بِسۡمِ ٱللَّهِ ٱلرَّحۡمَٰنِ ٱلرَّحِيمِ

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful

.....STUDY CHANELL LINK.....

join our WhatsApp channel

https://whatsapp.com/channel/0029VaODheTDp2Q8YVcoON2p

MKT 501 MIDTERM PART

OBJECTIVE

1. Marketing links the producers of goods and services with the _____ and potential customers. (existing)
2. The speed of change in marketing is described as _____. (stupendous)
3. The emergence of shopping malls has totally changed the _____ outlook. (business)
4. Marketers are today faced with tough _____ decisions. (strategic)
5. “Marketing for the _____” is a self-explanatory term. (millennium)
6. Websites today are perhaps as important as _____. (packing)
7. Marketing involves creating, promoting, and delivering _____ and services. (goods)
8. The markets have expanded from cities to _____. (international)
9. Internet and satellite communication have made the globe shrink to almost a few _____. (seconds)
10. Marketing requires understanding products, experiences, and even _____. (ideas)
11. A _____ is an individual who derives direct utility from the product. (consumer)
12. A customer is someone who _____ a certain product. (selects or buys)
13. Consumers tend to derive maximum _____ within their budget. (utility)
14. There are _____ types of customers: internal and external. (two)
15. Selling of mass consumer goods is categorized under _____ markets. (consumer)
16. Selling goods to skilled evaluators falls under _____ markets. (business)
17. Exporting products involves decisions like how to _____ and communicate. (price)
18. Legal systems and political situations are challenges in _____ markets. (global)
19. Selling to charitable organizations falls under _____ and governmental markets. (non-profit)
20. Marketers must determine the right product, price, place, and _____. (promotion)

21. Needs can be described as basic _____ requirements. (human)
22. A _____ becomes a want when directed towards a specific object. (need)
23. A want becomes a demand when backed by the ability to _____. (pay)
24. Marketers' job is not to create _____ but to fulfill them. (needs)
25. Long-term association with customers is called Customer _____ Value. (Lifetime)
26. Customer Experience Management focuses on managing the customer's entire _____ with the product. (experience)
27. Commodities are products that are perceived to have the same _____ as competing products. (features)
28. Building long-term relationships between companies and customers is called _____ marketing. (relationship)
29. CEM treats customers as the most valuable _____. (asset)
30. Marketers must get to know customers' needs, wants, and _____. (lifestyles)
31. Structuring the customer interface involves managing all _____ such as ordering and delivery. (intangibles)
32. Experiential _____ involves improving the customer's viewpoint on products and services. (innovation)
33. CEM relies on reliable processes and _____ for interacting with customers. (procedures)
34. A general rule of CEM is to provide _____-friendly complaint registration. (user)
35. Marketers must ensure fast _____ service for better customer satisfaction. (backup)
36. Marketing is also about keeping the environment clean, neat, and _____. (fair)
37. Marketing management involves the task environment and the _____ environment. (broad)
38. The _____ environment includes demographic, natural, economic, and political factors. (broad)
39. The task environment includes suppliers, distributors, and _____. (consumers)
40. Marketing challenges involve finding what is _____ for the right people. (right)

SUBJECTIVE

1. What is the concept of marketing orientation, and how does it differ from previous business philosophies such as production and sales orientation?

Marketing orientation is a business philosophy that prioritizes understanding and satisfying the needs and wants of customers. A marketing-oriented firm systematically commits to creating customer value by aligning its strategies and operations around consumer preferences. Unlike earlier approaches, marketing orientation focuses on research, consumer satisfaction, and innovation as key drivers for success.

Historically, this concept emerged in the late 1960s and 1970s, replacing the production orientation and sales orientation models. Production orientation, prevalent before the 1950s, emphasized efficiency in manufacturing and low costs. Businesses operating under this philosophy assumed that consumers prioritized availability and affordability over variety or customization. The emphasis was on producing goods in mass quantities without significant concern for individual customer preferences.

Sales orientation, which gained prominence from the mid-1950s to the early 1970s, focused heavily on aggressive sales techniques and promotion. Businesses in this era believed that consumers could be persuaded to buy products through extensive marketing campaigns and sales efforts, even if the products didn't fully meet their needs.

In contrast, marketing orientation focuses on understanding and addressing consumer needs before production begins. Firms conduct thorough market research to determine what customers want and adjust their offerings accordingly. This approach aims to establish long-term relationships with customers by delivering value and satisfaction, which creates loyalty and competitive advantage.

2. Explain the three-step process of applying the marketing orientation concept in a firm.

The application of marketing orientation involves three key steps:

1. Researching customer wants and needs:
   This initial step requires a firm to gather in-depth insights into what customers desire. Various research techniques, such as surveys, focus groups, and industry analysis, help identify consumer preferences and trends. The firm must go beyond surface-level data to uncover real, unstated, and even secret needs that influence buying decisions. For example, a customer might say they want an inexpensive car (stated need) but also expect durability (unstated need) and prestige (secret need).
2. Disseminating information throughout the firm and developing products:
   Once customer insights are collected, the information must be shared across all departments. This ensures that the organization operates cohesively to design, produce, and market products that meet identified needs. Collaboration between marketing, production, and quality control teams is crucial to ensure seamless execution. For instance, if research reveals that customers value environmentally friendly packaging, the production team must implement sustainable practices to align with this demand.
3. Monitoring customer satisfaction and making adjustments:
   Customer satisfaction is not a one-time goal but an ongoing process. Firms must continuously monitor feedback through complaint systems, hotlines, and satisfaction surveys. Adjustments to products or services are made based on feedback to maintain relevance and competitiveness. For example, if customers express dissatisfaction with delivery times, a company might invest in logistics improvements.

By following this process, a firm can build trust, enhance customer loyalty, and achieve a sustainable competitive advantage.

