C. English as second language

Q. Conferencing on a Portfolio

Conferencing involves a one-to-one meeting between the teacher and the learner to talk about the learner's writing. A portfolio is a collection of several pieces of the learner's writing, some of which may have already been marked and commented on. The major strength of conferencing is that the learner can provide an explanation of what was involved in the pieces of writing, and can seek clarification from the teacher about the teacher's evaluation of them.

Q. Three sentence on hopes and ambitions.

suppose students have been working on the topic of 'hopes and ambitions', they can write three sentences about how they would like their lives to change in the future. If they are discussing education, they can write sentences about why exams are good thing or a bad thing. If they have been discussing anti-social behavior, the teacher can ask them to write three don't sentences (e.g. don't listen to loud music after eleven o' clock).

Q. writing forms for learning

Structural courses nowadays are often organized by patterns of writing forms or genres:

(1) paragraphs with topic sentence, (2) description, (3) analyses

Q. how to compare the errors native and non-native students?

Syntactic and Lexical Errors among Native and Non-native Students When thinking about the importance of accuracy in the academic writing of NNS students, many ESL and EAP teachers believe that syntactic and lexical errors in L2 texts are not particularly damaging because NS writers also make numerous mistakes in their texts. However, several studies have found that faculty in the disciplines have a far more critical view of ESL errors than those of NSs (Santos, 1988; Vann et al., 1984, 1991). Although the indications of error gravity vary across disciplines and even vary according to the age of faculty, the conclusions in all investigations largely remain similar: ESL errors in students' texts are costly in terms of grades and overall evaluations of work quality.

Q. characteristic of creative writing

Creative writing is one area (like painting and composing) where the imagination has a chance to run free. The world is full of people who achieve great personal satisfaction in this way. In their book Process Writing, the authors Ron White and Valerie Arndt describe an approach that 'views all writing — even the most mundane and routine ~ as creative'. Such an approach would even include, at some level, the putting together of a shopping list, But we are concerned here with tasks that provoke students to go beyond the everyday, and which ask them to spread their linguistic wings, take some chances, and use the language they are learning to express more personal or more complex thoughts and images.

Q. Explain exemplification task with with example.

Exemplification and illustration largely deals with expanding on theories/concepts/ ideas and providing reasonable amounts of detail to explain a type, class, or group of objects or events by presenting examples. These assignments largely rely on general-to-specific discourse organization flow. For example,

1. Give at least two examples of what children can learn from playing peek-a-boo. (Psychology)

(Epstein, 1999, p. 258)

2. What is a simple idea, according to Locke? Give examples. (Philosophy) (Adapted from Schoedinger, 2000, p. 351)

Q. Demonstrating:

It is meant to make evident or establish by arguments or reasoning; prove. Since, as we have said, students need to be aware of writing conventions and genre constraints in specific types of writing, teachers have to be able to draw these features to their attention. In whatever way students are made aware of layout issues or the language used to perform certain written functions, for example, the important issue is that they are made aware of these things - that these things are drawn to their attention

Q. Make a multiple choice question on reading skill 5 marks

1. The reading technique which provides support to the less fluent readers in group is called

Slow reading Paired reading Extensive reading Fluent reading

2. A good reading exercise focuses on . Direct learner's attention Items All the given option Strategies

3. Fast reading is the result of . Authentic material Grammatical analysis Decoding Encoding

4. Out of class reading (Extensive reading) (Intensive reading) (both a & b) (none of the given)

5. There are Reading components according to Tummer hoover

Q. Discrepancies of teaching reading and writing skills in Pakistani schools

Though it claims to handle oral skills, the exclusive use of mechanical pronunciation and dictation tasks cannot foster these skills [see section 4.9.2 above]. The grammar content is limited to basic definitions and simple exercises dealing with nouns, simple present tense, adjectives, adverbs, articles, pronouns and sentence types. Importantly, the skills are practiced in isolation and there is no focus on integration. The functional aspect of language is completely ignored. The pronunciation tasks focus on isolated words only. The new vocabulary is mainly introduced through the reading texts. Their Urdu meanings are provided at the back of the book. The vocabulary development activities are of two types – making sentences with the unfamiliar lexis and completing gapped passages/ sentencesexactly reproduced from the text. The second task type is especially ineffective since the exact words can easily be copied from the provided texts, even if the learners do not understand their meaning or usage

