- General public
- Internal publics

Citizen-action publics

A company's marketing decisions may be questioned by consumer organizations, environmental groups, minority groups, and others. Its public relations department can help it stay in touch with consumer and citizen groups

Local publics

This group includes local community residents and organizations. Large companies usually work to become responsible members of the local communities in which they operate.

General public

A company needs to be concerned about the general public's attitude toward its products and activities. The public's image of the company affects its buying behavior.

Internal publics

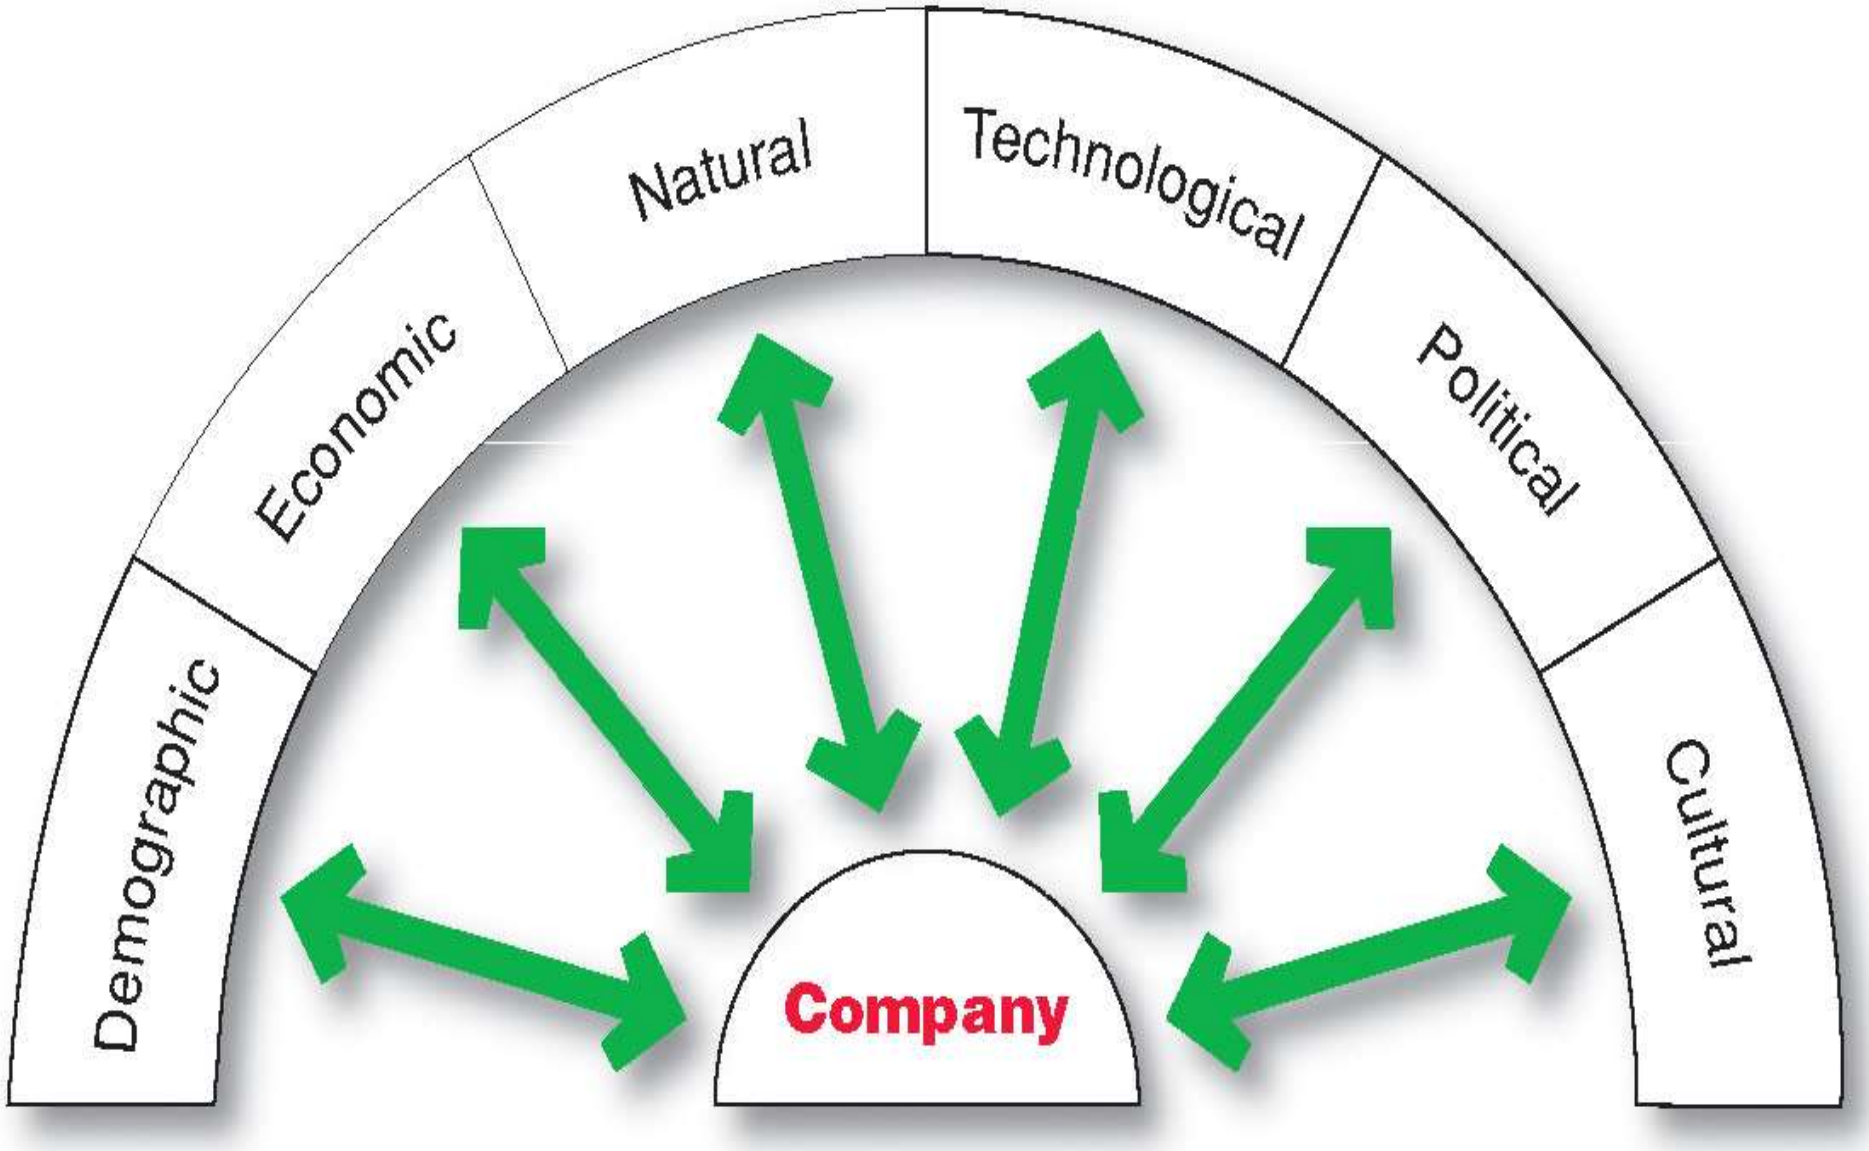

This group includes workers, managers, volunteers, and the board of directors. Large companies use newsletters and other means to inform and motivate their internal publics. When employees feel good about the companies they work for, this positive attitude spills over to the external publics.

Place/Placement/Distribution

What is Place?

- ✓ Marketing function which deals in making products (Goods/Services) available for purchase and use of the target market.

Place/Placement/Distribution

What is Place?

Place includes the use of different channels/intermediaries of distribution to make available products for customers such as wholesalers and retailers.

What is Placement?

The aim of placement is to promote products, connect buyers with producers and physically distribute products.

Value Delivery Network

Value delivery network is the firm's suppliers, distributors, and ultimately customers who partner with each other to improve the performance of the entire system.

Upstream Partners

Upstream partners include raw material suppliers, components, parts, information, finances, and expertise to create a product or service.

Place/Placement/Distribution

Downstream Partners

Downstream partners include the marketing channels or distribution channels that look toward the customer.

Place/Placement/Distribution

Intermediaries

Offer producers greater efficiency in making goods available to target markets. Through their contacts, experience, specialization, and scale of operations, intermediaries usually offer the firm more than it can achieve on its own.