---

3. What techniques and tools are used by marketing-oriented firms to understand customer needs and preferences?

Marketing-oriented firms employ a variety of tools and techniques to gain insights into customer preferences. These methods include both quantitative and qualitative approaches, ensuring a comprehensive understanding of the target audience:

- Quantitative research: Surveys and questionnaires are commonly used to collect measurable data, such as customer satisfaction scores or purchase frequency. This data is analyzed to identify trends and preferences.
- Qualitative research: Techniques like focus groups and advisory panels provide deeper insights into customer attitudes and emotions. These methods help uncover the "why" behind consumer behavior, which is often missed in quantitative research.
- Industry and market analysis: Firms use tools like Porter's Five Forces to understand market dynamics, competition, and potential threats. This strategic insight helps businesses anticipate customer needs and stay ahead of competitors.
- Customer feedback channels: Face-to-face meetings with customers, frontline staff, and user groups (e.g., beta testing) allow firms to gather direct feedback. For example, sales representatives can relay valuable insights from their interactions with customers.
- Complaint management systems: Hotlines and customer service channels (web or telephone) enable firms to address issues promptly and identify recurring problems.
- Frequent user programs and databases: Loyalty programs and customer databases provide firms with behavioral data, helping them predict future needs and tailor offerings accordingly.

By integrating these techniques, marketing-oriented firms can stay attuned to their customers and adapt to changing demands effectively.

---

4. What is sustainable competitive advantage, and why is it crucial for marketing-oriented firms?

A sustainable competitive advantage is a unique edge that a firm holds over its competitors, enabling it to outperform them consistently. It arises from core competencies that are difficult to replicate, superior to alternatives, and applicable across multiple markets.

Key characteristics of sustainable competitive advantage include:

1. Difficult to mimic: Competitors should find it challenging to replicate the advantage, whether it is a unique product feature or proprietary technology.

2. Unique: The advantage must distinguish the firm from others in the market.
3. Sustainable: The advantage should endure over time, even as markets evolve.
4. Superior to competition: The firm's offering must provide greater value than competitors'.
5. Applicable to multiple situations: The advantage should benefit the firm in diverse contexts.

Examples include customer focus, accumulated brand equity, patents, and superior management teams. For instance, Apple's brand reputation and innovation capabilities create a lasting competitive advantage.

However, some experts argue that in a fast-changing business environment, no advantage is truly sustainable. They contend that agility and adaptability are the ultimate competitive advantages. A firm that remains alert to market changes and continuously innovates can always maintain its edge.

For marketing-oriented firms, sustainable competitive advantage ensures customer loyalty, market leadership, and long-term profitability.

---

5. What is a core competency, and how does it relate to achieving a sustainable competitive advantage?

A core competency is a unique capability that allows a company to perform better than its competitors. It is an integrated set of skills, knowledge, and processes that delivers exceptional value to customers and forms the foundation for a sustainable competitive advantage.

Core competencies possess three defining characteristics:

1. Access to multiple markets: They enable firms to serve diverse markets effectively. For example, Toyota's expertise in lean manufacturing allows it to excel in various automotive segments.
2. Increased customer benefits: Core competencies create value for customers, enhancing their overall experience and satisfaction.
3. Difficult to imitate: Competitors find it challenging to replicate core competencies due to their complexity or uniqueness.

For marketing-oriented firms, core competencies such as superior customer service or innovative product development help build lasting relationships with customers. These competencies also enable firms to adapt to market changes and sustain their competitive advantage over time.

---

6. Compare and contrast the five competing marketing philosophies: production, product, selling, marketing, and societal concepts.

The five marketing philosophies differ in focus, approach, and objectives:

- Production Concept: Focuses on mass production and affordability. Works best for basic goods where availability and price are the primary concerns, e.g., utilities.
- Product Concept: Emphasizes superior quality and innovation. Often seen in industries like technology and automobiles but risks neglecting customer preferences.
- Selling Concept: Relies on aggressive promotion and sales techniques. Common for "unsought goods" like insurance but can lead to customer dissatisfaction if needs aren't met.
- Marketing Concept: Centers on understanding and fulfilling customer needs. Encourages long-term loyalty by prioritizing customer satisfaction.
- Societal Concept: Extends the marketing approach to include societal welfare. Balances profit, customer satisfaction, and environmental or social concerns.

Each philosophy has its advantages, but the societal concept is increasingly relevant due to modern challenges like sustainability and ethical consumerism.

---

7. How does modern marketing integrate societal concerns, and what are the key marketing themes of the millennium?

Modern marketing integrates societal concerns by adopting the societal marketing concept, which aims to deliver value while considering the well-being of society and the environment. Businesses are increasingly addressing issues like sustainability, resource conservation, and ethical practices in their marketing strategies.

Key themes of modern marketing include:

- Relationship Marketing: Building long-term connections with customers to foster loyalty.
- Customer Lifetime Value: Ensuring consistent delivery of value to retain customers over their lifetime.
- Customer Share: Expanding product offerings to existing customers to increase revenue.
- Individualization: Personalizing experiences and treating customers as unique individuals.
- Channel Partnerships: Collaborating with distributors and retailers to enhance efficiency and reach.

By focusing on these themes, modern marketing aligns profitability with ethical and sustainable practices, meeting both business goals and societal expectations.

Q8: How does the task environment affect marketing decisions?

The task environment encompasses immediate actors such as suppliers, distributors, dealers, and consumers who directly participate in production, distribution, and promotion. This environment is critical because:

- Suppliers: Dependability and costs from suppliers impact production schedules, pricing strategies, and product quality. Companies must maintain good relationships with suppliers to ensure uninterrupted supply chains.
- Distributors and Dealers: Their reach and effectiveness influence how and where a product is available. Poor performance in this area can limit market penetration.
- Consumers: Understanding consumer behavior, preferences, and needs is fundamental to designing products and marketing strategies. Market research, feedback mechanisms, and trend analysis play crucial roles in this regard.

  Any misalignment in the task environment can lead to operational inefficiencies, unmet consumer expectations, and loss of competitive advantage.

Q9: What role does the broad environment play in shaping marketing decisions?

The broad environment consists of uncontrollable external factors like demographic trends, natural conditions, economic factors, and technology. For instance:

- Demographics: Age, gender, and income distributions influence product demand and segmentation. For example, younger demographics may prefer tech-oriented products.
- Economic Conditions: Inflation, interest rates, and economic growth dictate consumer spending and pricing strategies. A recession might prompt companies to emphasize affordability.
- Technology: Advances in technology enable innovation and efficiency. Firms need to adapt by incorporating new tools like AI or digital marketing platforms.

  Marketers must remain flexible, monitor these factors continuously, and adjust strategies to maintain relevance and efficiency.

Q10: How do controllable factors impact marketing strategies?