Experience task

. Experience tasks are planned so that learners are faced with only one aspect of the task that is outside their previous experience. The sun burn Sunburns are caused by exposure to too much ultraviolet (UV) light. UV radiation is a wavelength of sunlight in a range too short for the human eye to see. ... Exposure to both types of radiation is associated with developing skin cancer. Sunlamps and tanning beds also produce UV light and can cause sunburn Madiha is late from office _

Q. Define cause and effect write cause and effect (3sentnce thy asy) {may be} Causes that work well include having an appointment, a sick child, a school delay, car trouble, mass transit delays, a family emergency or illness, house problems, or waiting for a service person for repairs.

Q. Editing instructions

Editing involves going back over the writing and making changes to its organization, style, grammatical and lexical correctness, and appropriateness. Like all the other parts of the writing process, editing does not occur in a fixed place in the process. Writers can be periodically reviewing what they write, editing it, and then proceeding with the writing. Thus, editing is not restricted to occurring after all the writing has been completed. Learners can be encouraged to edit through the feedback that they get from their classmates, teacher and other readers. Such feedback is useful if it occurs several times during the writing process and is expressed in ways that the writer finds acceptable and easy to act on. Feedback that focuses only on grammatical errors will not help with editing of content. Teachers need to look at their feedback to make sure it is covering the range of possibilities. Using a marking sheet divided into several categories is one way of doing this.

Q. Process-oriented Writing pedagogies

Process-oriented writing pedagogies focused particular attention on procedures for solving problems, discovering ideas, expressing them in writing, and revising emergent texts—typically, in isolation from any cultural, educational, or sociopolitical contexts in which writing might take place. Faigley divided process writing proponents into two distinct categories: expressivists and cognitivists. Expressivists viewed composing as "a creative act in which the process—the discovery of the true self—is as important as the product".

Q. prefix and suffix with two examples each

A prefix is a group of letters placed before the root of a word. For example, the word “unhappy” consists of the prefix “un-” [which means “not”] combined with the root (or stem) word “happy”; the word “unhappy” means “not happy.” A suffix is a group of letters placed after the root of a word. For example, the word flavorless consists of the root word “flavor” combined with the suffix “-less” [which means “without”]; the word “flavorless” means “having no flavor.”

Q. difference between immigrants and international students

We make a distinction between immigrant and international students in this discussion because immigrant students (some of whom may be the children of immigrants or immigrants themselves) may have permanent resident status. Meanwhile, international students usually enter English-speaking countries on student visas, complete their college or university studies, and subsequently return to their home countries.

Q. Three tasks in a language classroom?

i. experience tasks,

ii. shared tasks,

iii. guided tasks, and

iv. independent tasks.

Q. What is peer feedback.5

In peer feedback learners read their incomplete work to each other to get comments and suggestions on how to improve and continue it. The learners can work in groups and read each other’s compositions.They make suggestions for revising before the teacher marks the compositions (Dixon, 1986). Learners can be trained to give helpful comments and can work from a checklist or a list of questions (Pica, 1986).

Q. 5 nouns with correction {Googled the answer}

Incorrect: I would like to buy some furnitures.

Correct: I would like to buy some furniture.

Incorrect: Have you got any informations?

Correct: Have you got any information?

Incorrect: Have you packed your luggages?

Correct: Have you packed your luggage?

Incorrect: Is there any breads?

Correct: Is there any bread? OR Are there any loaves?

Explanation: Nouns like scenery, furniture, news, information, luggage and bread are always used in the singular. They do not have a plural form. If we want to use them as plural we will add the word “pieces of” Incorrect: He told these news to me.

Correct: He told me this news.vear.

Q. Conferencing on a portfolio

Conferencing on a portfolio allows the opportunity to look at weaknesses and strengths which appear in several pieces of writing and thus deserve comment. It also allows the opportunity to see improvement across several pieces of writing. This improvement can be in the quantity written, the quality of the writing, and quality and range of the content. Conferencing is also used at different stages of a piece of writing so that the learner is helped to improve a particular piece of writing. Conferencing takes a lot of time but its focused one-to-one interaction brings many benefits.

