

ENG503

1. Teaching the Sentence Patterns of English Language: This is about helping students understand how sentences are structured in English, like where to place subjects, verbs, and objects to make meaningful sentences.
2. Studying and Teaching the Meaning of Language: This involves teaching students how words and sentences in English convey meanings, including understanding vocabulary, idioms, and how context affects meaning.
3. Understanding and Teaching the Language in Use: This is about teaching how English is used in real-life situations, including conversation, writing, and reading, in practical, everyday contexts.
4. Language and Society: This looks at how language is influenced by and influences society. It includes topics like how language reflects culture, identity, social groups, and power.
5. Teaching Discourse Analysis: Discourse analysis teaches students to study larger pieces of text (like conversations or articles) to understand how language is used in context, including things like tone, structure, and meaning.
6. Teaching World Englishes: This focuses on teaching students about the different varieties of English spoken around the world, such as British English, American English, or Indian English.
7. Teaching of Vocabulary: This is the practice of teaching students new words, their meanings, how to use them, and how to remember them.
8. Teaching Grammar: Grammar teaching focuses on rules that govern how words and sentences are formed in English, such as tense, word order, and punctuation.
9. Teaching of Pronunciation: This is about helping students pronounce English words correctly, including the right sounds, stress, and intonation patterns.
10. Teaching of Creative Writing: This encourages students to use their imagination to write original pieces, like stories, poems, and essays, while learning writing skills.
11. Corpora and Language Teaching: This refers to using large collections of real-life English texts (called corpora) to help teach English by analyzing how language is actually used.
12. Curriculum Development in Language Teaching: This is about designing and organizing courses, lessons, and materials to teach English effectively to students.
13. Use of Literary Texts for Teaching English Language: This involves using books, poems, plays, and other literary works as tools to teach language, improving vocabulary and reading skills while exploring themes and styles.
14. Lesson Planning: Lesson planning is the process of designing a structured plan for what will be taught in each class, including activities and materials.
15. Classroom Issues and Management in ELT (English Language Teaching): This involves dealing with challenges in the classroom, like student behavior, motivation, and ensuring a positive and productive learning environment.

16. Skills and Roles of English Language Teachers: This refers to the various skills teachers need (like communication, patience, creativity) and the roles they play (like instructor, guide, counselor) in the classroom.
17. Computer Assisted Language Learning (CALL): CALL uses technology, like computers and software, to help students learn English more interactively and effectively.
18. Learner Motivation and Interest: This focuses on how to keep students interested and motivated to learn English, making lessons engaging and relevant to their lives.
19. Culture, Identity, and ELT: This looks at how culture and identity shape the way people learn and use English, and how teaching English can also help shape students' cultural understanding and personal identity.
20. Research Methodology and Trends in ELT: This involves studying how English language teaching is researched and understood, including new teaching methods, strategies, and trends.
21. ELT in Pakistan: This refers to the specific challenges and methods of teaching English in Pakistan, including cultural factors, the role of English in the country, and the education system.