Controllable factors, governed by the organization's top management, influence marketing strategies directly:

- Line of Business: This defines the scope of products and services offered. For instance, a company focused on health and wellness may tailor its offerings to cater to fitness-conscious consumers.
- Corporate Culture: A customer-centric corporate culture prioritizes consumer feedback, shaping products and services accordingly.
- Marketing Role: Companies that view marketing as a critical function invest more in innovation, promotions, and research, resulting in greater consumer engagement.

  By managing these factors effectively, businesses ensure alignment between internal goals and external market demands.

Q11: Why is monitoring and flexibility essential in marketing decisions?
Monitoring helps organizations stay informed about changes in their marketing environment, while flexibility ensures that strategies can adapt to these changes.

- Monitoring: Tools like market research, competitor analysis, and trend tracking enable businesses to detect opportunities and threats promptly.
- Flexibility: Companies need to pivot their strategies to align with new consumer preferences or technological advancements. For example, the rapid adoption of online shopping during the pandemic required many retailers to enhance their e-commerce platforms.
  Failing to monitor and adapt can result in lost opportunities and reduced competitiveness.

Q12: Discuss the influence of government regulations on marketing decisions.
Government policies, laws, and regulations impact marketing decisions significantly:

- Compliance Requirements: Companies must adhere to advertising standards, product safety laws, and labeling regulations. Non-compliance can lead to penalties or product bans.
- Taxation Policies: These affect pricing and profitability. High import duties may prompt companies to source locally.
- Subsidies and Incentives: Certain government incentives can encourage businesses to develop specific products, such as renewable energy solutions.
  Marketers need to stay informed about legal frameworks to minimize risks and leverage opportunities.

Q13: How do economic conditions shape pricing and product strategies?
Economic conditions directly influence consumer purchasing power, demand patterns, and cost structures.

- Inflation: High inflation often leads to increased production costs, requiring firms to raise prices while maintaining competitiveness.

- Economic Growth: During periods of growth, consumers are more willing to spend, enabling companies to introduce premium products.
- Recession: Companies may adopt strategies like bundling, discounts, or penetration pricing to maintain demand.
  Adapting to economic changes ensures sustained profitability and market presence.

Q14: Explain how technology influences marketing mix decisions.
Technological advancements redefine all aspects of the marketing mix:

- Product: New technologies enable the development of innovative products, such as smart devices or apps.
- Price: Technology improves cost efficiency, allowing for competitive pricing. AI tools also help in dynamic pricing based on market demand.
- Place: E-commerce platforms and logistics technologies enhance distribution channels and customer reach.
- Promotion: Digital marketing tools like social media, SEO, and AI-powered customer engagement transform promotional activities.
  Companies must invest in technology to remain competitive and cater to tech-savvy consumers.

Q15: What role does media play in shaping marketing decisions?
Media significantly impacts brand visibility, consumer engagement, and reputation management:

- Traditional Media: Television, radio, and print still hold value for reaching older demographics or regional audiences.
- Digital Media: Social platforms like Instagram and TikTok offer cost-effective, targeted advertising.
- Public Opinion: Media platforms influence consumer perception and demand. For example, a viral campaign can boost sales exponentially.
- Crisis Management: Media helps address reputational risks through timely and transparent communication.
  Marketers must craft strategies that integrate both traditional and digital media for optimal outreach.

Q16: How does the marketing mix framework adapt to dynamic market environments?

The marketing mix's four P's—Product, Price, Place, and Promotion—are flexible tools that marketers adapt to align with evolving conditions:

- Product: Continuous innovation ensures relevance in changing consumer landscapes.
- Price: Strategies such as skimming or penetration pricing cater to different economic scenarios.
- Place: Geographic expansions and online channels enhance accessibility.
- Promotion: The rise of influencer marketing and programmatic advertising adapts promotional activities to modern consumer behavior.

  Regularly revising the mix ensures alignment with market trends and customer expectations.

Q17: How can companies achieve a marketing-environment fit (MEF)?

Achieving MEF involves aligning marketing strategies with environmental factors:

- Research: Conducting extensive market and consumer analysis.
- Proactive Adjustments: Monitoring trends and implementing early responses to changes.
- Integration: Ensuring marketing goals align with organizational objectives and external demands.

  This fit minimizes risks, capitalizes on opportunities, and ensures sustainable success in competitive markets.

---

18. What is the Market Nicher strategy, and how does it differentiate itself from other market strategies?

The Market Nicher strategy involves focusing on a small, specialized segment of the market and tailoring marketing efforts to meet its specific needs. Unlike broader strategies, it targets niche markets that are typically overlooked by larger industry players. Profit margins take precedence over revenue or market share, allowing smaller firms to achieve a competitive advantage through effectiveness.

Successful nichers often operate in high-value industries, market high-end products with premium pricing, and minimize operating costs by reducing expenses on R&D, advertising, and personal selling. This strategy aligns closely with guerrilla marketing principles and suits small firms aiming to cater to unique customer demands.

---

19. How does the Cost Leadership strategy achieve a competitive edge, and what are its key requirements?

The Cost Leadership strategy emphasizes efficiency by producing standardized, no-frills products at low costs for a large customer base. Success in this strategy relies on maintaining economies of scale, leveraging experience curve effects, and securing market share advantages. Key requirements include process engineering skills, designing products for easy manufacturing, access to inexpensive capital, strict cost control, and labor supervision. Incentives are often tied to quantitative targets. While this strategy can deliver low-priced offerings, it is vulnerable to imitation unless supported by unique advantages like preferential access to resources or significant market share.

---

20. Explain the Differentiation strategy and its benefits for firms.

Differentiation involves creating products that customers perceive as unique, offering superior value through exclusive features, quality, or benefits. This strategy reduces price elasticity of demand and fosters brand loyalty, providing insulation from competitive pressures. Successful differentiation requires strong R&D, creative product engineering, robust marketing skills, and continuous innovation. While premium pricing offsets the costs of differentiation, the firm must also focus on communicating the value of these unique features to the target market. This approach ensures customer retention and long-term brand equity.

---

21. Describe the process and value of Scenario Planning in strategic decision-making.

Scenario Planning is a method used to prepare flexible, long-term strategies by analyzing potential situations and changes that may impact an organization. It involves steps such as identifying key questions, setting timeframes, mapping trends, and defining uncertainties. By constructing detailed scenarios, firms can test their strategies in a simulated environment, identify risks, and explore opportunities. This iterative process helps policymakers anticipate challenges and refine decisions without real-world consequences, ultimately leading to robust and adaptable strategies.