Q. Items include in. Lesson plan

A lesson plan can take many forms, depending on the time constraints and personal style of the individual teacher. Regardless of how it appears, a lesson plan should provide the teacher with a "script" for presenting materials, interacting with students, and leading students through structured and unstructured activities. Much more than a mere step-by-step chronology of a classroom event, however, a lesson plan is a practical, tangible, and potentially dynamic tool for meeting student needs as operationalized in course objectives.

Q. correct these sentences

(1_ students should wear white pants

2_ I am learning a new poetry.

correct these sentences

(1_ students should wear white trousers

2_ I am learning a new poem)

Q. Teaching Cause and Effect

Cause-effect interpretation tasks deal with establishing causal relationships and are based on causal reasoning. Most assignments of this type include a discussion or an explanation of a cause-effect relationship among events or problems, identification of causes or effects, and a presentation of problem solutions in the case of problem-solution tasks. Examples of cause-effect interpretation assignments can be:

 Pabst Blue Ribbon was a major beer company when I was in college. However, recently it has lost market share, and now you hardly even hear about it. What happened at Pabst and why? (Business) (Adapted from Bean, 1996)

 Why does culture arise in the first place? Why is culture a necessary part of all organized life? (Sociology) (Charon, 1999, p. 105)

 Why is the Renaissance considered a departure from the Middle Ages and the beginning of modernity? (History) (Perry et al., 2000, p. 322)

Q. Engaging Writing.

An engaging writing task is one that involves students not just intellectually but emotionally as well; it amuses them, intrigues them, or makes them feel good. When students are 'switched on' by engaging tasks there is a good chance that some of their doubts about writing will disappear.

Sentences use bank with different meaning

I saw my friend in the bank.

All the bank robbers were wearing masks.

All the animals lined up along the river bank.

A bank of clouds was building to the northeast.

He was buried under a bank of flowers sent by his friends

Q. Three activities that can help in generating ideas at planning stage

1) Brainstorming

2) Storyboarding

3) Role playing

Q. ESP

Many students study English for a particular (or specific) purpose. People who are going to work as nurses in Britain or the USA, for example, will study medical English. Those who are going to study at an English-medium university need to concentrate on English for Academic Purposes (EAP). Business students will concentrate on the language of management and commerce, and so on,ESP promotes the development the spoken skills in English students who wants to be tourist guides. ESP program, might, for example, emphasize the development of reading skills in students who are preparing for graduate work in business administration.

Q. reading comprehension

Simply put, reading comprehension is the act of understanding what you are reading. The act is not simple to teach, learn or practice. Reading comprehension is an intentional, active, interactive process that occurs before, during and after a person reads a particular piece of writing.

Reading comprehension tests are supposed to measure reading comprehension. Other skills and knowledge, particularly skill in writing, should not get in the way of this measurement. If they do, the validity of the test is affected. It is no longer a true measure of reading comprehension. For this reason, learners should not be penalized for poor written production as long as what they write can be understood.

Q. Source of feedback

The feedback can come from the teacher, from peers, and from the learners themselves in selfassessment. The use of peer feedback can reduce the teacher's load but is also very valuable in helping writers develop a sense of audience. The use of self-assessment encourages metacognitive awareness of the writing process and the qualities of good writing.

Q. Five stages of Seow in the process approach to teaching writing Planning, drafting, revising, and editing, responding, evaluating and post writing.

Q. Why is it necessary to personalize editing instruction

Students and teachers should focus on major patterns of error rather than attempt to correct every single error (Bates, Lane, & Lange, 1993). Because not all students will make the same errors, it is necessary and desirable to personalize editing instruction as much as possible.

Q. Positive feedback

Positive feedback on the content of learners' writing can do a lot to increase the amount of writing that learners do and to improve their attitude to writing. This feedback includes comments like the following. "The part about the fire was really interesting. Can you tell me more about that?" "You wrote that the end of the movie surprised you. What were you expecting?" Written feedback like this tells the writer that their work is being read, is understood, and interests the reader. Especially with younger learners, it is important not to discourage writing by always giving feedback that points out the errors in the writing. There should be a place in a writing course for feedback on errors but this kind of feedback needs to be very carefully balanced against the positive encouragement to write more, and these two kinds of feedback need to be separated.

OR Q. Write paragraph in sequence...

