed by Dec. 10, so we sent the order to you by air express – at your expense

"It's not what you say but how you say it." Elaborate the statement with reference to the use of audience centered approach in writing disappointing news letters.

Q49

It's not what you say but how you say it. Your tone contributes to your message's effectiveness by helping your readers:

- Accept that your disappointing-news represents a firm decision.
 - Understand that, under the circumstances, your decision was fair and reasonable. Remain well disposed toward your business.- Preserve their pride.
- When establishing tone, strive for firmness, fairness, goodwill and respect
- Disappointing-news involves emotions.

You must acknowledge these emotions – empathic response. But you can't let those emotions interfere with your message.

Adopt audience-centered tone by paying attention to three things:

1. Using the "you"-attitude

Using the "you" attitude is crucial to every message you write, but it's especially important in disappointing-news messages. For example, point out how your decision might actually further your audience's goals. Convey concern by looking for the best in your audience. And assume that your audience is interested in being fair, even when they are at fault.

2. Choose Positive words

You can ease disappointment by using positive words rather than negative, counterproductive ones.

Avoid a negative tone Use a positive tone

I can't understand what you mean Pl. clarify your request

The damage won't be fixed for a week. The item will be repaired next week

The breakage was not our fault. The