---

22. How do marketers define and manage a product's core, tangible, and augmented aspects?

A product comprises three aspects:

- Core Benefits: These include in-use, psychological, and problem-solving benefits, such as convenience, safety, or status enhancement.
- Tangible Features: These consist of physical attributes like quality, styling, packaging, and branding.
- Augmented Services: These are additional services such as warranties, delivery, installation, and after-sale support.
  Effective product management integrates these aspects to meet customer needs, ensuring a competitive market presence.

---

23. What are the different types of products, and how are they categorized in marketing?

Products are categorized based on their usage and purchasing behavior:

- Consumer Products: Used by end-users.
- Industrial Products: Used in production processes.
- Convenience Goods: Purchased frequently with minimal effort.
- Impulse Goods: Triggered by sensory cues.
- Specialty Goods: Require extensive research and comparison.
- Perishable and Durable Goods: Based on longevity.
  These categories guide marketing strategies, emphasizing factors like accessibility, pricing, and promotion to align with consumer behavior.

---

24. What is Product Differentiation, and how does it influence marketing strategies?

Product differentiation is the process of modifying a product to make it attractive and distinct to the target market. This can involve physical changes, new packaging, or a revamped advertising theme. The goal is to shift competition from price-based to non-price factors, such as unique features or distribution methods. While differentiation offers greater flexibility in marketing, it requires substantial investment in advertising and production. Effective differentiation positions a product as unique, enhancing brand recognition and customer loyalty.

---

25. What are the stages of the Product Life Cycle, and how should firms adapt their strategies at each stage?

The Product Life Cycle includes the following stages:

1. New Product Development: High costs and no sales lead to initial losses.
2. Market Introduction: Low sales and high costs necessitate informative advertising.
3. Growth: Economies of scale reduce costs, sales increase, and profitability emerges.
4. Mature: Costs stabilize, competition grows, and sales peak. Strategies focus on market defense.
5. Decline: Costs become suboptimal, sales decline, and profitability diminishes.

Marketers adapt strategies such as pricing, promotion, and distribution based on the product's life stage to maximize revenue and market relevance.

---

26. Explain the importance of Research and Development (R&D) in New Product Development.

Research and Development (R&D) is a critical component of New Product Development (NPD), as it lays the foundation for innovation, competitiveness, and long-term growth in an organization. R&D enables companies to explore new technologies, identify potential opportunities, and create groundbreaking products. Below are the key points explaining its importance:

---

1. Drives Innovation

R&D fuels innovation by exploring novel ideas, processes, and technologies. Companies in industries such as pharmaceuticals, aerospace, and IT depend on

R&D to introduce pioneering products. For example, pharmaceutical firms like Pfizer and Moderna have developed groundbreaking vaccines using extensive R&D.

---

2. Enhances Competitiveness

In a competitive market, businesses that invest in R&D gain a significant advantage by launching unique and high-quality products. Organizations such as Apple or Tesla are renowned for their R&D investments, allowing them to lead their respective industries with cutting-edge innovations.

---

3. Addresses Customer Needs

Through R&D, businesses can study and understand customer preferences, enabling them to create products tailored to specific market demands. For instance, the automobile industry invests heavily in R&D to develop electric vehicles, which cater to environmentally conscious consumers.

---

4. Generates Economic Benefits

While R&D requires substantial investment, it often yields high returns in terms of profitability and market share. High-tech companies like Google and IBM allocate significant portions of their revenue to R&D, resulting in strong gross margins and sustained growth.

---

5. Mitigates Risks through Prototyping and Testing

R&D enables companies to test new ideas, refine product designs, and address technical challenges before launching a product. This reduces the risk of product failure in the market.

---

6. Supports Diversification and Adaptability

R&D helps firms diversify their offerings and adapt to changing market trends. For example, companies like Samsung continually develop new product lines, from smartphones to home appliances, ensuring relevance in dynamic markets.

Challenges of R&D

Despite its advantages, R&D is associated with high costs and risks. Many companies face challenges securing funding for R&D-intensive projects. For instance, organizations in the aviation or biotechnology sectors may spend years on research without immediate financial returns. Additionally, industries with heavy R&D investments, such as "big pharma," often struggle with securing bank loans due to their high-risk profiles.

Conclusion

R&D is indispensable in New Product Development as it enables companies to innovate, stay competitive, and meet market demands. Although it requires significant investment, the long-term benefits in terms of customer satisfaction, profitability, and market leadership outweigh the associated risks. Companies that prioritize R&D often set themselves apart as industry leaders, driving both their growth and the progress of their respective fields.

MKT 501 FINALTERM PART

OBJECTIVE

1. To avoid government _____.
   Answer: investigation
2. To enhance the _____ of the firm, brand, or product.
   Answer: image
3. To be perceived as "_____" by customers and potential customers.
   Answer: fair
4. To obtain or maintain the loyalty and enthusiasm of _____.
   Answer: distributors
5. To create _____ and excitement about a product.
   Answer: interest

6. Discounts are reductions to a _____ price.
   Answer: basic
7. The purpose of discounts is to increase _____ sales.
   Answer: short-term
8. Seasonal discounts are offered during _____ periods.
   Answer: slack
9. Trade discounts are also called _____ discounts.
   Answer: functional
10. Cumulative quantity discounts are based on purchases over a _____ period.
    Answer: set

11. _____ discounts encourage prompt payment.
    Answer: Cash

12. A 3/7 EOM discount gives a 3% discount if payment is made within _____ days.
    Answer: 7
13. A 2/15 net 40 ROG discount means payment is due within 40 days of _____ of goods.
    Answer: receipt
14. Brokerage allowances are similar to _____ allowances.
    Answer: promotional
15. Trade discounts are payments for performing _____ functions.
    Answer: distribution

16. Penetration pricing sets a _____ initial price to gain market share.
    Answer: low
17. The strategy of penetration pricing discourages _____ entry.
    Answer: competitor
18. A major advantage of penetration pricing is high market _____.
    Answer: penetration
19. Penetration pricing creates _____ and cost-reduction pressures.
    Answer: cost-control
20. A disadvantage of penetration pricing is long-term price _____.
    Answer: expectations

21. A loss leader is sold _____ cost to attract customers.
    Answer: below
22. Supermarkets may sell _____ or milk as loss leaders.
    Answer: sugar
23. Loss leaders are a type of sales _____.
    Answer: promotion
24. Auto repair shops may offer _____ inspections as loss leaders.
    Answer: discounted
25. In some jurisdictions, loss-leading practices are considered _____.
    Answer: dumping