How Channel Members Add Value?

First.....

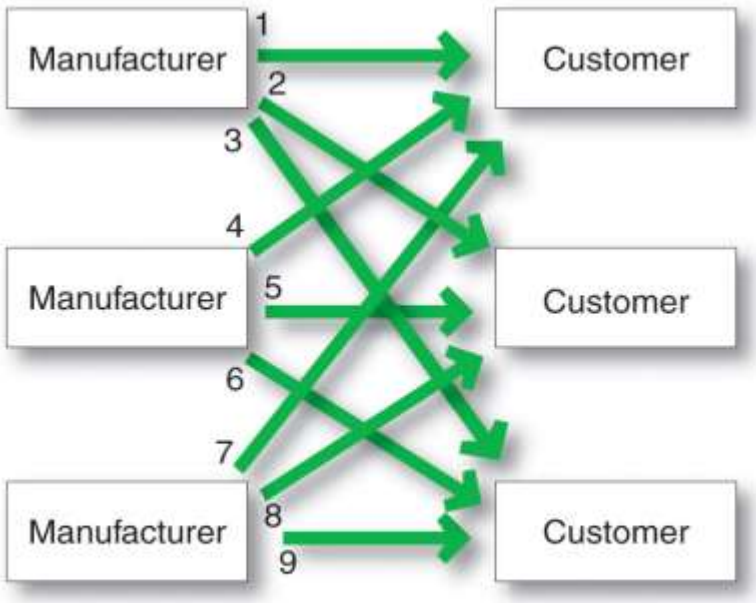

From an economic view, intermediaries transform the assortment of products into assortments wanted by consumers.

How Channel Members Add Value?

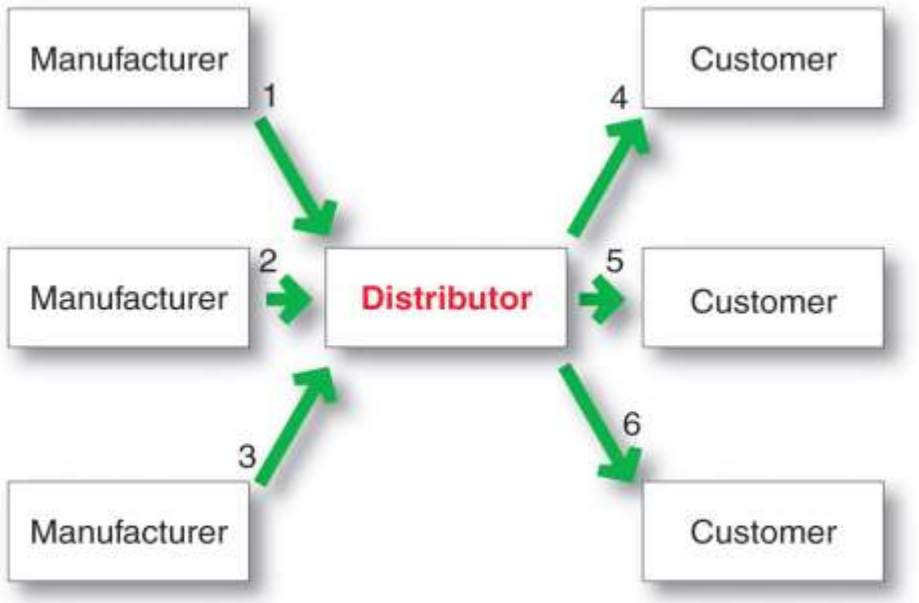

Second……..

Channel members add value by bridging the major time, place, and possession gaps that separate goods and services from those who would use them.

How Channel Members Add Value?

A. Number of contacts without a distributor
M × C = 3 × 3 = 9

B. Number of contacts with a distributor
M + C = 3 + 3 = 6

How Channel Members Add Value?