But then the phone rang, and it was friend Sarah asking if he wanted to go and see a movie. He agreed immediately, and was out of the door in almost no time at all. He didn't have any ideas. Paul was sitting at home, wondering 'what to do.

Proper Sequence:

Paul was sitting at home, wondering what to do. He didn't have any ideas. But then the phone rang, and it was his friend Sarah asking if he wanted to go and see a movie, He agreed immediately, and was out of the door in almost no time at all.

Q. structural type of a course design.3

Writing courses, particularly at beginning levels, can be organized around grammar and sentence patterns. A present tense paragraph one day, then a past tense paragraph, and so on. This was common in the 1960s, but is less so now. Structural courses nowa days are often organized by patterns of writing forms or genres: paragraphs with topic sentences, descriptions, analyses, and so on.

Q. Writing enjoyment

students might well enjoy writing 'lonely hearts' advertisements for example. It would, anyway, provide vocabulary practice but it might also allow them to be imaginative and, hopefully, have some fun. However, the only way to get them to do this is to let them read examples of the kind of thing we want them to do before we ask them to write.

Q. Traditional and nontraditional students

Traditional students (both NS and NNS) are sometimes described as such if they have experienced few if any interruptions in their progress from secondary school to (and through) postsecondary education. That is, traditional students are those who upon completion of secondary school proceed directly to a community college, four-year college, or research university, and from there, perhaps to a graduate or professional program. Because of this rapid progress from a secondary to a postsecondary institution, traditional students usually are young adults in their late teens or early twenties when they begin their postsecondary education.

Non-traditional or "returning" students, on the other hand, may have experienced one or more interruptions along their educational pathways. These interruptions can include substantial periods of full-time employment (and sometimes the pursuit of a new career), as well as considerable time devoted to caring for children, elderly family members, or both. These students, whose numbers are increasing rapidly in many educational institutions, thus represent a variety of age groups (Peterson, 1995; Stewart, 1993). Moreover, many nontraditional students reinitiate their formal studies while working and may likewise have personal, financial, and family commitments to fulfill.

Q. Note on revision

Revision often becomes more voluntary and motivating. An alternative to this would be to have individual students read their own texts into a tape recorder and take a dictation of their own writing later. Students can replay the tape as often as necessary and activate the pause button at points where they need to make productive revision of their texts.

Q. Uncountable nouns

1. Uncountable nouns cannot be plural.

2. Sometimes an uncountable noun does not need the, this, etc. in front of it.

3. Much is only used in front of uncountable nouns.

Q. Three activities that can help in generating ideas at planning stage

1) Brainstorming

2) Storyboarding

3) Role playing

Q. The colon (:) is a punctuation mark consisting of two dots one over the other.

EXAMPLES:

• A man needs three to survive: air, water, and food.

• I have packed my cricket kit with the equipment I need: bats, gloves and

Q. Name of five feature of non-academic writing.

The difference between academic writing and non-academic writing stems from various factors such as their audience, purpose, language, format, and tone. Academic writing aims academia while non academic writing aims the mass public. Google BABA

BOOK

Non-academic courses, meanwhile, frequently serve international students who intend to spend a limited time in an English-speaking environment to improve their English proficiency and then to return to their home countries. Clearly, the teaching of ESL writing in IEP courses needs to be geared specifically toward students' educational, professional, and personal goals. Book

Q. Define share task and how it helpful for lerner. Write only 3 lines

Independent tasks require the learners to work alone without any planned help. Learners can work successfully on independent tasks when they have developed some proficiency in the language and when they have command of helpful strategies. These strategies can develop from experience, shared, or guided tasks.

Q. Three examples of homophones homophones (words that sound the same but are spelt differently) such as threw and through, Pairs of words that sound identical — like sun and son, sew and so, threw and through

Q. Activity base learning

One such method is Activity Based Learning (ABL), which is defined as a learning process in which students are constantly engaged (Panko et al., 2007). Activity Based Learning is defined as a setup where students actively participate in the learning experience rather than sit as passive listeners.

Q. THE FOLLOWING PARAGRAPH IS AN EXAMPLE OF COHESION, COHERENCE.

Cara loves to cook dinner for her husband Carl. The dinner that she likes cooking the most is lasagna. Lasagna is a very popular dish in Italy. Italians are also known for their heavy accents. Accents can tell you where in the world people come from. There are over 7 billion people on earth.In this example we can see the clear link between each sentence, even though there is no set topic/theme in the paragraph. This is cohesion. Cohesion can be evident without coherence.