26. A price war involves intense _____ rivalry with price reductions.
    Answer: competitive
27. Short-term price wars are good for _____.
    Answer: consumers

28. Long-term price wars benefit _____ firms.
    Answer: dominant
29. Marginal firms often _____ during a price war.
    Answer: shut down
30. Reduced competition can lead to _____ prices after a price war.
    Answer: higher

31. Most firms use a _____ pricing policy.
    Answer: fixed
32. Auctions are a type of _____ pricing.
    Answer: variable
33. Consumers prefer fixed prices to avoid _____ negotiations.
    Answer: complex
34. Price shading allows salespeople to adjust prices within a _____.
    Answer: range
35. Variable pricing often applies to highly _____ items.
    Answer: differentiated

36. Profit equals total _____ minus total cost.
    Answer: revenue
37. Marginal cost is the change in cost for each additional _____ produced.
    Answer: unit
38. Fixed costs include expenses like rent and _____ maintenance.
    Answer: equipment
39. Variable costs increase with the level of _____.
    Answer: output
40. Revenue includes product sales, government subsidies, and _____ capital.
    Answer: venture

SUBJECTIVE

1. What is price discrimination, and how does it work in the context of a monopoly market?
   - Price discrimination refers to the practice of charging different prices to different customers for identical goods or services. This strategy is prevalent in monopoly markets where there is little or no competition. In a monopoly, the seller has the power to set prices without worrying about competition, and can segment customers based on their willingness to pay. For instance, a monopolist may charge a higher price to consumers who value the product more (less price-sensitive) and lower prices to those who are more price-sensitive. Price discrimination aims to capture consumer surplus and increase the producer's revenue by charging each consumer the maximum price they are willing to pay.

2. What are the different types of price discrimination, and how do they differ from one another?
   - Price discrimination can be categorized into three main types:
     - First-degree price discrimination: This occurs when the price is tailored for each individual consumer based on their willingness to pay. For example, a seller may negotiate a different price with each buyer, depending on how much they value the product.
     - Second-degree price discrimination: Prices are adjusted based on the quantity of the product purchased. Common in bulk discounts or promotional offers, this type is common in industries such as manufacturing or utilities.
     - Third-degree price discrimination: In this type, prices are differentiated based on observable characteristics like age, location, or occupation. A good example would be student or senior citizen discounts. These types differ in terms of how they segment customers: first-degree uses individualized pricing, second-degree uses quantity-based pricing, and third-degree targets customer groups.

3. What are the economic impacts of price discrimination on both consumers and producers?
   - Price discrimination can have mixed effects on consumers and producers. For producers, it typically increases total revenue by capturing more of the consumer surplus and allowing them to sell to different customer segments at varying prices. This enables producers to achieve higher efficiency and potentially expand output. However, for consumers, it can lead to both benefits and drawbacks. Some consumers may pay lower prices, while others face higher prices than they would under a single price system. If done efficiently, price discrimination can lead to a more efficient allocation of resources and higher market output, but if done excessively, it can result in consumer exploitation and reduced consumer welfare.

4. How does price discrimination affect market efficiency and social welfare?
   - Price discrimination can have significant implications for market efficiency and social welfare. In theory, when price discrimination is highly effective, it can increase total market output by enabling consumers with lower willingness to pay to access goods that would have been priced out of their reach in a single price system. This can result in a more efficient allocation of resources. However, it can also lead to inefficiencies, especially if the pricing strategy results in overcharging some consumers or misallocating goods. The net effect on social welfare depends on the extent to which price discrimination leads to an increase or decrease in consumer and producer surplus. In some cases, the benefits to producers may outweigh the losses to consumers, while in others, the opposite may be true.

5. What are the challenges and strategies for implementing first-degree price discrimination?
   - First-degree price discrimination is challenging to implement due to the difficulty in determining each consumer's maximum willingness to pay. The seller needs detailed information about consumer preferences and elasticity of demand. One of the strategies involves gathering consumer data through surveys, transactions, or loyalty programs to better understand their price sensitivity. While this can be highly profitable, it requires a substantial amount of information and technology to track and adjust prices for each individual. Additionally, customers might be resistant to this form of pricing if they perceive it as unfair, which can harm a company's reputation.

6. How do airlines use price discrimination, and what are some common strategies they employ?
   - Airlines are known for employing multiple types of price discrimination to maximize their revenues. Common strategies include:
     - Bulk discounts: Offering reduced prices to wholesalers, consolidators, or tour operators who purchase large volumes of tickets.
     - Time-based pricing: Charging higher prices for flights that are in high demand, such as those during peak travel seasons or at popular times, and offering lower prices for off-peak times.
     - Fare restrictions: Airlines impose different conditions on ticket types, such as requiring longer advance purchase times for lower fares or adding fees for flexible tickets.
     - Loyalty programs: Offering exclusive pricing or discounts to frequent flyers or those with loyalty status, which represents a form of first-degree price discrimination. Airlines use these methods to segment the market and ensure that each customer group is paying the maximum they are willing to pay for a flight.

7. Can price discrimination ever be considered unethical or unfair?
   - Price discrimination can be seen as unethical or unfair in some cases, particularly when it leads to significant harm or exploitation of vulnerable consumers. For example, if a company uses its power to charge higher prices to customers who are less informed or who have fewer alternatives, it could be accused of taking advantage of them. Additionally, price discrimination can perpetuate inequality, as those with lower incomes may end up paying more than those who can afford to pay higher prices. However, in many cases, price discrimination is justified from an economic perspective as it allows businesses to capture more consumer surplus and may lead to increased efficiency or lower prices for some consumers. The key issue is how transparently and fairly the practice is applied, and whether it leads to overall benefits or harms the consumer base.

8.What is portfolio management, and why is it important for a company to maintain a diverse product portfolio?

Portfolio management refers to the collection of products, services, or brands offered by a company for sale. A diverse portfolio is crucial because it enables the company to spread risks, balance income streams, and achieve long-term growth. By offering a range of products, the company can better navigate market fluctuations, cater to a broader customer base, and ensure profitability even if one segment experiences a downturn. Furthermore, a balanced portfolio allows for flexibility in responding to changing consumer preferences and market conditions, ensuring sustained competitive advantage.

9.What is B.C.G. Analysis, and how does it help a company manage its product portfolio?