- Information
- Promotion
- Contact
- Matching

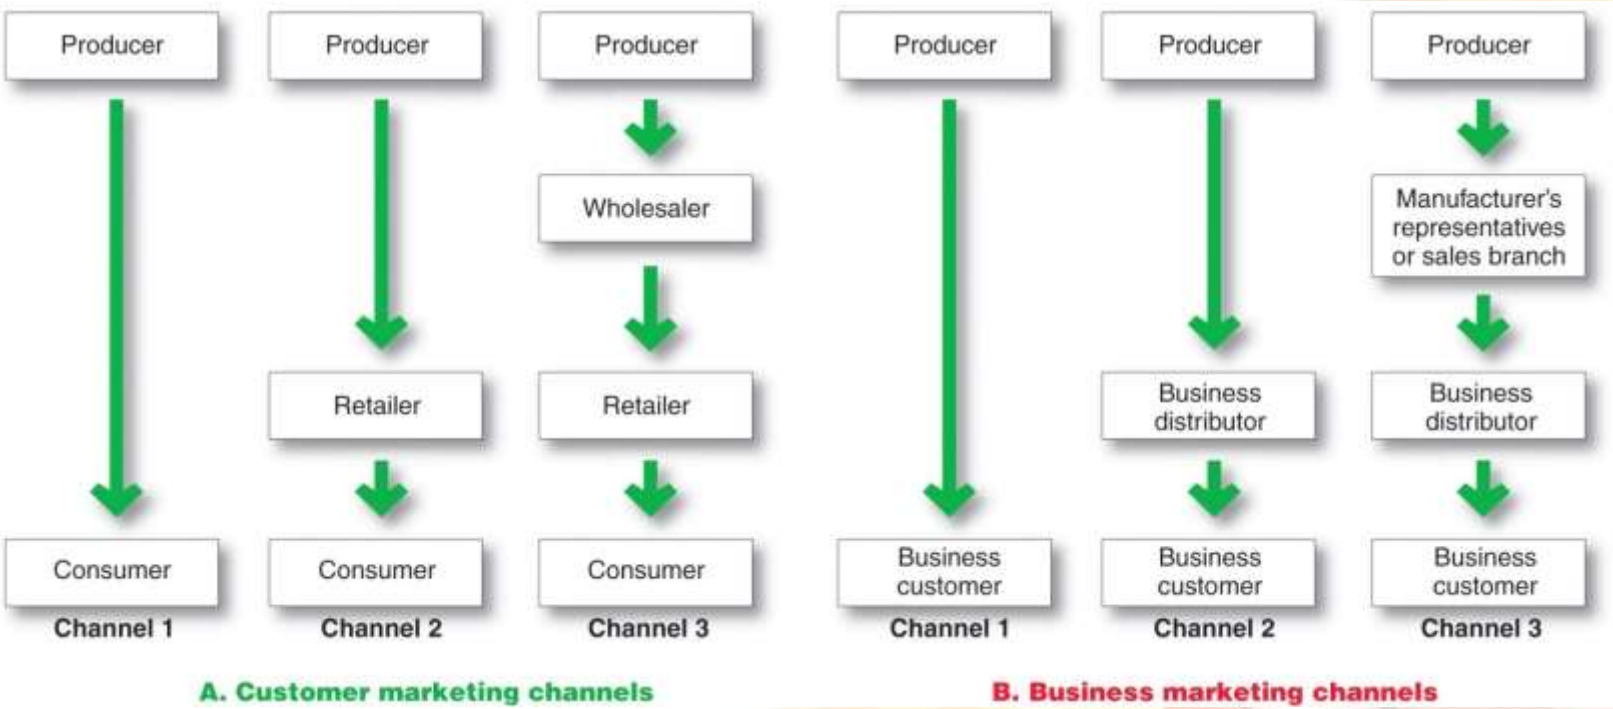

How Channel Members Add Value?

- Negotiation
- Physical distribution
- Financing
- Risk taking

Place/Placement/Distribution

- Physical flow of products
- Flow of ownership
- Payment flow
- Information flow
- Promotion flow

Number of Channel Levels

Place/Placement/Distribution

- Marketing channel consists of firms that have partnered for their common good with each member playing a specialized role.

Place/Placement/Distribution

- Conventional distribution systems consist of one or more independent producers, wholesalers, and retailers. Each seeks to maximize its own profits, and there is little control over the other members and no formal means for assigning roles and resolving conflict.

Place/Placement/Distribution

- Vertical marketing systems (VMSs) provide channel leadership and consist of producers, wholesalers, and retailers acting as a unified system and consist of:
- Corporate marketing systems
- Contractual marketing systems
- Administered marketing systems

Place/Placement/Distribution

- Corporate vertical marketing system integrates successive stages of production and distribution under single ownership.