Q. Five types of grammatical errors with examples.

Error #1: Run-on Sentence or Comma Splice

 Incorrect: Rachel is very smart, she began reading when she was three years old.

 Correct: Rachel is very smart. She began reading when she was three years old

Q. what is electronic feedback?

If texts are submitted in electronic form, it is possible to provide feedback using the range of wordprocessing functions. Here we will look at some of those available in the word-processing program, Microsoft Word, but other programs have similar features.

 Track changes: by turning on the Track changes function in the Tools menu, any changes the teacher makes to the text are clearly indicated for the learner to see. Additions are highlighted, and deletions are indicated. The learner can decide to accept or reject these changes and continue to improve the text.

 Comment: by turning on the Comment function in the Insert menu, the teacher can add helpful suggestions for improving the text or can praise parts of the text.

Q. structural type of a course design.3

Writing courses, particularly at beginning levels, can be organized around grammar and sentence patterns. A present tense paragraph one day, then a past tense paragraph, and so on. This was common in the 1960s, but is less so now. Structural courses nowa days are often organized by patterns of writing forms or genres: paragraphs with topic sentences, descriptions, analyses, and so on.

Q. Five usage of commas

i. Separating the main elements of a sentence from each other

ii. Setting off a parenthetical element from the rest of the sentence

iii. Separating elements in a series

iv. Setting off dialogs or quotations

v. Other uses of the comma

Q. Five sources of feedback for written work.

The feedback can come from the teacher, from peers, and from the learners themselves in selfassessment. The use of peer feedback can reduce the teacher's load but is also very valuable in helping writers develop a sense of audience. The use of self-assessment encourages metacognitive awareness of the writing process and the qualities of good writing.

Q. What is activity writing?

Writing can also, of course, be used as an integral part of a larger activity where the focus is on something else such as language practice, acting out, or speaking. Teachers often ask students to write short dialogues which they will then act out. The dialogues are often most useful if planned to practice particular functional areas, such as inviting or suggesting.

Q. Instant Writing.

There are stages in any lesson where students can be asked to write o the spot, without much in the way of Preparation or warning; this is instant writing. Because instant writing is not part of a long writing process, it can be used whenever the teacher feels it is appropriate. The tasks may each take only ten or fifteen minutes or be even shorter; but a regular diet of such tasks will boost students' confidence, if they are appropriate, since each time they will have something worthwhile and interesting to show for their efforts.

Q. 5 ways to improve writting skills in a classroom

For undergraduate faculty, the top three L2 writing skills included (in declining order of importance):

• discourse and information organization (2.40 out of 3)

• standard written English (i.e., grammar, phrasing, and sentence structure; 2.35)

• vocabulary (2.26).

• information/discourse organization (2.49 out of 3)

• command of standard written English (2.37)

• using background knowledge, reference materials, and other resources to analyze

Q. types of writing.....5

1) Expository – Writing in which author's purpose is to inform or explain the subject to the reader.

2) Persuasive – Writing that states the opinion of the writer and attempts to influence the reader.

3) Narrative – Writing in which the author tells a story. The story could be fact or fiction.

4) Descriptive – A type of expository writing that uses the five senses to paint a picture for the reader. This writing incorporates imagery and specific details.

Q. Use of but

We use but as an alternative to except (for), apart from and bar to introduce the only thing or person that the main part of the sentence does not include. It is often used after words such as everyone, nobody, anything, anywhere, all, no, none, any, every.

Q. Elaborate 'dicto-comp' within five lines

When doing a reproduction exercise the learners read or listen to a story and then they retell it without looking at the original. This type of composition is easier if the learners are allowed to read or listen to the story several times, before they write it. The teacher can tell the learners to try to write the story so that it is very similar to the original, or to add extra details and make changes if they wish. The same technique can be used with spoken instead of written input. The teacher reads a story to the class. After they have listened to the story, they must write it from their memory. If the teacher wants to give the learners a lot of help, the teacher reads the story several times, but not so many times that the learners can copy it exactly. As the learners cannot remember all the words of the story, they have to make up parts of it.