The B.C.G. (Boston Consulting Group) Matrix is a strategic tool used to evaluate the position of products within a portfolio based on their market growth rate and relative market share. It classifies products into four categories: Stars, Cash Cows, Dogs, and Question Marks (or Problem Children). By analyzing products in this manner, companies can identify which products require investment, which ones generate steady cash flows, and which should be phased out. The B.C.G. Matrix helps businesses prioritize resources and manage their portfolio by focusing on products with high potential while maintaining profitability from stable products.

10.How does the concept of 'Cash Cows' in the B.C.G. Matrix contribute to a company's overall strategy?

'Cash Cows' are products with a high market share in a low-growth market. These products are typically very profitable, as they require little investment to maintain their position but generate substantial revenue. The income from cash cows can be reinvested into other areas of the business, especially in 'Question Marks' or 'Stars' that require capital to grow. Strategically, cash cows help fund the development of new products, expand market reach, and maintain stability within the portfolio while sustaining the overall business.

11.What is the difference between B.C.G. Analysis and G.E. Multi-Factoral Analysis?

Both B.C.G. and G.E. Multi-Factoral Analysis are tools used for portfolio management, but they differ in complexity and focus. B.C.G. Analysis is based on two factors: market growth rate and relative market share. It classifies products into four categories: Stars, Cash Cows, Dogs, and Question Marks. On the other hand, G.E. Multi-Factoral Analysis considers a broader range of factors—nine industry attractiveness measures and twelve internal business strength measures—providing a more comprehensive evaluation. G.E. analysis is particularly useful for companies managing multiple product lines or business units across diverse industries, offering a more nuanced approach than B.C.G.

12.How does Contribution Margin Analysis influence a company's product portfolio decisions?

Contribution Margin Analysis helps a company determine the profitability of individual products by calculating the contribution margin (the difference between sales and variable costs). This analysis is crucial when deciding whether to add or discontinue products in the portfolio. By assessing the profitability of each product, companies can identify high-margin products that contribute significantly to fixed costs and overall profitability. Additionally, it allows businesses to understand potential cannibalization effects between products and consider competitors' reactions when making portfolio decisions.

13.What role does Integrated Marketing Communications (IMC) play in portfolio management?

Integrated Marketing Communications (IMC) ensures that all marketing activities are coordinated and consistent across all channels, creating a unified and coherent brand message. For portfolio management, IMC is essential because it enables the company to communicate effectively about multiple products or services in a way that supports the brand's overall strategy. By integrating marketing efforts, a company can improve customer engagement, reinforce product positioning, and manage its portfolio more efficiently, ensuring that each product benefits from the brand's overall communication strategy.

14.What is the significance of segmentation in portfolio management? How does age and student status affect pricing strategies?

Segmentation allows a company to categorize its customers based on specific characteristics, such as age or student status, and tailor its product offerings and pricing strategies accordingly. For example, businesses may offer different prices or discounts for various age groups or students, as these segments typically have different levels of disposable income. By understanding the distinct needs of each segment, companies can optimize their product portfolio to meet the preferences of diverse customer groups, increase sales, and build customer loyalty through targeted marketing and pricing strategies.

15.How do trends like customer database management and customer analysis impact portfolio management in the context of Integrated Marketing Communication?

Customer database management is a fundamental aspect of Integrated Marketing Communication (IMC), enabling companies to track and analyze consumer behavior, preferences, and buying habits. This data helps companies segment their market more effectively and optimize their product portfolio by identifying which products or services resonate with specific customer groups. By continuously analyzing customer responses, companies can refine their strategies, introduce new products, adjust pricing, and improve overall portfolio management, ensuring they remain aligned with evolving customer needs and market trends.

16. What are the main components of the promotional mix in advertising, and how do they contribute to a marketing strategy?
    - The promotional mix consists of several components: advertising, publicity, public relations, personal selling, and sales promotion. Each of these elements plays a critical role in reaching different segments of the market. Advertising helps in creating awareness and interest in the product, while publicity and public relations build a positive image. Personal selling provides direct interaction with customers, and sales promotions create urgency and incentives. All of these work together to build a cohesive marketing strategy, aimed at maximizing consumer engagement and sales.

17. How has the history of advertising evolved from ancient times to the 20th century?
    - In ancient times, advertising was mainly done through word of mouth and simple public displays like wall paintings and papyrus messages in Egypt and Rome. As printing technology advanced in the 15th and 16th centuries, advertising expanded to include handbills and posters. In the 17th century, advertisements started appearing in newspapers, especially in Europe. In the 19th century, with the growth of the economy, the need for advertising increased, leading to the rise of classified ads and mail-order services. By the early 20th century, advertising agencies became prominent, shifting focus from mere space selling to creating and managing advertising campaigns. The 1960s brought in more creative and scientific approaches, revolutionizing modern advertising.

18. What are some of the most common media used for advertising, and how do they reach diverse audiences?
    - Advertising media come in various forms, including wall paintings, billboards, radio, cinema, television, web banners, and even public transportation elements like bus stops. Each medium has a different reach and serves distinct purposes. For instance, TV commercials are highly effective for mass-market reach, while web banners and popups target specific online users. Transit ads, like those on buses or taxicabs, provide visibility in high-traffic areas. This diversity in media ensures that advertisers can tailor their approach based on the target audience's habits, whether they consume information in public spaces, on the internet, or through traditional broadcast media.

19. How has advertising impacted consumer behavior and social norms throughout history?
    - Advertising has significantly impacted consumer behavior by shaping desires, creating brand loyalty, and influencing purchasing decisions. In the early days, ads primarily promoted goods like books and medicines, which were essential. Over time, advertising began to affect lifestyle choices, from health products to luxury items. With the rise of consumerism in the 20th century, advertising played a pivotal role in persuading consumers to adopt new products and trends. Social norms, such as beauty standards or environmental consciousness, have also been shaped by targeted advertising campaigns, highlighting the influential power of advertising in shaping societal views and consumer habits.

20. What is public service advertising, and how does it differ from commercial advertising?

- Public service advertising (PSA) is a form of advertising used to promote causes, inform the public, or educate on social issues rather than commercial products. PSAs can address a wide range of topics such as health awareness (e.g., AIDS prevention), political ideology, or environmental conservation. While commercial advertising focuses on promoting a product or service to drive sales, public service ads aim to motivate people to take action on social or political matters. These ads are often sponsored by governments or non-profits and can reach large audiences through similar media channels as commercial ads.