Place/Placement/Distribution

- ✓ Direct and digital marketing involves engaging directly with carefully targeted individual consumers and customer communities to both obtain an immediate response and build lasting customer relationships.

Place/Placement/Distribution

- Contractual vertical marketing system consists of independent firms at different levels of production and distribution who join together through contracts to obtain more economies or sales impact than each could achieve alone. The most common form is the franchise organization.

Place/Placement/Distribution

- ✓ Franchise organization links several stages in the production distribution process
- ✓ Manufacturer-sponsored retailer franchise system
- ✓ Manufacturer-sponsored wholesaler franchise system
- ✓ Service firm-sponsored retailer franchise system

Place/Placement/Distribution

- ✓ Administered vertical marketing system has a few dominant channel members without common ownership. Leadership comes from size and power.

Place/Placement/Distribution

Horizontal marketing systems are when two or more companies at one level join together to follow a new marketing opportunity. Companies combine financial, production, or marketing resources to accomplish more than any one company could alone.

Multichannel Distribution systems (Hybrid marketing channels) are when a single firm sets up two or more marketing channels to reach one or more customer segments

Place/Placement/Distribution

Channel Design Decisions

- ✓ Analyzing consumer needs
- ✓ Setting channel objectives
- ✓ Identifying major channel alternatives
- ✓ Evaluation

Types of Distribution

- ✓ Intensive distribution
- ✓ Exclusive distribution
- ✓ Selective distribution

Intensive Distribution

- A marketing strategy under which a company sells through as many outlets as possible, so that the consumers encounter the product virtually everywhere they go: supermarkets, drug stores, gas stations, and the like. Soft drinks are generally made available through intensive distribution.

Exclusive Distribution

- Distribution is exclusive whe n only certain retailers are given the option of carrying a product in its store.
- Exclusive distribution is an agreement between a supplier and a retailer granting the retailer exclusive rights within a specific geographical area to carry the supplier's product.

Selective Distribution

- Selective Distribution is a type of distribution strategy that lies and operates between intensive and exclusive distribution.
- Selective Distribution involves using more than one, but lesser than all the intermediaries and distributors who carry the company's products on a basis of a company specific set of rules.

Channel Management Decisions

- ✓ Selecting channel members
- ✓ Managing channel members
- ✓ Motivating channel members
- ✓ Evaluating channel members

Place/Placement/Distribution

- ✓ Exclusive distribution is when the seller allows only certain outlets to carry its products
- ✓ Exclusive dealing is when the seller requires that the sellers not handle competitor's products