Q. what is clustering?

Cluster analysis or clustering is the task of grouping a set of objects in such a way that objects in the same group (called a cluster) are more similar (in some sense) to each other than to those in other groups (clusters). Students from words related to a stimulus supplied by the teacher. The words are circled and then linked by lines to show discernible cluster. Clustering is a simple yet powerful strategy: "Its visual character seems to stimulate the flow of association… and is particularly good for students who know what theywant to say but just can't say it"

Q. reading comprehension

Simply put, reading comprehension is the act of understanding what you are reading. The act is not simple to teach, learn or practice. Reading comprehension is an intentional, active, interactive process that occurs before, during and after a person reads a particular piece of writing. Reading comprehension tests are supposed to measure reading comprehension. Other skills and knowledge, particularly skill in writing, should not get in the way of this measurement. If they do, the validity of the test is affected. It is no longer a true measure of reading comprehension. For this reason, learners should not be penalized for poor written production as long as what they write can be understood.

Q. 5spelling in American and british English

Q. What is peer feedback.5

In peer feedback learners read their incomplete work to each other to get comments and suggestions on how to improve and continue it. The learners can work in groups and read each other's compositions.They make suggestions for revising before the teacher marks the compositions (Dixon, 1986). Learners can be trained to give helpful comments and can work from a checklist or a list of questions (Pica, 1986).

Q. Peer assessment

Peer assessment, or self-assessment, is a process whereby students or their peers grade assignments or tests based on a teacher's benchmarks. The practice is employed to save teachers time and improve students' understanding of course materials as well as improve their metacognitive skills

Q. what is hedging.3

Hedging language is also known as cautious language or vague language. In this context, a hedge (noun) is a cautious, vague, or evasive statement. ... Hedging words and phrases are the things we write and say in order to soften our words, to make them less direct, and to limit or qualify claims and statements we make

Q. close test

Every fifth word has been taken out of a reading passage that the learners have never seen before. The learners must fill in the missing words by guessing. They look at the words before and after the empty space to help them guess the missing words. The test measures how close the reader's thought is to the writer's thought.

Q. elaborate conferencing on fortfolio..limit you ans within 5 lines..?

Conferencing involves a one-to-one meeting between the teacher and the learner to talk about the learner's writing. A portfolio is a collection of several pieces of the learner's writing, some of which may have already been marked and commented on. The major strength of conferencing is that the learner can provide an explanation of what was involved in the pieces of writing, and can seek clarification from the teacher about the teacher's evaluation of them. Good conferencing is interactive. It should conclude with clear proposals for future improvement of the writing. Learners can prepare for conferencing either by preparing some questions to ask, or by having a sheet provided by the teacher that gives the learner some questions to consider. These questions can focus on what the teacher expects in the writing.

Q. Lesson planing.

A lesson plan is a teacher's detailed description of the course of instruction or "learning trajectory" for a lesson. A daily lesson plan is developed by a teacher to guide class learning. Details will vary depending on the preference of the teacher, subject being covered, and the needs of the students

Q. Three espects to teach english of pakistani students.

All government documents, military communications, street signs, many shop signs, business contracts and other activities are done in English. The language of the courts is also English. English is taught to all school level Pakistani students, and in many cases the medium of instruction is also in English. At College and University level all instruction is in English. Pakistan boasts a large English language press and media.

Q. Purpose of reinforcement writing

Reinforcement writing has always been used as a means of reinforcing language that has, been taught. In its simplest form, teachers often ask students to write sentences using recently learnt grammar. Suppose, for example, that intermediate students have recently been practicing the third conditional (If + had (not) done + would (not) have done), they might be given the following instruction: Write two sentences about things you wish had turned out differently, and two sentences about things you are pleased about.

Q. Difference between situational syllabus and task based syllabus

A situational syllabus is one in which the content of language teaching is a collection of real or imaginary situations in which language occurs or is used. A situation usually involves several participants who are engaged in some activity in a specific setting. Writing courses can be organized around situational transactions, such as applying for a job, complaining to a landlord, and writing letters to the newspaper, writing a business memo, or writing essays to pass a course.

A task-based syllabus. ... They differ from situations in that while situational teaching has the goal of teaching the specific language content that occurs in the situation – a predefined product – task-based teaching has the goal of teaching students to draw on resources to complete some piece of work – a process.

