Question No: 36 (Marks: 5)

Is it necessary to conduct 'Job analysis' for each & every position within an organization?

Answer:

Job analysis is thesystematic process of determining the skills and knowledge required for performing jobs.

Reasons For Conducting Job Analysis

A sound job analysis system is extremely critical for numerous reasons.

• Staffing—All areas of staffing would be haphazard if the recruiter did not know the qualifications needed to perform the job.

• Training And Development—if the specification suggests that the job requires a particular knowledge, skill, or ability—and the person filling the position does not possess all the qualifications required—training and/or development is probably in order.

• Compensation and Benefits—The relative value of a particular job to the company must be known before a dollar value can be placed on it. From an internal perspective the more significant its duties and responsibilities, the more the job is worth.

• Safety and Health—Information derived from job analysis is also valuable in identifying safety and health considerations.

• Employee and Labor Relations—Regardless of whether the firm is unionized, information obtained through job analysis can often lead to more objective human resource decisions.

• Legal Considerations—having properly accomplished a job analysis is particularly important for supporting the legality of employment practices.