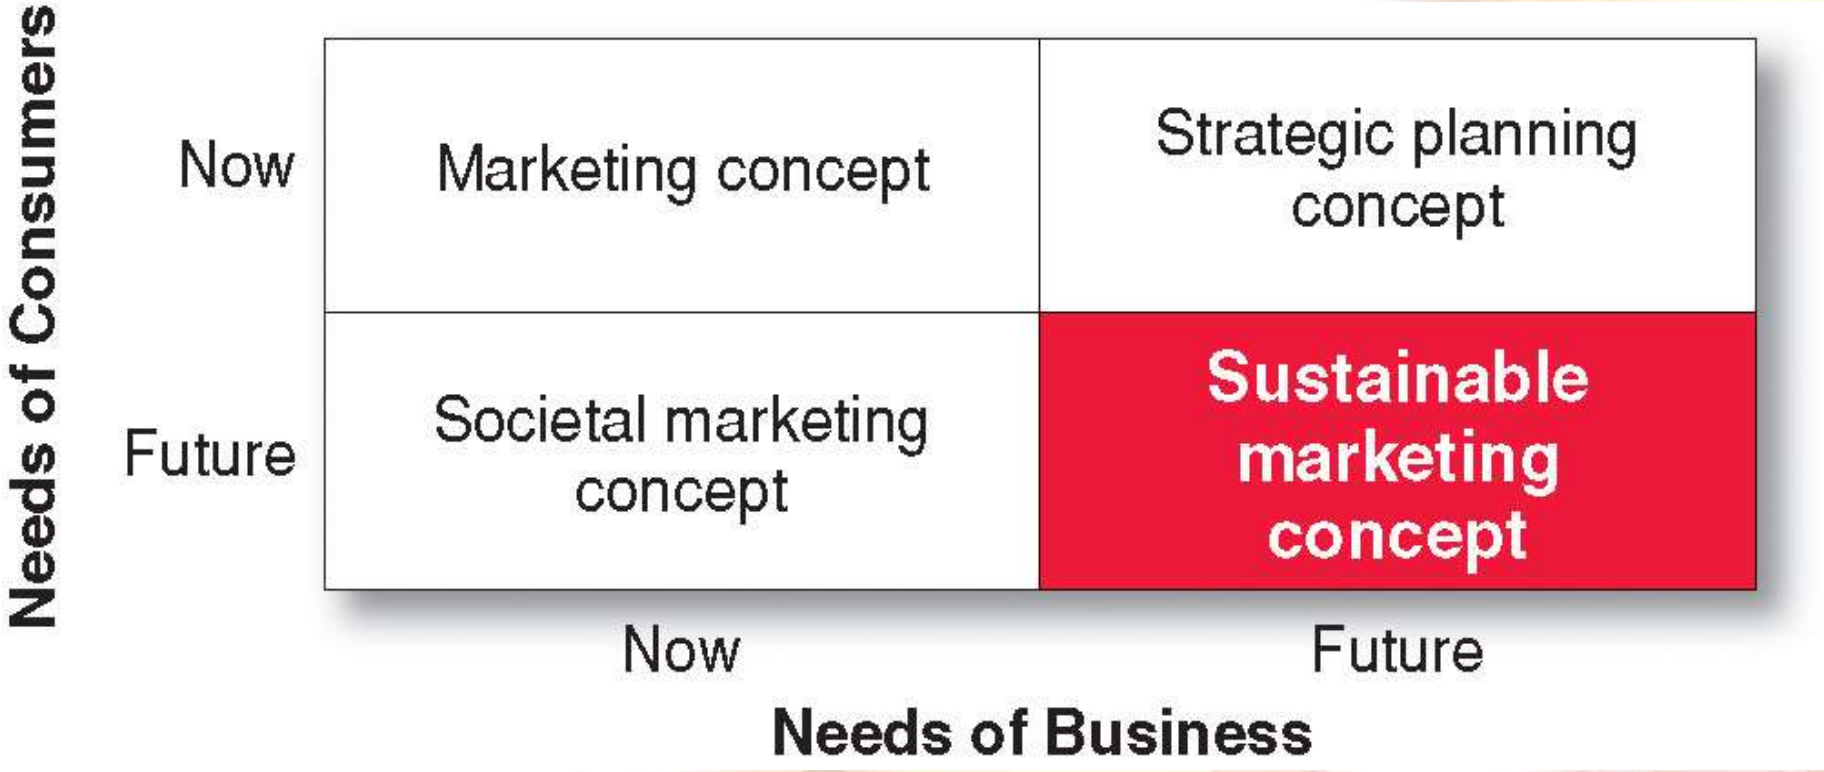

Place/Placement/Distribution

- ✓ Exclusive territorial agreements are where producer or seller limit territory
- ✓ Tying agreements are agreements where the dealer must take most or all of the line

Marketing Ethics

Marketing ethics are broad guidelines that everyone in the organization must follow that cover distributor relations, advertising standards, customer service, pricing, product development, and general ethical standards.

Marketing Ethics

Do no harm:

This means consciously avoiding harmful actions or omissions by embodying high ethical standards and adhering to all applicable laws and regulations in the choices we make.

Marketing Ethics

Foster trust in the marketing system:
This means striving for good faith and fair dealing so as to contribute toward the efficacy of the exchange process as well as avoiding deception in product design, pricing, communication, and delivery or distribution.

Marketing Ethics

Embrace ethical values:

This means building relationships and enhancing consumer confidence in the integrity of marketing by affirming these core values: honesty, responsibility, fairness, respect, transparency, and citizenship.

To remember …….

At the foundation of marketing is the belief that companies that fulfill the needs and wants of customers will thrive.

To remember …….

Companies that fail to meet customer needs, or that intentionally or unintentionally harm customers, others in society, or future generations will decline.

To remember …….

A sustainable company goes beyond caring for the needs of today's customers and has concern for tomorrow's customers and the broader world.