21. What are the ethical concerns surrounding advertising, particularly in relation to children and vulnerable populations?
    - Advertising, especially to children, raises significant ethical concerns. Young children are often unable to distinguish between entertainment and advertising, making them more susceptible to persuasive marketing. This has led to calls for stricter regulations, especially concerning food ads targeting children, as these can contribute to unhealthy eating habits and childhood obesity. Additionally, advertisers can sometimes exploit vulnerable populations, such as those experiencing financial distress, by promoting products that may not be in their best interest. Ethical advertising requires transparency, honesty, and a sense of social responsibility to avoid manipulation.

22. What is mind share, and how does it influence the success of a brand in the market?
    - Mind share refers to the degree to which a brand occupies a prominent place in the consumer's mind when they think of a specific product category. For example, when someone thinks of tissue paper, the brand Kleenex often comes to mind. Achieving high mind share means that a brand is top-of-mind, making it more likely that consumers will choose it when making a purchase. Marketers aim to increase their brand's mind share through advertising strategies that keep their products in front of consumers, ensuring that the brand is easily recalled during purchasing decisions.

23. How does mass media, such as television and radio, contribute to the effectiveness of advertising?
    - Mass media plays a crucial role in advertising by allowing brands to reach a broad audience quickly and efficiently. Television and radio, as forms of mass media, provide wide-ranging access to potential customers across various demographics. The visual and auditory elements of these media make advertisements more engaging, creating memorable experiences for the audience. Additionally, the targeted nature of certain programming allows advertisers to reach specific groups based on age, location, or interests. Advertisers use mass media's ability to create significant exposure to build brand recognition and drive consumer behavior.

24. What are the regulations and self-regulatory practices in advertising, and how do they aim to protect the public interest?
    - Many countries have established regulations and self-regulatory practices to govern advertising, ensuring that it is legal, decent, honest, and truthful. These regulations include restrictions on advertising to children, bans on certain types of content (such as tobacco ads), and requirements for disclosing paid partnerships or sponsorships. In addition, industries often establish self-regulatory codes of conduct, where companies and agencies voluntarily agree to abide by ethical standards to prevent misleading advertising and protect consumer interests. These measures are designed to maintain public trust and prevent the manipulation of vulnerable populations.

25. How has digital advertising evolved with the rise of the internet and social media, and what challenges has this posed for traditional advertising?
    - The rise of the internet and social media has drastically transformed advertising, leading to the emergence of digital advertising formats like search engine ads, social media ads, and video ads on platforms like YouTube. This shift has allowed advertisers to target consumers more precisely based on their online behaviors, interests, and demographics. However, this has also posed challenges for traditional advertising forms like TV and print, as many consumers now prefer personalized, digital ads over the broad messages of traditional media. The ability to track engagement and measure ad effectiveness online has created a data-driven approach to marketing that requires continuous adaptation from traditional advertisers.

26. What is the role of Television Commercials in promoting goods and services?
Television commercials play a significant role in promoting goods and services by creating awareness and influencing consumer behavior. They utilize visual and auditory elements, such as catchy jingles, compelling narratives, and appealing visuals, to capture the attention of viewers. By airing on popular television channels, commercials reach a wide audience and increase the chances of sales conversion. Political campaigns, as well as product and service advertisements, heavily rely on television commercials as they are an effective medium for mass communication.

27. How does humor enhance the effectiveness of television commercials?
Humor is an essential tool used in television commercials to capture the attention of the audience and create a memorable impact. It helps in making the advertisement more engaging and relatable. When people laugh or enjoy a commercial, they are more likely to remember the brand and its message. Moreover, humor can reduce resistance from viewers, making them more open to the advertisement's message, and can also increase the likelihood of word-of-mouth marketing.

28. What are some types of television commercials?
Television commercials come in several forms, including:

- Political TV advertising: Used to promote political campaigns and candidates.
- Infomercials: These are long-form commercials that provide detailed information about a product or service, often showing demonstrations.
- Product placement: Where products are subtly incorporated into TV shows or movies to advertise them.

- Promos: These are short commercials aimed at promoting TV shows or local stations.
- Television commercial donut: A type of ad format in which the product or service is featured between segments of content.
- Sponsorship: Advertisers sponsor a particular program or event in exchange for promotional exposure.

29. What is a Billboard, and how does it impact advertising?
A billboard is a large outdoor advertising display commonly placed on highways, busy roads, or high-traffic areas. Billboards are designed to attract attention and promote products or services using large text and vivid visuals. The strategic placement of billboards ensures that they are visible to a wide audience, especially to drivers or pedestrians in busy areas. Billboards play a critical role in branding and creating awareness, especially for local businesses or nationwide campaigns.

30. Explain the difference between traditional and digital billboards.
Traditional billboards are static advertisements typically printed on large, fixed boards. They rely on eye-catching graphics and text to capture the attention of passing drivers or pedestrians. On the other hand, digital billboards use electronic screens to display dynamic content, such as rotating advertisements, animations, and videos. Digital billboards offer flexibility as the content can be updated remotely, allowing advertisers to change their messages based on time of day, season, or audience demographics.

31. What makes an advertising slogan effective?
An effective advertising slogan is short, catchy, and communicates the core benefits of a product or service in a simple manner. It should be memorable and evoke a positive emotional response from the audience. The best slogans make the product or service stand out from the competition by highlighting its unique selling point. They also resonate with the target audience, making them feel a sense of need or desire. For instance, a well-designed slogan paired with a jingle can leave a lasting impression.

32. What are the different types of sales in the marketing context?
There are several types of sales in marketing:

- Transaction sales: Focused on one-time purchases, often with less personal interaction.
- Consultative sales: Involve a deeper relationship between the seller and the buyer, where the salesperson helps the customer find the best solution based on their needs.
- Complex sales: Typically involve high-value products or services and require a detailed proposal or custom solution. This type of sale often involves multiple decision-makers and a longer sales cycle.

33. How do salespeople handle objections during a sales pitch?
Handling objections is a crucial part of the sales process. Salespeople must listen carefully to the customer's concerns and respond empathetically. They should provide additional information, clarify misunderstandings, or offer solutions that align with the customer's needs. A good salesperson uses objections as opportunities to reinforce the benefits of the product or service, turning the concern into a reason for the customer to buy.

