MGTE630 Quiz 2 File by Tanveer Online Academy

| | |
|---|---|
| Capturing knowledge is the process of converting individual knowledge into a: | Collective |
| A representation of the “mental model” of a person’s knowledge is: | Cognitive maps |
| Ability to use learned material in new and concrete situations is: | Application |
| Bloom taxonomy of the cognitive domain has: | 6 |
| Which one of these domain of Bloom taxonomy is less widely used in knowledge management? | Psychomotor |
| Institutions, relationships, and norms that shape the quality and quantity of an organization’s social interactions is: | Social capital |
| A Web-based questionnaire used on a voluntary basis is called: | AskMe |
| The term “knowledge network” is interchangeably used with: | Community of practice |
| The fifth level of Bloom taxonomy of the cognitive domain is: | Synthesis |
| In a CoP, members who have the time and energy to take on more official roles are called: | Leaders |
| Which one of these acquisition processes, "Learning is within the firm and occurs by doing" | Inferential knowledge |
| The manner in which we deal with things emotionally is called: | Affective domain |
| A form of task-oriented group work and learning is called: | Action learning |
| The goal of ensuring that members share best practices in knowledge networks is called: | Coordination |

| | |
|---|---|
| In knowledge management systems, subject matter experts are used to capture: | Tacit knowledge |
| Tonnies, who contrasted the concept of 'community' from 'society' was a sociologist from: | Germany |
| The major approach used to elicit tacit knowledge from experts is: | Interviewing |
| | |
| | |
| | |
| | |
| | |
| | |
| | |
| | |
| | |
| | |
| | |
| | |
| | |
| | |
| | |
| | |