Q. Name of 4 ways of scoring close test.

Brown (1980) tested four ways of scoring the cloze test

1. —exact replacement,

2. acceptable alternative,

3. clozentropy, and

4. multiple-choice.

Q. Reformulation

Reformulation involves a native speaker rewriting a learner's piece of writing so that the learner can then compare their first attempt with the reformulation. This is a very time-consuming process which places a heavy burden on the native speaker. However, those who support this procedure speak very highly of it.

Q. writing is considered to be nucleus of language learning elaborate it

Writing is not a skill which can be learned in isolation. In the apprentice stage of writing, what the student must learn, apart from the peculiar difficulties of spelling or script, is a counterpart of what has to be learnt for the mastery of listening comprehension, speaking and reading —a nucleus of linguistic knowledge. The activity of writing helps to consolidate the knowledge for use in other areas, since it gives the student practice in manipulating structures and selecting and combining lexical elements. Written questions based on a reading passage encourage the student to read the text more attentively and discover areas which were misinterpreted on the first reading. Only by hearing and reading a great deal of the language as it is spoken and written by native speakers can language learners acquire that feeling for the appropriate use of language forms and combinations, which is basic to expressive writing.

Q. Five sources of feedback for written work.

The feedback can come from the teacher, from peers, and from the learners themselves in selfasse

Q. Writting sub process

There are several important points that can be made about these subprocesses.

1. They do not necessarily occur in a certain order. For some writers, organizing ideas may occur after they have been written. For many writers there is movement from one stage to another in a continuous cycle.

2. The effects of these subprocesses can be seen in learners' writing and in their spoken comments while and after they write. Several studies (Raimes, 1985; Zamel, 1983; Arndt, 1987) have observed and analyzed the performance of second language teachers' writing and have described typical behavior of experienced and inexperienced writers in relation to the parts of the process.

3. Help and training can be provided for any of the subprocesses. The main goal of a process approach is to help learners improve their skills at all stages of the process. In this chapter, the descriptions of the techniques to improve skill in writing make use of the subprocesses to describe the subskills

Q. Importance of praise

Praise is one of the simplest and most powerful tools to engage and motivate your students. When used effectively, praise can turn around behavior challenges and improve students' attitudes about learning. Students who learn and think differently often receive negative feedback as a result of their struggles.

Q. Looping

It is when each learner writes as quickly as possible on the topic for 4 or 5 minutes. Then they stop, read what they have written, think about it and write one sentence summarizing it. Then they repeat the procedure once more.

Q. What is cubbing? (5 lines)

Cubing is when the learners consider the topic from six angles:

(1) describe it;

(2) compare it;

(3) associate it;

(4) analyse it;

(5) apply it;

(6) argue for and against it.

Q. Three sentence on hopes and ambitions.3

suppose students have been working on the topic of 'hopes and ambitions', they can write three sentences about how they would like their lives to change in the future. If they are discussing education, they can write sentences about why exams are good thing or a bad thing. If they have been discussing anti-social behavior, the teacher can ask them to write three don't sentences (e.g. don't listen to loud music after eleven o' clock).

Q. Use of written or spoken feedback

Mode of feedback. Feedback can be written or spoken or a combination of these.

Spoken feedback allows a dialogue to exist between the writer and the source of feedback. It may also be more effective in getting the writer's attention than written feedback. Written feedback provides a lasting record which can be used to measure progress and to act as a reminder.

Q. 4 feature of Comprehension test

although comprehension questions may have a role to play in practising reading, the various forms of reading comprehension questions are not so effective for teaching learners to read. In order to show this, let us look at comprehension questions according to the four features of a good reading exercise. After that, a variety of other reading exercises are described which may also be used in intensive reading.
The basic weakness of comprehension questions is that a simple question form can do so many things. A question can check vocabulary, sentence structure, inference, supposition, the ability to understand the question itself, and many other things. It is not always easy to decide which of these is being asked for in a particular question.

Q. Cognitive approach of testing. (Google BABA)

Cognitive tests are assessments of the cognitive capabilities of humans and other animals. Tests administered to humans include various forms of IQ tests; those administered to animals include the mirror test (a test of visual self-awareness) and the T maze test (which tests learning ability)
