Effective Communication and ways to remove these barriers
The complex factors in the communication pose barriers to effective communication.

Individual barriers
Include perceptual biases, which function as noise by affecting how the receiver gathers, organizes, and interprets information.

Organizational barriers
To effective communication include organizational culture and structure, status differences, and time.

Active listening is a good way to minimize both individual and organizational barriers to effective communication. In active listening, the receiver assumes a conscious and dynamic role in the communication process through a variety of behaviors and actions. Both the sender and the message are targets for the active listener.

Feedback Is information about some behavior and its effect. Managers need to provide feedback to employees about their job performance; they also give feedback to suppliers and customers about various matters.
Managers often have difficulty giving negative feedback—just as employees tend to stop actively listening to negative feedback. Therefore, effective feedback should be fact-based, timely, and focused on behaviors. A number of interpersonal and intrapersonal barriers effect the decoding of a message.

Filtering refers to manipulating information so that it will be received more favorably*.
 Filtering is most likely to occur where there is emphasis on status differences and among employees with strong career mobility aspirations.
 Expect more filtering taking place in large corporations than in small business firms.

With selective perception
Receivers see and hear based on their needs, motivations, experience, background, and other personal characteristics.

Information overload
Happens when individuals have more information than they can sort out and use; they tend to select out, ignore, pass over, or forget information, etc.

Emotions:
When people feel that they're being threatened, they tend to react in ways that reduce their ability to achieve mutual understanding.

Language*:
The meanings of words are not in the words; they are in us.
 Employees come from diverse backgrounds and have different patterns of speech.
While we speak a common language--English-our usage of that language is far from uniform.
An estimated 5 to 20 percent of the population suffers from debilitating communication apprehension or anxiety.

Question No: 2
When organizational people do indulged themselves in organizational politics? Discuss any five factors in detail.

Answer:
Organizational politics are actions that allow people in organizations to attain goals without going through ceremonial channels.
There are few factors that result in political activities in an organization and are explained as under.

1. Changes in Leadership which changes conventional associations and processes can create an opportunity for increased political behavior.

2. Changes in Coordination and integration of organizational activities used to achieve common goals can also lead to an increase in political behavior.

3. Changes in any of the five contextual forces, i.e. environment, technology, strategy, culture, and structure, can generate uncertainty over resource allocation, leading to an increase in political behavior.

4. Blame & Integration. Blaming and attacking others to deflect attention from one's mistakes and using ingratiating behavior to gain favor are unethical and negative types of political actions.

5. Building Relationship. People develop relationships through coalitions, grouping, networks, and accommodating managerial linkages. Coalitions are relationships formed over specific issues.

Question No: 3 (Marks: 10)
In order to get advantage of each method, will it be a sensible decision to simultaneously apply all the four methods of job evaluation?

Four methods of Job evaluation

1. Ranking Method: Raters examine the description of each job being evaluated and assemble the jobs according to their value to the corporation. This technique requires a team characteristically composed of both management and employee delegate to arrange job in a simple rank order from uppermost to lowest.

2. Classification Method: A job evaluation method by which a number of classes or ratings are defined to explain a group of jobs is known as categorization method. The classifications are created by identifying some common denominator skills, knowledge, and responsibilities with the desired goal being the criterion of a number of distinctive classes or grades of jobs.

3. Factor Comparison Method
Raters need not keep the entire job in mind as they evaluate instead, they make decisions on separate phases, or issues, of the job. A basic fundamental hypothesis is that there are five universal job factors:

(1) Mental Requirements

(2) Skills

(3) Physical Requirements

(4) Responsibilities

(5) Working Conditions.

4. Point Method: Raters assign numerical values to specific job components, and the sum of these values provides a quantitative appraisal of a job's relative significance. The point method requires selection of job factors according to the nature of the specific group of jobs being evaluated.
the analysts select and define the factors to be used in measuring job value and which become the standards used for the evaluation of jobs. Education, experience, job knowledge, mental effort, physical effort, responsibility, and working conditions are examples of factors typically used.

Identify the methods that can be adopted to maximize the effectiveness of learning.

ANS: Maximize Effectiveness of Learning:
To maximize the effectiveness of learning the following methods (learning principles) should be adopted:

1. Participation: Learning is only effective when the learners participate in the learning process. So such conditions should be provided to learners so that they participate in the learning process.

2. Repetition: An important aspect to enhance learning is repetition that is given the learner the opportunity to practice what he is being taught.

3. Relevance: Learning must be problem centered rather than content centered. People should be trained when there is some deficiency in them and the learning is solving that problem.

4. Transference: Learning is no effective if it is not transferred to actual workplace so that trainees should apply what they have learned the skills and knowledge to workplace to increase their productivity. So it should be ensured that transfer of learning takes place.

5. Feedback: Feedback of performance is necessary for learning. Feedback helps employees to improve their performance.

Types of Conflict

 Task conflict: Conflicts over content and goals of the work

 Relationship conflict: Conflict based on interpersonal relationships

 Process conflict: Conflict over how work get done

Sources of Power

Three types of power derive from the person's formal position in the organization:

 Legitimate power: It is based on a person holding a formal position;

 Reward Power: reward power, based on a person's access to rewards.

 Coercive Power: coercive power, based on a person's ability to punish.

 Expert power,: Expert power is based on personal expertise and knowledge

 Referent Power: referent power, based on a person's attractiveness to others.

How organizations conduct the collective bargaining process?

The Collective Bargaining Process

Both external and internal environmental factors can influence the process. The first step in the collective bargaining process is preparing for negotiations. This step is often extensive and ongoing for both union and management.

After the issues to be negotiated have been determined, the two sides confer to reach a mutually acceptable contract. Although breakdowns in negotiations can occur, both labor and management have at their disposal tools and arguments that can be used to convince the other side to accept their views. Eventually, however, management and the union usually reach an agreement that defines the rules of the game for the duration of the contract.

The next step is for the union membership to ratify the agreement. There is a feedback loop from "Administration of the Agreement" to "Preparing for Negotiation."

Collective bargaining is a continuous and dynamic process, and preparing for the next round of negotiations often begins the moment a contract is ratified.