34. What is the difference between direct sales and indirect sales?
Direct sales involve face-to-face interactions between the salesperson and the customer. This can be through retail sales, door-to-door selling, or events like parties. In contrast, indirect sales involve methods that don't require direct personal interaction, such as telesales or online sales. Direct sales are often more personalized, while indirect sales are more scalable and can reach a larger audience with fewer resources.

35. How do negotiation tactics impact the outcome of a negotiation?
Negotiation tactics play a crucial role in determining the outcome of a discussion. Skilled negotiators use various strategies, such as setting deadlines, making initial offers, or using a "good guy/bad guy" approach to influence the other party's decisions. Additionally, tactics like walking away or using limited authority can create a sense of urgency or pressure. The right tactic, when used in the right context, can help a negotiator achieve favorable terms or reach a compromise. However, the negotiation process requires a balance between assertiveness and collaboration to ensure a positive result for all parties involved.

****

****

****

ZB

Advice

MA apsy bohat zada payar krta ho ap janta b nahe phr b just for sake of Allah

Meri ap sbky leay duay ha Allah ap sbko hamesha kamyab kryn khush rakhyn Zindagi k har moor pe kamyab kryn ameeeen mri jaaaan k tooto

Study zada handouts se kea kryn zada depend handouts pe kea kryn

Or Vu k groups ko avoid kea kryn yaha bohat zada choty moty keery makory hn jo students ki help krny ke bahany unki life tk tbah kr dety hn ap bs apni Handouts se parha kro bs

Dunya m koi ksi ke Sath sincere nahe har insan matalbi ha agr koi apky Sath acha b ha to tab tk jab tk usy apsy koi mtlb Hoga so payar bs khud se kro ksi or se kbi b nahe or na ksi se umeed rakho

Ye dunya takleef k elawa ksi ko Kuch nahe de saqti

Be brave be strong my family 💪

Be kind with Everyone for no reason because kindness charges nothing.

Hmaesha relax ho ke parha kryn panic mat hua kryn apky parents ky bohat khawab hoty hn wo pura krny ki puri koshish kea kryn kbi b ksi pe depend na kea kryn apko bs ak insan success kr saqta ha or wo insan ap khud hn apky elawa koi nahe ap bs koshish kryn Allah pak pe strong yakeen rakha kryn or mehnat krke sb Allah ke hawaly kr dea kryn everything is possible be brave be strong stay blessed

Hum insan hamesha moat se darty or bhagty hn or moat se bachny ki koshish krty hn jabke moat ny ana hi ana ha hum moat se nahe bach saqty humy jahanam se bachny ki koshish krni chaheay hum jahanam se bach saqty hn

Insan ko 3 chezo se dar lagta ha Moat Risk/Dolat Ezat Shohrat Fame

Moat

Humy pta hona chaheay Moat tab ani ha jab Allah chahy us se pehly puri dunya bi ak tararf ho ke apko marna chahy to apka kuch nahe beggar saqti

Risk/Dolat

Risk Dolat sb Allah pak ke hath m ha puri dunya ak taraf b ho jay na apsy apka risk cheen saqti ha na de saqti ha Ye sirf ALLAh pak ky hath m ha

Izat Zilat Shohrat Fame

Izat Zilat Sirf Allah de saqty hn puri dunya mel ke b apko zra brabr b demage nahe kr saqti Agr ALLAH Apko izat dena chahay to puri dunya ak tararf ho ke b apko 1% b nuksan nahe pohancha saqti

Phr Dar ks bat ka ??????????????

Be brave be strong Just put your trust To ALLAH Hamesha Confident or himat se raho kbi ksi k samne mat jhuko puri dunya mel k b apka kuch b nahe beggar saqti

VU Examination Software Demo:

This Online Demo allows students to get themselves familiar with VU Examination Software and it's available features. This will help students to attempt their paper conveniently under real time environment. Click this link:

https://qb.vu.edu.pk/Vutes_demo/default.aspx Virtual University Official website:

Click this link:
https://www.vu.edu.pk/

Software / Tools:

Is drive m vu k related sb k sb software add hain jin ko kio bhi software ki zaroorat hai tu wo is link ko click kr k download kr sakty hain.

Mega drive:
https://mega.nz/folder/tA5x1LYa#9QpZ11pGc9jERh16nJduKg Note:

Is file m kisi bhi kisam ka kio bhi virus nahi hai sb safe hai aur sb software/tools sirf PC/laptop k liye hain.

Join our WhatsApp channel for more
https://whatsapp.com/channel/0029VaODheTDp2Q8YVcoON2p
second WhatsApp channel

https://whatsapp.com/channel/0029VafvOcy90x2tPbUaX02I

ZB

MY REQUEST FROM ALL OF YOU

ZB Request from All of you My family

Mjy ap sbki help or support ki zarort ha or wo ye k hum sb Mel kr Allah ka Quran ki Urdu translation logo tak pohanchy or Quran ko samjna asaaan kryn dosro k leay sb tak Allah ka Quran pohanchy it's my compaign hum log 70+ age k ho jaty hn phr b hmy namaz tak ki translation nahe pta hoti k hum Allah pak se Kya Dua kr rhy hn so hum youngster's ko Mel kr puri takat or energy ke sath Allah ka Quran spread krna ha

Hum puri Koshish kr rhy hn k hum sb Mel k Quran ki translation or most important topics ko maximum share kry with translation hmara maksad Quran ko spread krna ha be a part of us

m apni pocket se ye sb kr rha ho Allah ka Quran spread krny k leay apne or mene sbny Marna ha ak din to q na Allah k leay Kuch kryn apni energies apni power ko bajay negative use krny k Allah k leay invest kryn khud ko be a part of us

Agr m 23 ki age m apny sare sources use kr rha ho pocket se heavy amounts give away kr rha ho Quran spread krny k leay to ap just share to kr saqty hn itna e krdyn

Contact ZB +92 300 5427579

Agr ap mujsy contact na kr sky too b ap jo b hn jaha bi hn waha Allah ka quran pheelay zada se zada with urdu translation jitni himat ha utna share kryn

ZB +92 300 5427579

WhatsApp:
https://whatsapp.com/channel/0029VaODheTDp2Q8YVcoON2p

Second WhatsApp channel

channel on WhatsApp:

https://whatsapp.com/channel/0029VafvOcy90x2tPbUaX02I

YouTube:

https://youtu.be/-AMj4iNz0UE?si=hg29pJZ1kujzg57J